

Seniors May Still Train Corps Accepts For Summer

Graduating seniors still have an opportunity to get into Peace Corps summer training programs, according to Vice Chancellor G. Robert Ross, dean of Student Affairs, and campus liaison officer for the Peace Corps, but it will take some fast action.

Interested seniors can get Peace Corps volunteer questionnaires from their post office or their Peace Corps liaison officer. The questionnaire should be completed and mailed to the Director of Recruiting, Peace Corps, Washington, D.C. 20525 as soon as possible.

Ross reports that 111 University students have applied to the Peace Corps since school opened last fall. Twenty-one former students are now serving and five others have completed their two year tours.

More June graduates have applied this year than in the three previous years since the Peace Corps was established, but opportunities are also greater than ever. More than 1,000 applicants will be selected for summer training.

Although professionally trained workers and those who can speak a foreign language are in demand, the majority of Peace Corps volunteers are liberal arts graduates who spoke only English before they joined the Peace Corps.

According to Ross, the need for volunteers who can teach English, science and mathematics is much greater than the Peace Corps can supply. There are thousands of opportunities for liberal arts graduates to teach in secondary schools and hundreds of openings in colleges and universities in Africa, Asia and Latin America.

Student Creates, Plays

In the midst of a kaleidoscope of scurrying students and a bubbling stream of noise in the Union lobby, a man walks up to the grand piano, slowly sits down and begins to play.

Suddenly the steady hum of voices stops and people pause to listen to Ariel Benetier play his own composition, "Fantasia of the Springtime."

Immediately the small audience murmurs words of praise. "Who is this man and where did he learn to play so well?"

Benetier taught himself to play the piano one and one half years ago. Three months after he started teaching himself to play he began composing his own music. "I can learn things very fast," said Benetier. He has played many other instruments and therefore has had some experience with rhythm, movement and other essentials of music.

Benetier describes his music as impressionistic, that is, his presentation of pictures from nature. "I try to create a visual image to relive through music," he said. He said that he creates a "light touch" in his works.

In addition to his "fantasia of the Springtime," Benetier has composed "My Fantasia of a Day in Four Movements" and other pieces in what he calls the "short sonnet form."

Benetier said that he has spent 750 to 1000 hours for each of his compositions. He practices in the Union almost every day, and even in the evenings.

"I do this because I want to create," said Benetier. He has no ambition to be a professional musician. "I will not play for a group larger than twelve people," he said.

Benetier is a junior majoring in French, sociology and drama. After college he hopes to teach French at a University, although he said that he will always be a professional student.

This man's creativity does not end with musical composition. He has written two plays and many pieces of poetry. He said that one of his plays might be produced next year.

One of his plays, "The Dying Leaves," is a two act serious drama about a business man who is confronted with firing many people in order to get "new blood" in the company for which he works. The play shows the effects of the firing on the man who is forced to do it and on his family.

Benetier has written poetry for three or four years. He said that it concerns people he has met and things he has seen. He has never taken any poetry courses and has his own form.

Chi Phi Will Get Charter New Fraternity Becomes 24th

Chi Phi fraternity will receive its charter at a banquet May 25, making it the 24th fraternity at the University, according to Chi Phi President Gary Fricke.

The University chapter is the 35th Chi Phi house in the nation, and will be known as the Alpha Theta Chi chapter after a local fraternity which became the first Chi Phi fraternity on this campus. The fraternity was chartered in 1932 and disbanded in 1942, during World War II.

The fraternity pledged 15 men last year, and activated them in the spring. Present membership of the chapter is 20 actives and 10 pledges.

In order to obtain a charter on this campus under Interfraternity Council (IFC) rules, a house must have been a colony for two semesters with an average of over 5.0, a house and at least 30 members. The Chi Phis currently lease the old Zeta Beta Tau house at the corner of 14th and R Streets.

Miss Ensor, Wiley Win 'Scrip' Writing Contests

Linda Ensor and Stuart Wiley Jr., were announced winners of the SCRIP Poetry and Short Story Contest, by Susan Stanley Wolk, the magazine's editor.

Wiley, a member of Phi Gamma Delta fraternity, won $25 for his short story, "Fella," which appears in the spring issue of SCRIP. An English major in the College of Arts and Sciences, he appeared in the Winter 1963-64 issue of the magazine.

Miss Ensor is a sophomore in Arts and Sciences, majoring in English and psychology. She was awarded the $25 poetry prize for her group of four poems which are published in the current issue. A member of Tri Deltis, she is being published for the third consecutive issue of SCRIP.

The magazine is being sold at three campus book stores, as well as in the Union main booth and the English Dept. office.

Other students appearing in the campus literary magazine, which is in its seventh year, include:

Poetry: Dawn Richardson Barnett, Vern Barnett, P. A. Drake, Dennis Fritzing, Janet Mach, Gary Matson, Richard Meier, Winston Blue Napier, Ray Shepard, Roy Scheele, and Stuart Wiley Jr.

Short Stories: Winston Blue

Miss Nebraska Contest: NU Coeds May Compete

What girl wouldn't like to win a ten day, all expense paid trip to Miami, a complete dance course from Arthur Murray, a fire opal necklace and matching earrings, one year of free hair settings and manicures, a $300 wardrobe, a large trophy and a modeling course from Bette Bonn?

All she has to do is win the Miss Nebraska Contest.

There is no talent needed, this contest is based strictly on face, form, poise and personality. Girls between 18 and 26 years old and unmarried are eligible. She must also have lived in Nebraska for at least six months (attending the University for six months fills this requirement).

To enter the Miss Nebraska contest which will be held June 6 at the Lincoln State Fair Grounds, girls must compete in local contests. For girls at the University this can be done in a variety of ways. They can either enter the Miss Lincoln contest which will be held May 29 or find some sponsors from their home town so that they can enter the Miss Nebraska contest as, for instance, Miss York or Miss Scottsbluff. Girls whose natural home is Lincoln must enter the Lincoln contest before they can go to the state contest.

View . . .

terly would not be allowed to find expression for their beliefs in such institutions as the Republican Party.

Mr. Rogowski states, "If it is reasonable to judge Goldwater's supporters by their major organs NATIONAL REVIEW and HUMAN EVENTS they place themselves outside that center by their steady advocacy of the suppression of dissent." This statement, especially in regard to the NATIONAL REVIEW is a lie. I publicly challenge Mr. Rogowski to produce ample proof that NATIONAL REVIEW has ever advocated denying anyone of his Constitutional rights.

Turtle Doves Run In Boston Race

The First Annual Olympic Turtle Dash Marathon was held last week at Northeastern University, Boston, Mass. Hundreds of students attended the marathon which had over thirty contestants. The NORTHEASTERN NEWS carried descriptions of each entrant. Some of them were, Y. A. Turtle, Helen of Turdie, Mandy Vice Davies, Horn and Aristurtle.

English students at the University of South Carolina at Columbia gave William Shakespeare a 400th birthday party "amid enough revelry to make his good Queen Bess' turn chartreuse with envy," according to THE GAMECOCK campus newspaper. The cultural commemoration began with a seven course meal of "cakes and ale."

On a menu headed "Bear's Head Special," such goodies as Docettes (custard tarts) and Chewettes were listed. These dishes came from true Elizabethan recipes. The recipe for Chewettes was:

"Take figs and grind them all raw in a mortar, and cast a little rendered oil thereto; and then take them up in a vessel and cast thereto pines . . . put the stuff in round coffins (i.e. pastry shells . . . and fry them in good oil."

How did Shakespeare ever survive?

It's John Week at the University of Illinois. The DAILY ILLINI reported a group of

Students have started "John Week" to bring about improvement changes in the john.

The "John Week" Coordinating Committee is concerned with making the john a place to not only brush teeth, wash, etc., but also "to meet friends, talk, sing and act as a forum of free thought and expression."
