Six Gold Medals

Nebraska's starting second-place challenge to champion Kansas in the Big Eight Track and Field Championships at Stillwater, Okla., had track buffs scrambling for the record book.

Coach Frank Sevigne's Cornhuskers were the sensation of the title chase, grabbing six gold medals and amassing 105 points — all after a dismal sixth-place at the loop indoor last winter.

It was a case of too many chiefs and not enough Indians as the Jayhawks poured on the depth to pile up 126 points. Coach Bill Easton's toughies managed only two gold medals.

This difference between first places and final ranking prompted Nebraska fans to wonder if this was the first time a team had ever won six gold medals and failed to win the title.

No sir! But you have to go back to 1955 for a comparison. That spring Kansas and Oklahoma both copped six blue ribbons, but the Jayhawks snared their fourth straight championship with 173 points.

Another question: Has a team ever won the conference title while winning fewer gold medals than another club in the race?

A resounding yes! And, ironically, that team was the Nebraska Cornhuskers.

Last Title In '50

Back in 1950 — the last time the Scarlet and Cream bagged an outdoor title — Nebraska won the title with 105 3/4 points while nabbing only three blue ribbons. Harry Meginnis, now a Lincoln car agency executive, won the 100 and 220 and Bob Berkshire, now an Omaha attorney, copped the 120-yard high hurdles.

Kansas, by the way, out-firsted the Huskers with four gold medals. Jayhawk firsts came from Bob Karnes (mile), Herb Semper (2-mile), Jack Greenwood (low hurdles), and the mile relay. Oklahoma it can be noted, actually equalled the NU total by winning the 440 (Charles Coleman), the 880 (Bill Jacobs) and the pole vault (current Sooner coach Bill Carroll).

While history wasn't given a severe jolt by the 1964 Cornhuskers, their performance at Stillwater rates as one of the school's top comeback efforts and possibly the Huskers' most impressive maximum efforts.

Brooks High Scorer

Of the 13 NU qualifiers in Friday's semifinals, 12 scored points — with five qualifiers winning gold medals, one gaining second and a trio landing third places.

Victor Brooks led the Husker surge with wins in the broad jump and triple jump, plus a key leg on the NU 440-relay team that ran a dead-head (record time of :40.5) with winner Colorado. And Brooks had to improve his Friday broad jump in the finals to win. So did Juris Jesifers in the same event, coming up with his career best of 23-2 1/2 to take sixth.

Credit Lynn Headley with star status too. He supplied a stunner by whipping Oklahoma Olympian Anthony Watson in the 100, taking third in the intermediate hurdles and running a 440 relay leg.

Other Nebraska gold medals were supplied by Kent McCloughan in the 220 (after judges ruled him out of the top four spots in the blanket finish of the 100-yard dash semifinals) in a career best of :21.3. Dave Crook in the 440 with a career best of :47.0 and the mile relay which streaked home in 3:10.9.

All in all it was one of the happiest days in Sevigne's sparkling career as the Cornhusker head man.

"I couldn't have been more proud of the way our boys met the challenge," Sevigne said. "They were just tremendous — everyone performed up to their maximum or better, all a coach can ask. I am as proud of this team as I would have been if they had won the title."

Outstanding Athlete Awards

Nominations have been opened for outstanding varsity and intramural athletes. I would like to see more nominations come in; thus far only two nominations have been received. There are plenty of athletes who would be just as deserving of the awards as the two nominated in today's paper.

Deadline for the nominations is next Monday, May 25. Selection of the recipients will be announced in the May 29th issue of the DAILY NEBRASKAN.

So, come on students, think of the athletes you would like to see honored. Instead of griping about why doesn't somebody nominate your favorite as you sit in the union having a coke, get busy and write the letter yourself. Names of those making nominations are kept strictly confidential and will not be published. However, the NEBRASKAN reserves the right to print parts of nominating letters.

Tigers Clinch Conference; Huskers Try For Sixth

Big Eight baseball teams wind up their seasons this week and next as the only position which seems to be secured is first place.

Powerful Mizzou, three-time victor over Nebraska this past weekend, is now coasting along with a 18-0 conference slate and a 21-3 over-all slate.

They just squeaked by Kansas, 2-1, 2-0, in a doubleheader Monday and they finish up their season against the Jayhawks today.

Iowa State holds onto second place somewhat precariously as they finish their season at Oklahoma.

If Colorado can sweep a series from last place Kansas State while ISU downs the Sooners, then the Buffs could ease into a fourth place tie with OU.

By beating Oklahoma State in three games at Lincoln, the Huskers could move into sixth place easily with a 7-14 record.

The Huskers meet the Cowboys in a doubleheader on Monday and a single game on Tuesday.

Two Athletes Vie For Award

Two nominations, one for outstanding intramural athlete and one for outstanding varsity athlete, have been received by the DAILY NEBRASKAN sports staff.

Dick Callahan has received the first nomination for intramural athlete of the year.

Callahan is past president of Sigma Chi.

The first nomination for outstanding varsity athlete goes to Dennis Claridge, on the Huskers' 1963 football team.

"As first-string quarterback of Nebraska's football team for the past two years, Claridge has demonstrated playing ability, sportsmanship and classroom achievement," the letter nominating him reads. "On the football field, his value cannot be questioned. With a record-breaking combination of passing and running, he led the Huskers to their second place Big Eight finish in 1962 and their Orange Bowl win last year. Claridge defense.

"Claridge's ability for the big play, though, marks him as a real outstanding athlete, who can forget his magic last minute drive that beat North Carolina State in 1962; his long pass to Tony Jeter in mural athlete of the year. Callahan, better known by most of the students for his gridiron exploits as an end on last year's Big Eight championship team, also has participated for four years in intramural track, basketball and softball.

Callahan this year aided his house, Sigma Chi, to second places in the All-University track and basketball standings. In addition, the Sigma Chis won the fraternity division in basketball.

In this year's track meet, Callahan placed third in the one-lap run and ran a leg on the Sigma Chi mile relay team which placed first in the fraternity division. He has also in the past run the open 440 and 880.

A guard on the Sigma Chi basketball team, Callahan helped boost his team to the All-University championship finals. He plays centerfield with the softball team.

the fourth quarter that topped Minnesota; his key fourth down passes and runs against Oklahoma and his career best — that 64 yard touchdown jaunt that temporarily demoralized Auburn in the Orange Bowl?" the letter concludes.
