

WEEK IN REVIEW

CAMPUS . . .

A LATIN AMERICAN program is being established by the College of Arts and Sciences because of common interest in the program.

IFC RUSH WEEK will begin March 6, with an orientation meeting Saturday. Applications must be made in the IFC office by Tuesday.

TOM SCHWENKE was named president of the Union Board Monday. The board is in charge of policies concerning program and management.

UNIVERSITY STUDENTS will help with voter registration during spring vacation in conjunction with the Young Women's Christian Association. Students will travel to one of six project sites. According to the national group, "non-violent techniques will be used to encourage voter registration and education in the communities." Interest has been growing nationally with 48 schools applying for the project thus far.

QUIT-SMOKING COURSES will be offered Sunday through Thursday for those who wish to kick the habit.

CITY . . .

THE LIQUOR PLAN was revised by the City Council Monday but a vote was deferred for one week. The Council members made a half-dozen revisions in the proposed liberalization of Lincoln's long-standing beer and liquor policy after public hearing. The proposed liberalization would continue on-sale beer in downtown Lincoln and Havelock, but would also permit off-sale beer and package liquor in six major shipping or highway commercial areas with an 11 p.m. closing hour.

ZONING REGULATIONS were taken under study Wednesday by the City-County Planning Commission. Provision for single hunting or fishing cabins that may be located in rural areas and provisions for keeping a horse within a residential district were suggested changes.

STATE . . .

BEEF PROTESTS are receiving a willing and sympathetic ear from members of Congress according to a group of cattle producers. Several cattlemen from the Midwest, the West and the South have met with the Congressmen concerning the beef-import situation and have asked for legislation.

LUNG CANCER appears to be partial in choosing areas to strike. A new study shows that Omaha men apparently are dying of lung cancer at a rate more than one and one-half times that of Lincoln men and almost three times that of men in an area including Seward, York, Beatrice and Fairbury. The big question left unanswered is what causes the startling differences.

CRITERIA FOR STATE ROADS is expected to be studied by the Unicameral's legislative council. Sen. Cecil Craft, chairman, said that he does not anticipate that the committee will make recommendations for specific additions or deletions from the state highway system. He does expect the group will recommend amendments to the present laws to establish more specific criteria for determining what roads should be on the state system.

NATION . . .

"I AM THE GREATEST" was the cry of Cassius Clay after he won the heavyweight boxing championship from Sonny Liston Tuesday night. Liston was unable to answer the bell for the seventh round after an injury to his shoulder.

WATERFRONT UNIONS agreed Tuesday to resume loading ships with wheat for Russia in return for a government pledge that in future American grain deals with Russia, half the cargoes will be carried in U.S. vessels.

JACK RUBY'S trial jury has grown to eight with the acceptance of two men and a woman Wednesday. A jury panel of two women and six men of the 12 needed now is on hand to try the 52-year-old Ruby, operator of a Dallas strip tease joint, for the November 24 shooting of Lee Harvey Oswald, accused assassin of President Kennedy.

PRESIDENT JOHNSON signed into law Wednesday night a tax cut for most individual taxpayers and corporations and proclaimed it "the single most important step we have taken to strengthen our economy since World War II."

Educators Might Choose Ethics Code Set By NEA

The University chapter of the Student Education Association will decide at its meeting of March 3 whether to accept or reject the Code of Ethics of the Education profession.

The code was adopted by the Nebraska Educational Association (NEA) Representative Assembly in July of 1963.

Highlights of the code include the fulfilling of obligations to the student, such as the withholding of confidential information about a student and assistance in providing an understanding of the student's educational experiences.

Commitments to the community involve sharing responsibility for educational opportunities, acknowledging the public's participation rights, and protecting the educational program against undesirable infringements.

Under commitments to the profession, the teacher would be obliged, among other things, to recognize the responsibility of such a profession, to conduct himself in a responsible manner, to cooperate in recruiting prospective teachers, to refrain from exerting any undue influences, and represent honestly the professional qualifications.

Dr. Merle Lynch at the January meeting emphasized that a teacher could find himself in serious trouble if he did not fully understand each part. Students in the teaching field will soon be expected to understand and abide by the code.

Application forms for officers for next year will be available at the meeting. The forms can also be obtained in Dr. Bonneau's office, 409 Administration building.

—PROMISES, PROMISES— Reporter Gives Vow; Tobacco Is Going Out

By Frank Partsch
Senior Staff Writer
"Tomorrow I'm going to quit smoking."

For the last year I have terrorized everyone, friends and enemies alike, with this trite little promise. I've said it on Saturday nights, Tuesday afternoons. Ground Hog Day, the night before Lent began and the night after Lent began.

No one listens anymore. They either look disgusted or pretend they didn't hear me say it.

When I told my roommate I planned to enroll in Union College's "Five Day Plan to Stop Smoking", he just laughed and uttered a sarcastic remark about how funny it will be to see the endless procession of cigarettes, cigars and pipe tobacco make its way into the room again two days after the Plan is completed.

But the Plan, which begins Sunday at 7:30 p.m. at the Nebraska Center, is 70% effective in reducing craving for tobacco, according to statistics released by its directors, author Elman Folkenberg and Dr. Alfred Mazat, staff member at Denver's Porter Sanitarium and Hospital.

Pamphlets circulated by the directors are filled with facts and statistics of the people who have succeeded in breaking the nicotine habit. In addition, they are written in a style capable of arousing a glimmer of confidence in the mind of the most hopeless chain smoker, if he sincerely wants to quit.

The program includes five group therapy sessions, films, lectures and demonstrations, a control book to follow, and a buddy system (maybe because misery loves company?).

Quotes from the pamphlet are reassuring but terrifying. "The plan was designed for busy people who work under pressure." That line sounds like a dictionary definition of college students.

"Nothing but fruit juices and fruit for the first 24 hours." "Plenty of warm showers." "No coffee."

But 70% of the people who took the course have been helped.

I will have a more complete explanation of the techniques of the program, as well as my reaction and problems during the next week. If anyone is interested in "kicking the habit" with me, I'll give them a ride out to the center and we can "sneak a fast smoke" on the way.

Various quotes from the STATE JOURNAL speak of a great Negro halfback by the name of Flippen. He was called "the best player on our team" and was given special notice after the University defeated Illinois 6-0 with a heroic stand on the one foot line.

An item from the JOURNAL, Oct. 21, 1892, says, "The aristocratic young fellows from the Missouri state football team object to playing Lincoln if the half-back, Flippen, is allowed to play. Flippen is one of the best men on the team, but he is part Negro, and that the haughty Southerners cannot stand."

The game was not played. Later in the year Flippen was refused entry to a Denver opera house which the team planned to attend as part of a post game celebration. Again his teammates stood behind him, and the entire team went elsewhere together.

The nickname "Cornhuskers" was suggested by Charles Sherman, sports editor of the NEBRASKA STATE JOURNAL. Before that time the teams had been known as the Bug Eaters, the Tree Planters or just the Nebraskans.

A measure was introduced in the Nebraska House of Representatives on Jan. 23, 1897, "to prevent football playing in the state of Nebraska, providing penalties for the violation of the act and providing for the arrest of persons in preparation or training to engage in any football game."

The bill followed the death of a player in a game between Doane College and Kansas University. It was later determined that the boy who had been killed had not been physically fit to play the game.

The motion came up for debate on Feb. 12. "I have stood by and heard professors instruct their men to
