

Convocation Tomorrow

Several thousand students and townspeople are expected to hear a major address by Secretary of the Air Force Eugene Zuckert at an all-University convocation tomorrow morning.

He will discuss the role of the U.S. Air Force in the defense of the free world at 11:30 a.m. in the Coliseum. The event is open to the public and all University classes will be dismissed so the students can attend the convocation.

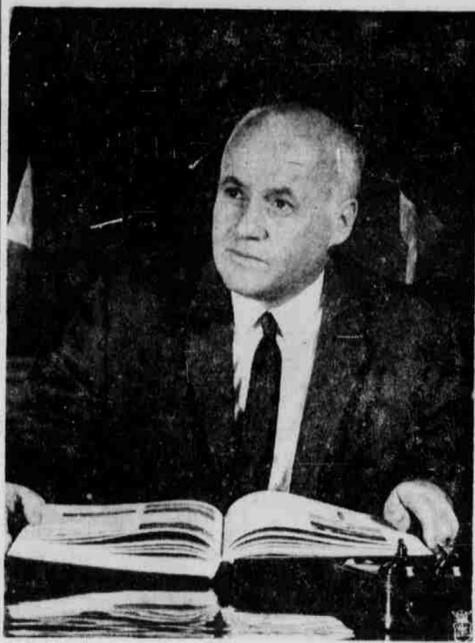

Zuckert will arrive at Lincoln Air Force Base Friday morning. During the two-day visit to Lincoln, he will meet with University Air Force ROTC students and Lincoln officials. He will be introduced at the Nebraska-Kansas State football game Saturday afternoon.

Zuckert has demonstrated a firm commitment to the advancement of aerospace through instruction at various levels of our educational structure. He has served as Secretary of the Air Force since 1961.

A native of New York City, Zuckert has earned recognition as an authority on aerospace research and development, especially in areas designed to strengthen our system of defense.

He has maintained an interest in Nebraska's contributions to this effort.

Student Council Posts Deadline On Grad College Representative

By Priscilla Mullins
Senior Staff Writer

Applications for Student Council graduate representative should be turned in to Bob Kerry at the Council office in the Student Union by 4 p.m. Monday.

The letter of application should include qualifications, activities and the reason the applicant is interested in being on Student Council. Applicants will be interviewed by the Council, which will choose the new representative.

Anyone in law, pharmacy, dental or any other graduate college is eligible.

It was announced at the Student Council meeting yesterday that the delegates for the convention should be selected by tomorrow. Their names will be announced early next week, and a report on the Convention will be given at the Council meeting on Wednesday.

Bill Coufal announced that May 4 has been set for the honors convocation next spring, instead of April 13, as was previously announced.

Newly-elected associates were present at the meeting yesterday. Sue Graham announced that they will have their first meeting Oct. 21.

Larry Frolik raised the question of why the prices for events at Pershing Auditorium have been increasing.

Shirley Voss, Union representative on the Council answered that the prices for the Harry Belafonte show are probably higher because Belafonte requires larger percentage than other performers have, and the Union must still get back the money it puts into sponsoring the program.

John Luckasen asked Miss Voss how much the Union makes on such shows. She said she hesitated answering because it might not be her place to tell the Council this, but said that the Union gained about 20% of the total ticket receipts on the New Christy Minstrels show.

In other Council business, Jack Schaffer was sworn in as the new representative from Cather Hall.

Oct. 28 has been set as the date for the mock election to be held on campus. There will be ballots for the presidential, gubernatorial, and legislative tickets in Nebraska.

Bob Kerry told Council members that he is working on getting a sign at 14th and R Streets to identify the city campus, just as the East Campus is identified.

Parking Committee Chairman Bill Poppert told the Council that five appeals were made this week to his committee.

Of these, three concerned motorcycle drivers, and the fact that they felt that they should not have to pay the $5 parking sticker fee. Poppert said that his committee felt that with the abundance of parking spaces for motorcycles, and the fact that they do not have to use meters, there were no grounds for their objections.

Columbia Extends Study Fellowship To Woman Grad

A graduate fellowship for study at Columbia University is available to a woman, graduating or graduated from the University of Nebraska, who wishes to prepare for a college teaching career.

The Leta Stetter Hollingworth Fellowship has been made available by the estate of Harry L. Hollingworth through the trustees of Columbia University.

The fellowship will pay all tuition and fees and carries a maximum stipend for 1965-66 of $1800. It is renewable.

In making the selection, preference will be given to a woman born in or receiving the early part of her education in Nebraska.

Interested students should secure application forms in the Graduate College Office, 306 Administration Building. The deadline date for the receipt of completed applications by Columbia University is January 4, 1965.

'Must Upgrade Politics'

...Morrison Tells YD's

By Frank Partsch
News Editor

Gov. Frank Morrison last night told the University Young Democrats (YD's) the greatest challenge faced today is to upgrade politics.

Speaking before 160 people at the Student Union, the governor said, "We must prove we have the sense of dignity and responsibility not to make charges and accusations without bringing them into the open."

Mrs. Stewart Udall, wife of the secretary of the interior, and Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt, Jr. also spoke at the meeting. They were visiting the state as part of a "Flying Caravan" of Democratic wives campaigning throughout the country.

The governor said he has been offered support from Republicans who wished not to be identified; that some Democrats could not be politically active without losing business.

"I know a druggist who was threatened with boycott for being a Democrat," he said.

"What problem was ever solved by talking about the faults of others?"

"John Kennedy worked to make politics the noblest of human expressions rather than the crudest," he said.

Morrison called on the YD's to contact faculty members, students and members of the Young Republicans to gain their support in a political awakening "that will shake this campus from end to end."

Calling the upcoming election the most crucial since the Civil War, Morrison said "There is no more difference between the present Republican Party and the party of Abraham Lincoln and Teddy Roosevelt than there is between day and night."

He listed what he called the contributions of Lincoln and Roosevelt and said "when I say I support these principles, the only condemnation I get is from the leaders of the Republican Party in the state of Nebraska."

"This is no ordinary battle between Republicans and Democrats," the governor said. "It is a campaign between those trying to deprive us of our right to free discussion. It is important to you, because it will decide whether the world will be one of unlimited opportunity or unlimited chaos."

"We have more than a responsibility to win this election," he said. "We must win it with such a majority that no political party will ever again dare to nominate for the presidency of the United States a man who is not equipped with education, responsibility and devotion to unite and not divide people."

Morrison asked the crowd if they could possibly believe the federal government "bought with the blood of patriots" could be trying to take away their freedoms. His half hour speech was interrupted seven times by applause.

"The only thought control is not in government," he said. "It is found with those who aspire to political power."

Answering some of the issues of the current national campaign, Morrison said, "The power to destroy large parts of the world should be trusted to only the most sober and thoughtful of men."

"We must provide the facilities to develop skills and make the right to an education an accepted reality. Human rights are the only rights. Units of government have no inherent rights, and the most sacred thing in life is human rights."

"Lyndon Johnson wants to be president of all the people," Morrison said. "It is up to us to help him do so."

Mrs. Udall followed the governor with campaign plugs for Johnson and his running mate, Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota. She called Humphrey the "Happy Warrior," and said "It always gets my day off to a good start to see what witty thing he has said today."

She expressed enthusiasm for "All the wonderful Democratic candidates for state offices." "(Clair) Callan and (Dr. William) Colwell are wonderful," she said. "(Rep. Dave) Martin and (Rep. Dave) Beermann are unbelievable."

Callan and Colwell are seeking the Second and Third District seats presently held by Beermann and Martin.

Mrs. Udall asked the YD's to approach politics with a spirit of joy. "Nebraska politics is a wonderful thing," she said, "one of the high points of our trip."

Mrs. Roosevelt drew laughter from the crowd and the governor. While speaking of the conception many apathetic people have of politics, she said "Many think there is something s h o d d y about politics. They see the politician with his hand in the till or his brother-in-law on the payroll."

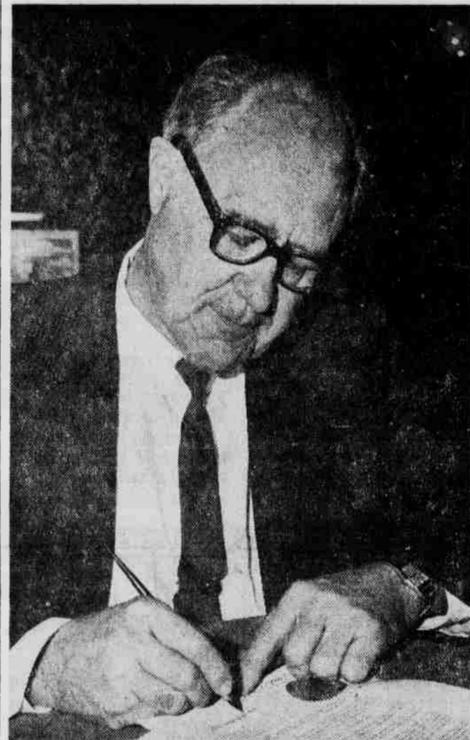

Morrison chuckled loudly, and Mrs. Roosevelt, apparently flustered, said "Heavens! Is yours?"

Mrs. Roosevelt credited the Kennedy-Johnson Administration "ending of the threat of war" with creating a better attitude among the youth of America. She said she noticed a better moral fiber and less delinquency than were prevalent ten years ago "when everyone expected the bomb at any time."

She called for a sound defeat of the Republican ticket to "destroy irresponsibility in the Republican Party."

YD President Karen Nelsen announced her resignation to work for the election of Callan to Congress. Bob Cherny would serve as chairman of the group until the new constitution is approved by Student Council, she said.

Also present at the meeting were Lee White, special assistant to the late President Kennedy and assistant to Johnson; Mrs. Frank Morrison; Maurine Biegert, Democratic national committee-woman; J. J. Exon, the president's Lincoln campaign coordinator; and Norm Krivosha, Lancaster County Democratic chairman.

—Spelling Must Improve—

J-School Holding Special Class

By Jim Korshoj
Junior Staff Writer

A special class in spelling is being held at the School of Journalism for the next seven weeks.

This class is a result of a new emphasis on the part of the J-School to improve the spelling of the Journalism students.

The class is held especially for all beginning journalism students who did not get a score of at least 70 per cent on a test they took shortly after school began. The test consisted of 150 spelling words and several grammatical and punctuation points.

The test was taken by all of the students in journalism 81, a required course for all beginning journalism students.

The test was administered by the spelling program's originator, Mrs. Emily Trickey. All students who did not score at least 70 per cent on the test were then asked to attend the weekly sessions of a special spelling course taught by Mrs. Trickey. Attendance at the class is entirely voluntary, however.

Aiding Mrs. Trickey with the planning and functioning of the spelling program is Neale Copple, associate professor of journalism.

"Our journalism school has built up a fine reputation across the country," said Copple. "Our students are known to be fine journalists when they graduate. However, the one weakness our students seem to share is poor spelling. We would like to correct this weakness if possible."

Mrs. Trickey drew up the spelling test which she gave the students. "The test words just came out of my head," she said. "They were common everyday words which I have seen misspelled time after time."

Original plans called for 80 per cent to be the passing score on the test. However when the tests were graded, the scores were so low that this was changed to 70 per cent.

One hundred twenty-nine students took the test. Of this number, 40 scored 80 per cent or above. 51 students scored between 70 and 80 per cent, while 38 received grades below 70. High score on the test was a 98.

Mrs. Trickey was not yet certain of the exact procedure she will follow in teaching the spelling class. "The main thing I hope to do is to make the students aware of words," she said.

"We are discovering that much of misspelling results from mispronunciation. For this reason we will attempt to emphasize spelling and pronunciation in the class," she said.

The first session of the spelling class was held last week. It was primarily an introduction to the purpose and goals of the classes including a review of the words on the test they had taken in journalism 81.

Seven more sessions of the class will be held with another test to be given at the sixth session. A final test will be given the last week.

Before the test was given to journalism 81 students, it was tried out by giving it to some high school classes and in some upperclass journalism courses.

"Although our present results are based on small samples, we have found no difference between the spelling abilities of juniors and seniors in high school and those of the same class standing in college. Juniors and seniors in college spell no better than college freshmen, and juniors and seniors in high school spell no worse," Copple said.

Copple and Mrs. Trickey plan to continue the testing and instructing each semester in an effort to improve the students' spelling. It is thought that the Wall Street Journal may provide funds to enlarge and improve the current program.

IFC Rush Book Ups Ad Prices By 20 Per Cent

Advertising for the Interfraternity Council (IFC) rush book will cost 20 per cent more this year.

The reason for the rise in rates is the increase in circulation. The book lost $1,655 last year. It was felt that by raising the price of advertising, the booklet would be able to pay for itself.

The newly elected officers of the Jr. IFC were announced. They are Larry Grossman, Sigma Alpha Mu, president; Steve Rosenquist, Sigma Chi, Vice-president; Glen Lockhart, Kappa Sigma, Secretary; and Jim Belmont, Delta Tau Delta, Treasurer.

The students who were granted waivers to be initiated before making a 5,000 grade average last year had a total grade average overall of 4.846. 50 per cent of the persons waived made a 5,000 during their first semester after activation.

A project was proposed where fraternity members would sell memberships in the Extra Point Club.

The membership cost $1. The selling of memberships would be stressed to both business men and students.

A proposal to give a plaque to the houses that attained 100 per cent membership in the Extra Point Club was discussed.

The tutoring program will get underway within the next two weeks. It was reported that chemistry, English, and zoology would be the courses that were offered. The possibility of tutoring students in languages was also discussed.

Christian Fellowship To Hold Fall Retreat

The Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship will hold its annual Fall Retreat, Oct. 23-25, at Polk.

"The Christian View of Sex and Morality" will be discussed. All University students are invited to attend. For further information contact Bob Pohlman at 5215 Selleck.

Last Minute Panic As Displays Take Shape

Blue, red and purple fingers, some 50,000 of them, are all involved in the last minute panic stuffing the remaining naked portions of chicken wire for homecoming.

All are preparing to whomp, stomp and stomp the Kansas State Wildcats with a variety of 23 house displays for the 1964 Homecoming celebration.

The traditional public viewing of the displays begins at 7 p.m. tomorrow. They will remain on view for several hours Saturday following the Nebraska-Kansas State football game.

Each year a special committee of judges award trophies to the residences, fraternities and sororities with the most original and best prepared displays. The event is sponsored by Innocents, senior men's honorary society.

University and Lincoln city police will direct traffic on the same route (see drawing) as in the past several years. All traffic will enter at 16th and R and will be directed ultimately to 12th and Vine.

In addition to those on the city campus, a number of displays will be constructed on the East Campus at Burr Hall, Fedde Hall, and 4013 Holdrege.
