Builders Election Invalidated

Bentling Is Chosen In Second Balloting

The judiciary committee of the Student Council last week invalidated the election of Jim Moore as Builders representative to the 1963-64 Council.

The action came after an official protest was filed by Ann Wahl and Linda Reno. Those two and other Builders members felt that the election did not represent opinions expressed before the voting took place, Miss Reno said.

Several Builders members counted at least seven people who had voted for Karen Bentling, according to Jack Weill, next year's chairman of the judiciary committee.

In the official election results printed in the Daily Nebraskan of May 8, Moore was credited with 10 of fourteen votes and Miss Bentling three.

In the second voting of Builders members last week, Miss Bentling was elected as the new Council representative for the organization.

Dave Scholz, present chairman of the judiciary committee, said that he based his decision to invalidate the election on at least two factors. One was that the ballots were left in the council office in the Student Union anywhere from three days to a week before elections committee chairman Steve Honry picked them up.

There was time for foul play, but whether the ballots were actually tampered with while in the office is not known, Scholz said.

In addition the Builders executive committee admitted opening and counting the ballots before placing them in the Council's office, he said. Apparently, the ballots were counted, but not tabulated.

Honey confirmed Scholz' statement that some time had elapsed between the time the ballots were placed in the office, in a sealed envelop, and the time he picked them up.

There was no Student Council proctor at the first voting of Builders members, Scholz said. Generally, elections committee members have not proctored organization elections, he said.

MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING—The four people above are rehearsing for the new show "Much Ado About Nothing," which will make its debut on May 15. The actors are: Marilyn Longo, Frank Vybiral, Jim Hamsa, and Jim Baffico.

'Much Ado' Opens At Howell Theatre

"Much Ado About Nothing," a comedy of wit and manners by William Shakespeare opens Wednesday at the University Howell Memorial Theatre. The play will continue through Saturday evening.

"Much Ado About Nothing" is a double romance-drama involving two soldiers home from the war; Claudio, quickly falls in love with Hero, a local heiress, and Benedict, infinitely sophisticated, protests his disregard for womankind while he becomes quietly enmeshed with the heiress' cousin Beatrice.

As the play progresses, the young warrior gains knowledge of a nasty story dealing with the chastity of his intended. As a result he renounces his fiancée publicly in church. She faints, he stalks out and the word is passed that she actually died of remorse.

This leads to no end of trouble. The elder soldier challenges his young friend to a duel, old loyalties are dissolved but at the crucial moment the bumbling constable, Dogberry, comes up with the crook.

The play is noted for humor which seems always contemporary, a universal laugh-getter which would have likely made Shakespeare famous on Broadway today.

Student cast members include: Beatrice, played by Maureen Frazier; Benedict, played by Fred Gaines; Jim Baffico, Leo Caito, Vaclav Hamsa, Frank Vybiral, Lee Nelson, Elijah Powell, Raymond Stanek, Friedemann Bender, John Turner, Delvyn Epp, Don Cruise, J. Edward Welch, Sharon Binfield, Jody Reeder, Helen Glenn, Marilyn Longo and Curtiss Greene.

Dr. Meierhenry Gets Recognition From Europeans

Dr. Wesley Meierhenry, University professor of history and principles of education, has been notified that one of his contributions to audio-visual communications has been translated and published in Milan.

The special issue on new techniques in education, edited by Meierhenry, is regarded as a milestone in learning theory and its relationship to the use of audio-aids in instruction.

The reprinted Audio-Visual Communication Review noted that Meierhenry headed the committee directing the special grant that the Teaching Film Custodians made to the Research Committee.

As a result of Meierhenry's work, thousands of European educators, in addition to all professors dealing with audio-visual instruction in the United States, can bring themselves up to date on the latest knowledge.

Meierhenry has been working for the past 10 years on developing better theoretical analysis of how people learn from pictures and words.

Letter Cites John Nolan 'Outstanding'

John Nolan, past president of the Innocents Society, has been nominated for Outstanding Nebraskan.

According to the letter, it would be easy to recount the number of offices that he has held, the number of activities in which he has served or his academic record.

"There is one characteristic, however, which places John above the calibre of the ordinary student possessing a comparable academic and activities record. The spirit with which John participates in activities, making them more than work accomplished, positions earned or honors received, mark him as a University leader of exceptional quality.

Probably the best example of his dedication is the manner in which he conducted himself as president of the Innocents Society.

He brought renewed dignity to the Society, and under his leadership one of the most outstanding projects at the University this year—the seat belt and safety promotion campaign—was a recognized success.

His attitude, the manner in which he works with others, his dedication to high ideals and the University community, make John Nolan an individual who is more than deserving of the title, Outstanding Nebraskan.

Nolan's activities have included: president of Interfraternity Council, member of Student Council, vice-president of Big Eight Student Government Association, assistant business manager of Cornhusker, secretary and president of Phi Delta Theta and 1961-62 Outstanding Collegiate Man.

Nominations for Outstanding Nebraskan, chosen either from the student body or the faculty, should be turned into the Daily Nebraskan Office. All letters must be signed but the name of the persons making nominations will not be used in publication.

Board Of Mng'r To Be Abolished By Dean G. R. Ross

There will not be a Union Board of Managers next year, according to G. Robert Ross, dean of the Division of Student Affairs. There is to be a group, said Ross, which will perform almost the same functions as the present Board, but it will operate under a different name. "I like to think of it as renaming an existing organization," stated Ross.

Last summer, said Ross, the Chancellor placed the operation of the Union under the direction of the division of Student Affairs. This organizational change has now led to the proposed abolition of the Board of Managers.

At present, the Union Board consists of 12 students, 6 faculty members, and three alumni, with the students holding the controlling vote in all matters of business. Under the proposed reorganization plan, the Board, or whatever its new name turns out to be, will be composed of a larger percentage of students, if that is what the present board decides it would prefer.

The actual size and function of next year's group has not been yet decided, according to Ross, much of the group's structure will be decided by the existing board. "I hope before the end of this school year," added Ross.

The Union Board of Managers, according to Maureen Frolik, member, now has charge of the Union in the areas of finance, expenditures, personnel, and overall policy. They also decide when and where prices are raised, and remodeling is performed. As Miss Frolik understands, the proposed change will mean that the Board will become nothing but an advisory group.

The relations between the Union's Board of Managers and the University Administration, has, in the past, been direct. The Union's manager has consulted with, and advised, the Board on all matters. Although the two have generally agreed on policy, the Board has always had the final say. It has been the group responsible to the Chancellor and the Board of Regents.

Next year this will be changed, according to Ross. Next year, the board, and the Union's manager, will report to the Dean of Student Affairs, who will then be the person responsible to the Chancellor and the Regents. "Some persons have been concerned that the students' responsibility is taken away by this move," said Ross, "but I hope that they will have more."

Federal Probation Officers To Meet For Criminal Problems Discussion

An attempt at solving some of the increasingly complex problems of criminal probation will be made at the University beginning Wednesday at a conference of officers from the entire mid-United States.

Harry Dederer, coordinator of programs at the Nebraska Center, said more than 100 probation officers from as far south as Texas, Mississippi, and Tennessee and north into the Great Lakes region will attend.

The 3-day conference of federal probation officers will be attended by several authorities in the field of sociology, crime prevention and rehabilitation.

The Wednesday speakers include: — Louis Sharp, Chief of Probation, U.S. Courts, will open the conference at 9 a.m.

— Richard Robinson, Chief Judge, U.S. District Court, Omaha, will speak at 10 a.m. on "Probation as a Judge Sees It."

— Monsignor N. H. Wegner, will speak at 10:30 a.m. on "A Clergyman Looks at Delinquency."

— A panel discussion at 1:30 p.m. "What Is Crime and Who Are the Criminals," will be led by Glen Petty, Assistant Chief of Probation, U.S. Courts; Edward Hunvald Jr., associate professor of law, University of Missouri; and Dale Hardman, assistant professor of social work, University of Missouri.

Thursday speakers:

— Panel discussion at 9 a.m. on "Treatment of Female Offenders," by Mr. Petty; Bertha Payak, U.S. Probation Officer, Toledo, Ohio; and Gloria Cunningham, U.S. Probation Officer, Chicago, Ill.

— Ronald Beattie, Chief of Division, U.S. Courts, will speak on "Statistics and Probation" at 10:45 a.m.

Szulc States America Wary Of Second Cuba In Present Haiti Crisis

By GARY MILLER, Nebraskan Staff Writer

The position of the United States is concluded to this... we do not want another repetition of Cuba with the Haiti-Dominican situation, were the opening words of Tad Szulc, diplomatic correspondent of the New York Times in the Washington, D. C., Latin-American Bureau, at his Friday press conference.

The press conference was at the Nebraska Center before addressing the University in Love Library Auditorium.

At the conference, Szulc answered eight topic questions as follows:

Is Communism in the Dominican Republic at present?

It is not prevalent as far as visually seeing it in its functional operations. The people are divided by a confused radical left-wing group of economic elite, political minded militant, and free-lancing agitators. According to Szulc, there is no clear cut evidence that communistic subversive activities are being conducted.

Are Communists in government offices?

Szulc said, "Some groups feel that many of the governmental officials are near the communistic line or close to it. But Haiti is very primitive, with 95 per cent of the people having no clear conceptions of any form of government. There are several active minority labor unions which are known to be communist."

Are there anti-American feelings in Haiti?

SZULC... Duvalier Under Pressure

stopping Foreign Aid to Haiti? The money that the US was spending was not being used for the betterment of the country, according to Szulc.

Was there a resistance organized to fight Duvalier?

"Yes, there was," exclaimed Szulc. "It was very well organized at one point, but Duvalier destroyed it about a week and a half ago." He also said that the leader of the opposition force was just as much of a tyrant as Duvalier. One would have been just as bad as the other.

Could the people of Hispaniola handle a democratic system?

Szulc felt that an effort should be made sometime in the future, but not now. Their economic, social, and cultural position has deteriorated, rather than progressed due to the population explosion. They are receding and are at no more than a stand still at the very best.

Szulc said, "Before a democratic form of government could be effective, I feel that we should base our whole exercise on building twentieth century thinking. They have regression in their living standards."

He felt they are requiring effort today needlessly, and wasting energy of regression of yesterday. He also said that democracy would be a pragmatic idea... hard to get across. They are outside of the context of realms of the Western Hemisphere and nineteenth and twentieth century living. Their progress of regression is the reason that a democratic form of government would not work.

Is the Organization of American States (OAS) in a position to act in settling the dispute between Haiti and the Dominican Republic?

Szulc said, "The OAS does things by the book, so to speak. Sometimes it is effective and sometimes it is not.

What was the reason for

Dr. Pace To Get Honorary Degree At Susquehanna

Dr. Donald Pace, University professor of physiology and Director of the Institute for Cellular Research, will receive an honorary doctor of science degree June 2 from his alma mater, Susquehanna University, Selinsgrove, Pa.

Susquehanna is honoring Dr. Pace as one of the leading cell physiologists of the nation.

A native of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Dr. Pace completed his undergraduate work at Susquehanna and received his master's and Ph.D. degrees from Johns Hopkins University where he taught several years before joining the University staff in 1942.

On the basis of his research in cell growth at the University, Dr. Pace has given invitational papers at numerous American and international science meetings. Last summer he was an American delegate to the International Cancer Congress in Moscow.

He is the author of more than 70 scientific articles, two college textbooks and a laboratory manual. In 1961 Susquehanna's Alumni Association presented him its distinguished service medal for professional achievement.

Two NU Groups To Hold Smokers

Corn Cobs, the University men's pep organization, will hold a smoker tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. for all interested freshmen men. Questions as to the purpose and activities of Corn Cobs will be answered at this time.

Kosmet Klub will also have a smoker tomorrow for all freshmen men who would be interested in becoming workers next year. The smoker will be held at 7:30 p.m. in 235 Student Union.
