

LAST SHOW SET TONIGHT

NEBRASKA POM-POM GIRLS, who have supported Husker teams with enthusiasm and have added color throughout the year will make their last '63-'64 appearance tonight.

KK's Spring Show 'Birdie' Termed Nebraska's Biggest Stage Production

Kosmet Klub will spend over $12,000 on its spring show "Bye Bye Birdie."

The show is the "biggest stage production in the state, according to Tom Schwenke, Kosmet Klub publicity director. "Birdie" will have the advantage of the spacious Pershing Auditorium stage, which will allow more freedom than any stage in the state.

"Technically, the musical will be aided tremendously by the services of set designer Charles Howard who was assistant technical director for the Broadway production of the play," said Schwenke.

High expectations are abundant.

Nebraskan Is Named President Of College

An Osceola, Nebraska native who received his master's degree from Nebraska, Dr. Donald C. Dearborn, was inaugurated the fifteenth president of Catawba College last week.

Dearborn challenged the nation's liberal arts institutions in his address to the Salisbury, North Carolina, school audience. He said students today must be able to "discard knowledge no longer useful" and preserve what is of use to make way for new concepts.

Dearborn, 53, earned his bachelor of arts in education from Hastings College and later his doctorate at Duke University.

He joined the Catawba faculty as math instructor in 1935, was named registrar in 1940 and dean in 1947.

House Sets Smoker

Delta Sigma Pi announces a smoker to be held at the Delta Sigma Pi house, 1141 H Street, at 7 p.m. Wednesday.

All unaffiliated male business administration students are invited to attend.

at the "Bye Bye Birdie" rehearsals according to John Zeilinger, president of Kosmet Klub.

Rehearsals under the direction of Mrs. Richard Hove from Lincoln have kept 72 University students busy for over two weeks now.

With the March 21 show time less than a month away, rehearsals are going "real well," says Zeilinger.

Rehearsals are being held from 7-11 p.m. on week nights in the Student Union conference room and ballroom. Weekend sessions are alternated from the evening to afternoon times.

Zeilinger termed the play itself as "one of the funniest Broadway musicals ever."

"The musical parodies a teenage star, teenagers in general and contemporary America," said Zeilinger.

According to Zeilinger, sets and scenery "should be quite spectacular this year."

Simone, Mann To Appear In 'Folk, Jazz Wing Ding'

The Ford Caravan of Music will bring its "Folk and Jazz Wing Ding" to campus March 6. It will be presented in the Student Union ballroom.

The concert will feature Nina Simone and her quartet, Herbie Mann and his Afro-Cuban quintet, Ron Eliran, an Israeli folk singer and the Moonshiners, a trio of two guitars and three voices.

Miss Simone is a well-known vocalist and pianist. She first came into the public eye in 1959. Some of her works are the album "The Amazing World of Nina Simone" and singles like "Children Go Where I Send You."

She has appeared at Carnegie Hall, the Hollywood Bowl and on television. She is presently planning a European tour.

Herbie Mann is an interpreter of African and Latin rhythms and has toured Africa in 1960 as part of the U.S. International Cultural Exchange Program. Attracted to the Bossa Nova during a tour of Brazil, he assimilated it into his repertoire of "folk jazz."

Ron Eliran toured with a group of Israeli singers and dancers throughout France and Belgium. In 1958, during Israel's tenth anniversary celebration, Ed Sullivan discovered him and brought him to the United States for CBS's special Israeli show.

Hastings' Paper Gives Scholarship

Nebraska high school seniors interested in journalism will have the chance to compete for $3,875 in scholarships at the University next year.

A $300 award from the Hastings Tribune has been added to the School of Journalism scholarship list which is financed by 11 Nebraska newspapers and the Nebraska Farmer.

Dr. William E. Hall, director of the school, said this is the largest number and amount of newspaper-sponsored scholarships ever available.

"These scholarships have played a major role in enabling us to attract outstanding Nebraska high school journalistic talent, and in making it possible for us to compete favorably against the best schools in the nation," Dr. Hall said.

In addition the University's journalists ranked first in the William Randolph Hearst Foundation national news writing competition bringing awards totaling over $15,000 to the School of Journalism and its students.

Individuals, Not YR's Supporting Goldwater

Chuck Peek, president of the University Young Republicans (YR's), said Sunday that members of the group who attended the tri-state meeting of college Young Republicans in Sioux City Saturday did so as individual members rather than as representatives of the University YR group.

Although the delegates overwhelmingly supported a resolution endorsing Sen. Barry Goldwater for the Republican presidential nomination, Peek said that the University club has not endorsed Goldwater and "as far as I am concerned we are not going to support one candidate before the convention."

The resolution was introduced by Steve Stastny, member of the University chapter of the Nebraska Youth for Goldwater and former YR president.

Peek added that daily newspaper accounts of the meeting have incorrectly identified Stastny as University YR chairman and William Herzog as press secretary of the group.

Chuck Marr, treasurer of the group and state chairman of the University chapter of the Nebraska Youth for Goldwater, said that he asked Herzog to make a statement to the papers about the events of the meeting. Marr said that Herzog is press secretary of the Nebraska Youth for Goldwater.

Some 76 delegates from 12 colleges and universities in South Dakota, Iowa and Nebraska attended the meeting to reaffirm YR principles and to conduct a mock vote endorsing a presidential candidate.

Nebraska Lieutenant Governor Dwight Burney and Fulton Lewis III, representative of the Young Americans for Freedom, spoke to the group. Stastny emphasized that the 15-20 University students did not represent the University YRs "although the results of the voting probably represent the feeling of most of the members of the organization."

Marr echoed Stastny's words, adding that all of the delegates at the meeting were there as individuals and voted as they saw fit. He said that the heavy individual support for Goldwater, however, is indicative of strong sentiment existing for the Senator within the YR groups over the three state areas.

Alliance Termed Greatest

Trust Is Cited By Esquenazi

"The Alliance for Progress—in spite of some well-founded criticisms—is still the best program in inter-American cooperation," Dr. Roberto Esquenazi-Mayo declared Saturday.

Esquenazi, associate professor of romance languages at the University, spoke at a student convocation at the Iowa Wesleyan College in Mt. Pleasant, Iowa.

"The Alliance for Progress is not a unilateral program; it is not a U.S. aid program. It is part of our inter-American system in which every nation has definite responsibilities," Esquenazi said.

"The worst enemy of the inter-American system is the threat of communist infiltration in Latin America just as it is in any part of the world. In an effort to cope with this problem, it is imperative that economic and social reform be established and that we base our dealings and relationships on mutual trust.

"I feel that the two greatest statements of U.S. policy were made during the Eisenhower and Kennedy administrations," he continued. "Eisenhower established the 'good partner policy' and Kennedy announced the Alliance for Progress. President Johnson recently said that we know of no more important problem anywhere, at any time than the problems of our neighbors."

Esquenazi pointed out that economic development should proceed in Latin America within the framework of democratic and constitutional government.

Regents' Grants Will Be Available To Law Students

Students enrolled in the University of Nebraska College of Law next fall may apply for one of six Regents' full-tuition law scholarships.

In addition, a single applicant may apply for an appointment as a men's residence hall counselor, which would help to defray living expenses, according to Dean David Dow of the College of Law.

Applications for counselorships must be received before March 27. The deadline for scholarship applications is July 1.

Scholarships and counselorships will be awarded on the basis of character, promise in the field, college record, results of the law aptitude examination and other pertinent information. In cases where two or more applications show equal qualifications, the need for financial assistance will be considered.

All applications should be sent to Dean David Dow, College of Law, University of Nebraska, Lincoln, Nebraska.

Med Freshmen Get Scholarships

Three Freshmen at the University College of Medicine have been selected to receive Avalon Foundation Scholarships this semester.

The winners are Grace Buehrens, Harold Kaiman and Donald Ray Townsend. Each winner will receive $362.50.

Students receiving the Avalon scholarships were selected by the Scholarship and Awards Committee with the approval of J. Perry Tollman, M.D., dean of College of Medicine.

The awards are designed to afford partial or full tuition to scholastically worthy students in financial need.

Marvel's Choice Expected; School May Be Affected

A decision which will undoubtedly have some effect on the University's next "battle of the budget" is expected this week.

State Senator Richard Marvel of Hastings, chairman of the legislative budget committee, will announce his political plans.

His choice is expected to come from among four alternatives.

Most speculation around the statehouse has him running for re-election to the unicameral. If he does this, and is successful, he will probably be reappointed to the chairmanship of the budget committee.

Rumors have been widely circulated that the tall, thin lawyer will seek the Republican gubernatorial nomination or the post of state treasurer which Clarence Swanson must vacate due to state law.

The fourth choice would be not to run for anything. Marvel himself has given some credence to this talk with his oft-stated ambitions of teaching political science at the University level.

Conversely, Marvel has usually listed only the drawbacks to a try for the governorship. He has said he hasn't the money or the organization necessary to win.

If he should file for governor, Marvel's principal competition to date would be Lt. Governor Dwight W. Burney. Leo Bartunek of Lincoln has also filed for the post as a Republican.

'Combo Clash' Stars Four Musical Groups

The "Sig Ep Jags", the Beta Sigma Psi "Marauders", the "Nomads" and the "Challengers" will join sounds in a "Combo Clash" Feb. 29 at 8 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom, sponsored by Andrews House of Selleck Quadrangle.

Each combo will be playing two half-hour periods between 8 and 12 midnight.

Tickets will be sold at the door. It is hoped that the "Combo Clash" will become an annual event.

Five Spend Summer In Europe

Five University coeds will study in Europe this summer under the Nebraska Career Scholars program, financed by Ford Foundation funds.

The students are Linda Miles, a sophomore German major; Karen Woodward, a junior French major; Doris Mueller, a senior German major; Mary Schmitt, a senior German major; and Kathy Robertson, a junior French major.

The students will spend the summer visiting France and Germany to exchange cultural views and to further develop their language skills.

All five coeds rank high scholastically and have an interest in making a career of college and university teaching. They are also members of the three-year masters program, an accelerated course of study in the arts, sciences and humanities.

Departments now participating in the program, in addition to French and German, include English, chemistry, educational psychology, history, mathematics, philosophy, and physics.

Minnesota Wins Debate On Saturday

The University of Minnesota won the sweepstakes of the 1964 University of Nebraska Intercollegiate Debates Conference Saturday, outscoring 33 college and university teams from a ten state area.

The Minnesota team led the field with 172 points followed by the University of Kansas with 162, William Jewell College of Liberty, Mo., with 150 and the University of Missouri with 158.

Superior senior division ratings for schools went to the University of Nebraska, Minnesota, Wichita, Washburn William Jewell College and the United States Air Force Academy.

Red Cross In Error

A representative of Red Cross has reported that some of the offices as given to the DAILY NEBRASKAN were incorrect through their own error.

The correct officers are: Handicrafts—Wanda Brammer, chairman; Karen Westerber, assistant.

State hospital, adult—Mary Beth Wright, chairman; Betsy White and Karen Gafford, assistants.

State hospital, specific—Kathy Adams, chairman; Judy Mortensen and Karlyn Ebner, assistants.

Quitting Is Regulated

A student withdrawing from school must comply with specific regulations if he does not want to fail the courses for which he is registered. They are: return all laboratory equipment, library books, keys and ROTC uniforms; fill out withdrawal forms at Administration and turn in library and ID cards; take the withdrawal notice from student affairs to the registrar; and check with instructors to insure good standing.

Nebraska's John Birch Votes With Democrats

By Jerri O'Neil
Junior Staff Writer

Students beware, we have John Birch at the University—that is, Dr. John Birch, assistant professor of mathematics.

Birch, who received his Ph.D. at the University of California in Berkeley in 1960, said that he wasn't ribbed about his name then because the John Birch Society wasn't really famous at that time. "There is, however, a very active chapter of the Birch Society in southern California now," Birch said.

"When the John Birch Society became famous I was here and my friends used to send me clippings from the newspapers whenever they referred to the Society, so I now know more than I want to know about it," Birch said.

Birch commented that he has voted Democratic in every major election and considers himself a liberal Democrat. "My politics are not at all the same as the John Birch Society," he noted.

With the increase in the notoriety of the Birch Society the jokes about Dr. Birch's name naturally increased, and, "at one time my wife and I jokingly thought of running an advertisement in the paper asking people to send money to John Birch at our address, but some of our law school friends discouraged the idea."

"My religion emphasizes the difference between my name and the policies of the Society even more," said Birch. "Unitarianism is liberal in its belief and many of the members used to rib me about being John Birch in the Unitarian Church."

"But," commented Birch, "the name has never been really embarrassing; people always were jesting when they made comments about it."

Birch said he has taken the initiative at parties and gatherings by commenting on his name first.

He finds that at parties people have no trouble remembering his name.

Dr. Birch's wife, Mrs. Eleanor Birch, instructor of economics, said that when her husband made speeches he used to start with the comment that he understands that the original bearer of the name was shot in China for opening his mouth too much, and he hoped he wouldn't meet the same fate at the gathering.

He has made it a practice to discourage students in class from joking about the name, "but now I teach graduate students, and it isn't much of a problem."

Birch has never seriously considered changing his name "because it isn't that much of a big deal, and besides, I had it before the Society did."

He has never made a concerted effort to study the life of the other John Birch, but he does know the policies of the Society, and doesn't agree with them.

His wife said that there were a number of run-ins with the name when she went shopping, because people, seeing the name on a credit card, didn't know whether to joke about it or not because she might be in sympathy with the beliefs of the Society. Mrs. Birch overcame this by making some comment herself. She said that she felt people were relieved to find she wasn't a member.

Dr. Birch is going to teach at the University of Iowa next year and when asked if he expected to encounter the same ribbing there he said "Yes, but not as much as I would have a few years ago."
