Four well-known professional soloists will join the University's 650 voice choral union and 75-piece symphony orchestra Sunday in a performance of the finale movement of Beethoven's "Ninth Symphony."

The soloists will be Cecilia Ward, Mary Jennings, Howard Fried and John Fiorito.

The Symphony, under the direction of Emanuel Wishnow, chairman of the department of music, will be held at 8 p.m. in the Coliseum.

Miss Ward, a messo-soprano from New York City, has been on tour recently with the NBC-TV Opera, and has sung leading roles with the San Francisco, Chicago and New York City opera companies. Miss Ward is usually billed as one of the outstanding young musical careerists in America and has appeared in special performances of most of the major symphony orchestras in the United States.

Miss Jennings is a lyric soprano with the New York City Opera Company. She is a recipient of the Ford grant for opera singers and won national recognition for her roles of Musetta and Mimi in "La Boheme." She turned down a movie career after winning the Miss Arkansas Pageant.

Fried, a tenor with the New York City Opera Company, has appeared in many world and Amelcan premiers, and his repertoire exceeds 70 roles. Some of his best known accomplishments include the leading parts in Prolofieff's "War and Peace," with the NBC Company.

Fiorito is a bass-baritone with the New York City Opera Company who has played often in Carnegie Hall and who was a soloist with the Westchester Symphony orchestra. He is remembered especially for his recent role of Belfier in Verdi's "Un Giorne di Regno."

In addition to "Beethoven's Ninth," the choral union, orchestra and solosits will perform Kodaly's "Te Deum.'

The 650 voice choral union is made up of the Madrigal Singers, University Singers and Chorus I, II and III. Wishnow will be assisted by professors John Moran, Earl Jenkins and Richard Grace.

Diekhoff Elected Head

Louella Diekhoff was elected president of the University of Nebraska Office Personnel Association at a banquet last night. Vice-Chancellor and Mrs. Adam Breckenridge were special guests.

The Nebraska association, which is affiliated with the Association of Educational Secretaries, has 86 members.

Other officers elected were Darlene Leewenstein, vice-president; Dona Grove, treasurer; Lorene Haldman, recording secretary, and Marjorie Seidel, corresponding secretary.

The organization of secretaries and office personnel was formed on the campus two years ago. They meet monthly and have toured many of the buildings on campus.

Last November, they cosponsored a regional conference at the Nebraska Center. Recently nine members attended another regional conference in St. Paul, Minn.

Hours Extended For CSU Coeds

Coeds at Colorado State University (CSU) have been granted extended hours and housing priviledges through the revision of three rules by the Associated Women Students (AWS) which were approved by the college's administration.

The changes allow women students over 21 to chose their own housing, extend closing hours for all university housing from 10 to 11 p.m. and let coeds choose their own two o'clock nights. The new rules will go into effect in September, according to Dean of Students Burns Crookston.

CSU women now have to live in university-approved housing until they are 23.

Also in the changes is a provision changing the method of selecting AWS representatives from election to appointment by application and interview. Under the new plan, representatives will be chosen in the spring rather than being elected in the fall.

Poultry Men To Discuss Waste Tests

Research work conducted by University poultry scientists on the utlization of lagoons for poultry waste disposal is being outlined at a national meeting here yesterday and today.

Dr. John Adams, chairman of the department of poultry science, will report on "Experiences with Hydraulic Manure Systems," at the second National Symposium on Poultry Waste Management. University researchers conducted the first work in this field reported by an agricultural experiment station, studies getting underway in 1959.

Nebraska experiments have shown that a cubage allowance of 3.5 cubic feet per bird will afford enough capacity for under-floor pits to provide for two-year intervals between cleanouts. Adams also will discuss the pumping, agitation and other features of a manure pit design for poultry operations.

A tour, open to persons attending the symposium and to any other interested poultrymen, will be held at 7:30 a.m. today.
