'Poor Communication Adds To Racial Strife': Plymat

William Plymat, president of the World Peace Broadcasting Foundation, told his audience at the Love Library Wednesday morning that they should not punish or retaliate against a prejudiced person, but listen to his ideas and then show him by facts that they are wrong.

The head of a Des Moines insurance company which was the first one in that city to adopt fair employment practices, he stressed that having people talk about their prejudices will enable both sides to see what the other is thinking.

The first approach to any racial problem is the avoidance of force or threat of force, said Plymat. He said that humans like to dominate, but are resentful if someone tries to dominate them. This attempt at force actually intensifies the prejudice, Plymat said. "The prejudiced person is then thinking of the immorality of the use of force on him," noted Plymat.

"Some companies have never discussed the problems of minority employment in their executive suite," charged Plymat. He pointed out that unfair practices are often carried out on the wishes of the personnel man with the management knowing little of these policies.

Some Negroes are afraid to apply or are afraid to be the first Negro employee in the company, said Plymat. He said that it is the duty of others to buoy up their courage.

However, sometimes the Negro takes a negative approach to the situation and sets up his own prophecy which he soon fulfills by his own conduct, said the insurance executive.

He noted the double standard of employment does exist. Plymat urged employers to tell Negroes who do not meet the qualifications for employment that they do not have the job for that reason instead of manufacturing some excuse.

Communication is the best way to solve problems. The calm, quiet way is best, but even talking which resorts to swearing is better than no communication at all, said Plymat.

European Jobs Now Open For Interested U.S. Students

Applications for students wishing to work in Europe this summer are now available from the American Student Information Service (ASIS) in the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg.

The ASIS has 5,000 job openings in 15 European countries. The jobs range from construction work to camp counseling. The top wage paid is $400 per month for some positions in West Germany.

The working hours are exactly the same as the Europeans with whom the students will be working. Living accommodations are prearranged for the students.

Every student placed in a summer job in Europe will attend a five-day orientation period in the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg. It includes cultural orientation tours to Germany, France, Belgium, and other European countries.

The ASIS states that specific knowledge is not essential, but it is very advantageous. At the orientation period, a blackboard session and actual European situations help the students to become used to the language of the country in which they will be.

The ASIS supplies to the job applicants a set of language records, a student pass allowing the bearer student discounts throughout Europe, and complete health-accident insurance while in Europe.

ASIS also offers travel grants as high as $1,000 depending on the need of the student. Students are also free to make their own travel arrangements to and from Europe.

Students wishing summer work in Europe should write to Dept. 1, American Student Information Service, 22 Avenue de la Liberté, Luxembourg City, Grand Duchy of Luxembourg.

Three Match Chess Expert

Twenty-five players took part in the simultaneous chess match against U.S. Master Robert Walker Sunday. Although no one managed to get the better of him, he was forced to yield three draws.

Gary P. Rowe, Dr. Robert Narveson, and Dennis Fritzler received books on the game of chess as prizes for tying the Master.

There will be individual play this Sunday at the Student Union and the games may be counted for rating purposes. The winner of these games is expected to report to the officers of the Chess Club.

On Oct. 27 a series of chess lessons will be initiated by members of the Lincoln Chess Club.

Affiliation Mistake

An error was made on page one of the October 16 Daily Nebraskan. In the article concerning the IFC Rush Committee, Chuck Clement was incorrectly referred to as a member of Delta Tau Delta. He is a member of Alpha Tau Omega.

Night Class Total Increases By 10%

With the enrollment deadline set for Saturday noon, Oct. 5, night class registrations already exceeded those for last year by ten per cent.

Eodor Ellingson, supervisor of evening classes, says he expects that three classes added to the program should attract heavy late enrollments.

The new classes include one in jewelry making with silver and other metals and two in driver education, education for safety, and teaching driver education in secondary schools.

Persons interested in enrolling for evening classes may do so at 511 Nebraska Hall, 17th St. entrance.
