

Huskers Seek Relay Wins

Thinclads Off To Drake For Relay, Open Events

By Peggy Speece
Sports Editor

The Husker mile relay squad will be out to prove themselves as one of the better quartets in the nation at the annual Drake Relays today and tomorrow.

Last weekend, it was learned that Oklahoma State's mile relay team had been invited to appear in the Penn Relays also held today and tomorrow. Penn pays the traveling expenses of all teams it invites so the Cowboys passed up Drake and accepted the Penn bid.

But last Saturday at the Kansas Relays, it appeared that perhaps the bid was a wee bit premature.

The Husker team, composed of Dick Strand, Kent McCloughan, Gil Gebro and Dave Crook, easily outdistanced the Cowboy crew.

The Huskers very nearly beat a Rice team as both teams were clocked in the fleet time of 3:11.1. Dave Crook, anchoring for the Scarlet and Cream, received the baton in third place. He passed the Oklahoma State anchor man and put in a terrific effort to overhaul the Rice runner. It looked as if he had the race, but the Rice man gave a final lunge at the tape to beat Nebraska. Oklahoma State finished a distant third.

A Husker-Cowboy mile relay dual has been going on ever since the indoor season. This weekend the Huskers will be out not only to win at Drake but to try to better whatever time the Cowpokes register at Penn.

A second Husker relay team will be searching for a first place at Drake. The sprint medley won handily at Kansas last week.

Last year at Drake a favored Husker spring medley, disappointed Nebraska fans by finishing fourth.

One of the teams that was expected to give the Huskers competition in the sprint medley has been forced to scratch from the event. Missouri's Rick Beldner, who injured a muscle prior to the Kansas Relays, is still not in top shape and so the Tigers pulled out of the sprint medley.

However, the Nebraska crew will still face plenty of competition in the form of a Houston team which was miffed when it wasn't invited to appear in the Kansas Relays event and Abilene (Tex.) Christian.

Running for the Huskers in the sprint medley will be Crook, McCloughan, Lynn Headley and Gebro.

Coach Frank Sevigne has entered thinclads in seven other events in addition to the two relays.

Victor Brooks, who won the broad jump at Kansas will go after that event at Drake. He also will be entered in the triple jump.

Larry Toothaker is scheduled for the open two-mile run and Peter Scott will see action in the mile. Scott faces stiff competition in the form of Tom O'Hara, famed distance ace from Loyola of Chicago.

Roland Johnson will be competing in the discus, Jim Beltzer in the shot and Jack Cramer in the high jump to complete the Husker entries.

Bowler In Meet

Keith Van Velkinburgh will be rolling for national prestige this weekend.

This year's outstanding bowler of the Big Eight will represent Nebraska in the Western Regional Bowling Tournament in Chicago beginning Friday.

It will be Van Velkinburgh's second try in the intercollegiate tourney. The Nebraska team captain lost in the semifinals as a freshman.

The Nebraska ace won top individual honors in the Big Eight meet with a 205 overall average.

In preparation for the meet, Van Velkinburgh rolled the highest series in Union history Thursday. He racked up games of 279, 287 and 246 for an 812 series.

Van Velkinburgh is an economics major and member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

Missouri Leads Big Eight Loop Baseball Race

In accordance with pre-season predictions, the Tigers of Missouri are leading the Big Eight baseball race with a record of 4-0.

After three victories over Nebraska, the Jayhawks of Kansas found themselves in second place with a 5-0 record. Tied with KU for second is the Oklahoma team which also bested the Huskers.

The total standings are:

Missouri	4	0
Kansas	5	0
Oklahoma	5	1
Iowa State	1	1
Colorado	2	4
Kansas State	1	4
Oklahoma State	2	4
NEBRASKA	0	6

State Constitution invests the legislature with the responsibility of providing for present and future needs. They have failed in this responsibility and there is no indication that they will assume it in the future.

What is to be done: A coordinated effort must be made to inform Nebraskans and their state Senators of the needs for elementary, secondary, and higher education.

This can be done through a citizens committee composed of: (1) the State Board of Education and the State Department of Education; (2) the State School District Reorganization Committee; (3) the University of Nebraska Board of Regents; (4) alumni of any state supported institution of higher learning; (5) Parent-Teachers Association; (6) the Nebraska State Education Association and (7) interested friends of education.

The citizens of this state must now make a significant commitment to the advancement of quality education.

CU Needs Quarterback; Veteran Cesarek Quits

By Lee Marshall
Assistant Sports Editor

This is the second of a series to deal with the Spring football outlook around the Big Eight.

The search for a quarterback continues at Colorado this spring. Incumbent Frank Cesarek is gone, having elected to give up his final year of competition.

Head Coach Eddie Crowder has five potential candidates, but as yet none of them has a firm lock on the starting job.

Frank Rogers tentatively holds the No. 1 position, although he saw little action last fall due to a broken finger in his right hand.

Rogers has good speed and is an effective runner. He's also a good ball handler and an adequate passer. Right now he's the steadiest of the Buffalo QB crowd.

The next four hopefuls behind Rogers are freshmen. Hale Irwin is a good option runner and ball-handler. Bernie McCall has the finest physical credentials of the lot at a rangy 6'11" 175; he is also the best passer of the bunch.

The last two candidates are Dan Kelly, a converted half-back who is making the adjustment rather quickly, and Larry Fischer, who will definitely see action defensively if not as the signal-caller.

Kelly is one of the top punters on the squad, as he will be doing battle with end Sam Harris, another rookie, for the kicking assignment next fall.

The sixth candidate, Tim Whelan, was felled by a knee injury in the eighth day of practice and will probably miss the rest of spring drill.

Crowder thus has many talents among his quarterback crew, but the talents are so equally divided that the tussle for the starting slot will probably last right up to the opener with Southern California next September 18.

WRESTLING

Three defending intramural wrestling champs earned births in tonight's finals.

Scott Rodwell and Bill Meeboer, who helped the Sigma Nu's pick up the 1963 team title, and Bob Besom, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, are slated for appearances in the championship bouts at 7:00 p.m. in the Coliseum.

Besom will be after his third 147 pound gold medal. The Kappa Sig's are the leaders in team points going into the final round but have no one up for championships.

The Sigma Nu's and Sig Alph's are not far behind in the race and each have three men in the finals.

Delta Tau Delta also has three in the finals.

SOFTBALL

Inadvertently, today's softball games were listed as those to be played yesterday. Here is the list of games on tap for this afternoon.

Today's games starting at 5:15 are:

- NE Seaton II v. Manatt
- NW Alpha Tau Omega v. Phi Kappa Psi
- SE Triangle v. Delta Sigma Phi
- SW Benton v. Besse
- Saturday at 10 a.m.:
- NE Maclean v. Hitchcock
- NW Newman v. Geologists
- SE Kappa Sigma v. Delta Tau Delta
- SW Pioneer v. Chi Phi
- At 2:00 p.m.:
- NE Sigma Chi v. Theta Xi

Larsen To Start For Baseballers

Tom Larsen, sophomore lefty, takes the mound today at Ames against the Cyclones of Iowa State.

Cap Timm, Iowa State baseball coach more familiarly known as "The Rainmaker," hasn't seen his team in a double header yet this season. He has brought rain or other forms of inclement weather for four such double-headers this season.

DeLon Thompson will start on the mound for the lowans, as they seek to improve on their 1-1 Big Eight record.

Nebraska too could stand some improvement on their 0-6 record, as they are the only team in the conference who has yet to win a game.

Coach Tony Sharpe has inserted two new sticks in the batting order; Pat Gorham in right field, and Clayton Luther behind the dish.

Next week the Huskers are home again for a three-game stand against the Buffaloes of Colorado.

NHRRF Is Project

Nebraska Human Resource Research Foundation (NHRRF) attempts to discover better ways of working with people. The organization is divided into seven different projects: Child, Junior, Teenage, Orthopedic, Family, Communications and Special Functions. The NHRRF is often referred to as Project.

How's the Morning Disposition?

The best time to find out what a guy is really like is to take a close look at him just after he gets out of the pad at 7 a.m.

There are three typical types:
1—the mad-at-the-world type. He starts his morning by heaving the alarm clock against the wall, rolling and moaning in hopes he'll fall back to sleep, and taking a shot at cutting his throat with the razor.

2—the bright-eyed bubbly chap who bounces out of bed with a smile on his face and a whistle on his lips. He's up in time to read the whole paper, glub down four cups of coffee for nothing better to do and vainly searches for a handball opponent for 7:15.

3—the type who hasn't quite gathered all his senses upon arising. He turns on the cold water in the shower and realizes 15 minutes later it's the wrong one, walks into the closet instead of his room and says "Huh" when you say "Hi" to him.

Up at 6:30 . . . That's A.M.

Then there's Peter Scott, Nebraska's distance track man, who used to climb out of the sack at 6:30 or 7:30 a.m. to put in a little running time before breakfast.

"I've got a little 4½ mile (that's little) course that I used to run when I got up," says Scott, "but coach (Frank) Sevigne thought I was overdoing it and asked me to quit."

These little sunrise junkets took him from Selleck Quad down by the Twin Towers, up around the Capitol, along 10th St., around University High's athletic fields and back to the dorm.

So where does that put Scott on the above list of snoozers. Probably all three. Scott has a gripe—with himself. He hasn't matched up to the expectations he hoped he would attain at the start of the year.

In the mile Scott has run a 4:14.0 this year—not a great feat. He hopes that he can cut it down below 4:10 in time for the Big Eight Meet, and "I think I can."

Against some of the best competition in the country Scott will be going after a first place in the university mile at the Drake Relays this weekend.

The sophomore is pretty enthusiastic about running which puts him in the second category. "In high school I wasn't too interested in track, but when I came to college it was the only thing I had to compete in so I decided I was going to be good at it," Scott says.

In high school, Scott, who calls North Scituate, Mass., home, set a state record in the 880 with a 1:52.0, a mark that still stands.

And as far as the third category goes, whoever heard of anybody having all their marbles rolling in the same direction at 6:30 in the morning and is ready to run.

So if some morning after track season you come stumbling out of the bus depot and see a fellow with short pants jogging down the street, don't attribute it to your being plastered.

It's only Peter Scott on the trail of improvement.

Honor To Michka

Ron Michka, center on the Huskers 1963 Big Eight championship football team has a new honor.

Michka was recently named to the Phi Delta Theta all-star football team for his performance over the 1963 season.
