Student Rally Spirit Boosts Cornhuskers To Saturday Victory

One - thousand Cornhusker supporters gathered on the north steps of the Union Friday afternoon for the first pep rally of the season.

The cheers were led by yelling Don Theophilus along with cheerleaders Rica Patton and F. C. Green. This year's Pom-Pom girls are Becky Haas, Georgia Merriam, Sandy Stefanis, Karen Beggs, Carolyn Daubert, Gene Barber, Linda Keating and Diane Focht.

Coach Bob Devaney thanked the students for their support and told them a team cannot survive without this support. Co-captains Lyle Sittler and Bob Hohn also spoke and Sittler promised the team would not let the record of the last two years die. According to Janell Quaring, Tassels rally chairman, students can be ready for much activity on the rally scene. Coming attractions are the introduction of homecoming queen candidates on Oct. 9, a pre-migration rally the 21st, a bonfire before the Missouri game and the wrecking of a Sooner covered wagon prior to the Oklahoma game.

Foreign Students Welcomed

Ross Greets Newcomers

New foreign students were welcomed Friday at an all-day session to acquaint them with the University.

Vice Chancellor and Dean of Student Affairs G. Robert Ross invited the students to teach the other students and the citizens of Lincoln about their countries.

"Maintain your own values, faiths, and thinking," he told them. "It is your job to help us learn something about you."

The students also heard explanations of the services offered by the Student Health Center, represented by Miss Celeste Knipmeyer, and the Foreign Student Office, represented by Leslie Sheffield, foreign student adviser.

Mrs. Olga Stepanek of the English department said that all incoming students, regardless of backgrounds, in English, are required to take English tests. Tests will be given at 4:30 p.m. today, Wednesday and Friday in Andrews Hall. All students must take all three tests unless they have an official waiver.

Audubon Films Depict Wildlife

The first of five Audubon wildlife films scheduled at the University during the 1964-65 school year will be shown September 28, at 4 and 8 p.m. in Love Library auditorium.

The production, "Bear River" depicts a 650-mile river journey through the mountains and woodlands of Utah, Wyoming and Idaho.

The film's director and narrator, Allan D. Cruickshank, a noted Florida naturalist and photographer, captures more than 40 species of birds and animals on the film.

Other Audubon productions scheduled for the school year are:

"Our Changing Heritage," by Emerson Scott. The film deals with sheep land in the western United States on Oct. 26.

"Inherit the Wild," by D. J. Nelson. A collection of intimate studies of natural wildlife, with emphasis on eagles, whooping cranes and geese on Dec. 2.

"Northwest to Alaska," by Walter Berlet. A study of mountain goats, sheep, wolves, moose and the wolverine on Jan. 6, 1965.

"For Generations to Come," by Howard Orlans. A study of conservation success in Wisconsin and a lumberjack festival at Haward, Wis. on Feb. 12, 1965.

Tickets may be purchased at the University Extension Division, the State Museum, and Miller and Paine's.

ber of Commerce, welcomed the international students to Lincoln, and described some of the educational, business, and cultural opportunities in the city.

The Better Business Bureau director, Arnold Magnusen, defined the operation of his organization. He encouraged the foreign students to be cautious in buying a used car. He advised that they inspect the car on the lot, thoroughly understand the terms of the written contract, and check with the BBB if there was any question.

Mrs. Russell Ritzman, chairman of the Host Family program, which plans activities for foreign students and Lincoln families, and Mrs. N. L. Munson, of the University Faculty Women's Friendship Group, invited the students to participate in their events.

Wallace Reports Gains In Economic Education

A number of substantial gains in a program started last year to improve the economic literacy of Nebraska young people has been reported by Dr. E. S. Wallace, director of the University Bureau of Business Research.

Writing in the September issue of "Business in Nebraska," Wallace reported the newly-formed Nebraska Council on Economic Education is concentrating on efforts to improve the teaching of economic concepts at the secondary school level.

Wallace explained that members of the Council, made up of 64 prominent leaders in agriculture, business, education and labor, hope to increase the understanding of our free enterprise economic system among young people.

In the first year of operation, the Council has:

-Elected a chairman, Dr. Randall Klemme of Omaha; a vice-chairman, Dean C. S. Miller of the University of Nebraska, and a treasurer, E. Wood Thompson of Lincoln.

-Initiated summer workshops for secondary teachers to help them start economic educational programs in their respective schools;

-Held special conferences for public school administrators to enlist their interest and support to revise curricula to include the teaching of economic concepts;

-Conducted in-service education programs for teacher-chairman of the Nebraska International Association, and Cassie Wild, chairman of People to People.

Farouk Muwakkil, an international student from Syria, welcomed the new students, and encouraged them to use their study and leisure time wisely.

Rhodes Scholarships Open For Competition

Elections to Rhodes Scholarships will be held in all states in December, 1964. Those students selected will enter Oxford University in October, 1965.

Eligibility of candidates rests on these qualifications:

1. Be a male citizen of the

Marines Schedule Union Interview

The Marine Corps Officer Selection Team will be in the main lounge of the Student Union on Sept. 21, 22 and 23 to interview interested students.

There are three officer training programs, none of which require on campus training, reserve meetings or drills during the school year. Those interested are asked to see Captain Bedaker during his stay on campus.

United States, with at least five years' domicile, and unmarried. A Rhodes Scholarship is forfeited by marriage after election, or during a Scholar's first year of residence. Subject to certain conditions the Rhodes Trustees may continue the payment of the Scholarship if a Scholar marries after his first year at Oxford.

4. Receive official endorsement of his college or university.

Qualities forming the basis of selection are:

1. Literary and scholastic ability and attainments; 2. Qualities of manhood, truthfulness, courage, devotion to duty, sympathy for and protection of the weak, kindness, unselfishness, and fellowship;

3. Exhibition of moral force of character, and of instincts to lead and to take an interest in his fellows;

4. Physical vigor as shown by fondness for and success in sports.

Quality of both character and intellect is the most important requirement for a Rhodes Scholarship, and this is what the committees will seek.

A candidate may apply either in the state in which he resides or in the state in which he may have received at least two years of his college education. Applications must be in the hands of the secretary of the state committee not later than Nov. 2, 1964. The names and address of secretaries of state committees of selection are printed in the Memorandum of Regulations.

New Student Week Changes Draw Praise

By Priscilla Mullens Senior Staff Writer

Over 1,200 entering freshmen and their parents visited the University campus this summer at the invitation of the University administration.

The new program, a last-minute idea of University officials to eliminate the rush of New Student Week, was brought about through the efforts of Vice Chancellor G. Robert Ross, dean of the Division of Student Affairs.

Students and parents visited the campus for a day-and-half program introducing them to the various aspects of University life. The program was carried out over five weeks this summer, with about 100 students participating per day.

Upon arriving at the campus, students were divided into groups according to their colleges. In these smaller groups they could ask questions about academic work and University life in general. They also finished details of registration.

Assisting in the program were upperclassmen and some June graduates. According to Ross, it was through the efforts of these upperclassmen that made the program successful.

The parents' program was similar to that of the students. Parents were introduced to the aims of the University, staff members, and students. They could ask questions concerning clothing costs, rules, and procedures.

Parents saw a television classroom, and were introduced to University history by Dr. Robert Manley, assistant professor of history.

The program centered around giving more personal attention to students and their parents than they would receive at the usual New Student Week in the fall.

John Aronson, Director of Admissions, said "The parents appeared amazed at the personal attention they received."

The evaluations filled out by freshmen at the end of the program showed that "they were quite interested in the program, and seemed to benefit from it," according to Ross.

As one freshman put it, "I feel so much better about coming to the University this fall since I already am familiar with everything. I also got a chance to buy my books this summer, so I don't have to worry about that now."

With the present success of the orientation program, Ross said that by next year the administration hopes to drop all but about a day of New Student Week in favor of the summer program.

"The program is designed to make the transition from high school to college a smoother and more effective one for both students and parents," said Ross.

Stan Getz

Stan Getz Quintet Featured In Jazz Festival At Sheldon

The steps of Sheldon Memorial Art Gallery will be the scene Friday of a jazz festival featuring the Stan Getz Quintet and Astrud Gilberto.

This program is the first in the Fine Arts Convocation series, a new program sponsored by the Student Union and the Faculty Senate convocation committee.

The jazz festival will begin at 3:30 p.m. on the steps of the art gallery. Admission to this program and all programs in the series is free. In case of inclement weather, the program will be held at the same time in the Coliseum.

Richard Scott, Assistant Program Manager for the Union said other participants in the program are the Romeros, a Spanish flamenco group Air Force secretary Eugene Zukert, the Dutton percussion trio and a French vocal group.

The programs will be held throughout the year.
