

Chi Omegas, Farmhouse Top Scholars

FarmHouse, with a 6.209 average, and Chi Omega, with a 6.453 average, were tops scholastically among men's and women's living units for the second semester of the 1963-64 school year.

Chi Omega has been one of the scholastic leaders among women's units for several years, and this marked FarmHouse's 24th straight semester as the men's leader. Chi Omega President Lynn Schrader gave credit to a good scholastic program in her house as the reason for its success. Dennis Swanson, FarmHouse president, attributed "attitude, atmosphere, and selection" as the reasons for his house's continued excellence.

Many living units came up scholastically and helped push the semester's all university average to a mark of 5.508. This resulted from an all female average of 5.877 and an all male average of 5.327. The all Greek average last semester was 5.790, with the all sorority average 6.141 and the all fraternity average 5.545. The all women's residence average was 5.688, and the all men's residence average was 5.148.

A breakup of the houses into scholastic groups showed:

Miss Smithberger Edits

Daily Nebraskan Announces Staff

This year's editor of the Daily Nebraskan is Susan Smithberger who is a senior in journalism and is beginning her third year on the paper.

Managing editor is Richard Halbert, a senior in journalism. Frank Partsch is the news editor and is a junior in journalism.

Priscilla Mullins is the senior staff writer and is also in journalism.

There are six junior staff writers and they are: Travis Hiner, economics major, pre-law; Wallis Lundeen, journalism; Jim Korshoj, business; Marilyn Hoegemeyer, journalism; Mark Plattner, journalism and political science; and Barry Abrams, also in journalism.

Circulation To Houses

The Daily Nebraskan will be distributed in living units this year, instead of in classroom buildings.

Due to traffic problems and the fact that many students were taking more than one paper, a new circulation system will be tried out this fall.

The paper will be distributed to all living units on city and ag campuses, the Coliseum, the Administration Building, and the Nebraska Union and Ag Campus Union.

Copy editors are Kay Mattison, journalism; Susie Rutter, Spanish and political science; and Lee Marshall, history.

The photographers this year are Rich Eiser, chemistry major, and Larry Jenkins who is in electrical engineering. Ag news editor is Larry Leistritz who is in agriculture.

Sports editor is Peggy Speece, a senior in journalism and sports assistant is Bob Samuelson whose major is English.

The business end of the Daily Nebraskan is headed by the business manager, Mike Jeffrey who is a marketing major in pre-law. Business assistants are Bob Ledoyt, political science; Buzz Madison, pre-med; Scott Rynearson, Arts and Science.

The circulation manager is Lynn Rathjen and subscription manager is Jim Dick who is in architecture.

Home Ec Center Opens

A new home economics service center which will provide basic courses in consumer education to non-home economic majors opened this fall in Raymond Hall.

Mrs. Virginia Trotter, associate dean of the College of Agriculture and Home Economics, described the new home economics teaching area as "a non-lab facility where students in other disciplines, as well as home ec majors, can gain an understanding of the need for improved homes and better living for all families."

Activities Marts Open Wednesday

The Associated Women Students Upperclass Activities Mart will be held Wednesday from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. in the conference room of the Nebraska Union.

Upperclassmen may sign up for activities they wish to participate in during the second semester. Representatives will be at the mart to explain their organizations.

October 14 is the date set for the freshman activities mart, as freshmen are not allowed to participate in any organization until after the fourth week of school.

Both men and women will be able to take the courses which include home management, finance, marriage and family and child development courses.

Bryan Heads Housing Plan

A new cog has been created in the University's administrative wheel. The new position, director of university services, is held by M. Edward Bryan.

Bryan coordinates the activities of the residence halls, the directors and student assistants with the administration, thereby freeing the associate deans to work in other areas.

'Here We Go Again'

With everything but the kitchen sink Ron Douglas is typical of the thousands of University students who arrived on campus last week. Over two thirds of an estimated 12,500 students will live on campus.

Termed Unqualified Success Panhellenic, IFC 'No-In-U' Night Features Folk Singers, Free Cokes

Anticipating free cokes, free games and a good time, 2,000 students attended the Interfraternity Council (IFC) —Panhellenic "No-In-U" party at the Student Union last Monday.

The program, planned by the IFC and Panhellenic was designed primarily for the freshmen. It was hoped that in this way the new freshmen would be able to meet one another and get acquainted with the facilities at the Union.

Vice Chancellor G. Robert Ross, dean of Student Affairs

James Hornsby, night manager of the Union said that the group was very well behaved, and that the program was an unqualified success.

tolerance of individual differences."

Representatives from each hall will form a food committee who will make suggestions for change to the food service. "We hope to please the individual and always welcome a proposal for change or constructive criticism," Bryan said.

An intensive orientation was held for the student assistants last week with emphasis on understanding the philosophy of counseling and social psychology.

2,200 New Students Attend Convocation

Chancellor Clifford Hardin Friday asked new students to prepare themselves for the serious business of college and the responsibilities of life.

Hardin welcomed 2,200 students at the All New Students Convocation at the Coliseum. "You are entering the University at a time more changing and more exciting than any previous class," the chancellor said.

on being the "largest and best prepared" in the history of the University and visioned greater opportunities after graduation than for any previous class.

"The University is more than a school, it is an atmosphere or climate for learning that includes some of the nation's most outstanding scholars and scientists," Hardin said a student with initiative could count on the help of the University and with this help succeed in a college career.

The chancellor concluded his talk by asking the students to take college for the serious business that it is and to prepare themselves for the responsibility that is theirs.

Registration By Mail Speeds NU Enrollment

A record number of students began classes at the University today, according to Registrar Floyd Hoover.

Late registrations are still coming in and an estimate of the final enrollment figure is impossible now, Hoover said. "Every time I look into the crystal ball, I end up behind the 8 ball," he commented.

Except for late registrants, this fall's record enrollment had an easy time registering. For the first time the process was handled by mail during the summer.

Although an occasional student ran into difficulties with the new system, Hoover said the majority welcomed its introduction.

"The new system does require greater administrative effort," Hoover said, "but it's spread out over the entire summer, and, if it pleases the student, it's worth it."

A problem common to most registering students was failure to receive new ID cards during the summer. The cards, held up in printing, were received by the end of last week.

Hoover said continued use of the new program appears to be a certainty, but efforts will be made to make it still easier for the student.

John Lydick, Student Council president, urged the students that what they did in the next four years would influence their whole lives. He stressed the importance of working well with others while striving for academic excellence.

Lee Chatfield, associate dean of Student Affairs and director of the Junior Division, closed the program with general orientation.

Sorority Returns To NU

Reorganization of the Sigma Delta Tau Sorority was approved by Panhellenic Thursday. The Sorority had originally been founded on campus in May of 1925 and two years ago it was disbanded and is now beginning to reorganize. The sorority was housed in the present Alpha Tau Omega annex which the sorority has rented to the Alpha Tau Omegas for two years.

Present at the reorganization meeting was the Sigma Delta Tau National Second Vice President Mrs. Abner Klein of Peoria, Ill. Also present were National Secretary Mrs. Charles Chapelle of Evanston, Ill. and the National Academics Chairman Mrs. Stuart Goldberg from Lincoln.

New Dental School Possibility

Senate OK's Funds

The University may soon begin construction on a new $4.5 million dental school, according to Dr. Ralph Ireland, dean of the College of Dentistry.

The possibility of the new school was a partial result of the Senate Appropriations Committee's $110,782,000 to assist the nation's medical and dental colleges. Federal approval of the new University Dental College is expected in one or two months, according to Ireland.

If the new school is approved, it will be located at the Ag campus instead of the city campus. Because of the change in the location of the school, Ag campus will probably lose its name. One of the new names up for consideration is Lincoln East Campus.

Drummers Debut In Halftime Show

High stepping drummers made their debut in the University Marching Band Saturday afternoon in the first of several innovations planned for the halftime football entertainment this fall.

Eight snare drummers wore special rigs to keep the drums high on their chests and to allow them to step out high and fancy.

Jack Snider, band director, explained, "The drummers always have been hampered in smart marching because of the traditional method of resting the drums on the left leg. We decided to experiment and try something new."

Construction of the college should begin sometime next spring or summer and should be finished by 1967. This project will expand the present dental college enrollment by 20 per cent or from 35 to 56. The present Dental School has been housed on the third floor of Andrews Hall since 1928.

State Senator Marvin Stromer, chairman of the Legislative Council's Committee on Higher Education, said approval of the new school by the federal government is very good because the University has been planning ahead and the Nebraska Legislature has enacted legislation that will provide a sizable part of the funding for the new school. The newly increased mill levy in Nebraska will provide $1,750,000 for the school and the federal government will provide the rest.

Sig Eps Announce Miss Rush Week

Kathy Dworak was crowned Saturday night as Miss Rush Week, 1964.

A Pi Beta Phi freshman from Lincoln, Miss L. Sworak was crowned at the Miss Rush Week Dance held in the Union ballroom. About 1500 people attended the dance which is sponsored annually by Sigma Phi Epsilon.
