Tickets Will Go On Sale For Harry Belafonte Act At Pershing Next Week

Tickets for the Harry Belafonte show will go on sale Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday in the Nebraska Union. Prices are $2.50, $3 and $3.50. These are the only days tickets will be sold. Block sales will be made Tuesday at 9 p.m. in the Union Program Office.

The all new Harry Belafonte show will begin at 8 p.m. Nov. 6 in Pershing Municipal Auditorium.

The show will feature the art of Belafonte, singing the songs of people from all over the world. The moods of his songs will range all the way from sweet ballads, to dramatic songs of history, to gay, fun-filled calypsos.

Miss Nana Mouskouri, a Greek singer, The Belafonte Singers, whom Belafonte founded over three years ago, and harmonist Sonny Terry and guitarist Brownie McGhee will join the show.

This college tour, the first in ten years, will bring Belafonte in contact with the young people.

"You can't expect audiences to remain enthusiastic and loyal if you give them a warmed over version of the same production year after year," Belafonte said.

Phil Stein, Belafonte's producer, said, "We don't believe in placing Belafonte in a 'static' setting that does not change.

Even though his presentations are essentially 'pure Belafonte' we must, nevertheless, surround him with the right background and the best material to give it a new look, a new sound, and yet see to it that the fans get what they want in the way of familiar touches."

The Belafonte repertoire knows no bounds. His songs are the sounds of people all over the globe, of all fields of endeavor and every area of expression.

He has become one of the world's best known artists through his complete individuality as a singer and distinctiveness in choice of material and method of presentation.

He has been called "the man who has brought folk singing into its own with other musical forms such as jazz, opera and the classic."

After a disappointing first experience as an entertainer, Belafonte quit show business, before returning as a folk singer in 1950.

A modest beginning led to a contract with RCA-Victor and his albums are among the leading sellers in the world. His last film venture was "Odds Against Tomorrow," and he is devoted to the continuing fight against "injustice." He became the first member of the entertainment industry to be named as a cultural advisor to the Peace Corps by the late President Kennedy.

He has been a leading architect of the Civil Rights movement.

Groups who have honored him include The American Jewish Congress, the NAACP, the Committee for United Negro Relief, The City of Hope, Fight for Sight and Bonds for Israel.

Belafonte has traveled all over the world, breaking house records everywhere. He has broken attendance records at Lewisohn Stadium in New York City, at the Los Angeles Greek Theatre, and became the first star in the history of the Palace Theatre to play on stage the entire evening without the aid of assisting acts.

He was awarded the "Emmy" for the top musical performance for his television show in 1959, "Tonight With Belafonte."

—It's All In Your Mind— Exams Cause Stress

By Marilyn Hoegemeyer
Junior Staff Writer

Students and young housewives have more emotional and mental pressure than any other group, Dr. John Thompson, Staff Physician at Student Health, said.

"We have more colds, cases of dizziness and fatigue during six weeks exams and the semester exam period than at any other time," he said.

These are the greatest stress times for students—often they get physical reactions to the emotional stress—or they believe they are physically ill, he said.

Last year Thompson and his colleague Dr. K. D. Rose studied a series of 3000 consecutive patients.

Of the 3000 patients, 7-10 percent had no physical ailments, but only thought they did. "There are 12 to 18 attempted suicides a year," Thompson said, "but as a general rule students are pretty healthy people."

"We have about 1500 calls a month and so make every attempt to educate the students in common sense action when they come down with a cold or flu. We try not to foster dependence on Student Health," he said.

Each living unit on campus has a health counselor. Thompson presents a basic two hour instruction period for the counselors. They are advised what to do in emergencies and for treatment of colds and flu.

"The sororities and fraternities don't respond as well as the dorm living units," Thompson said. He will give the first instruction period for the sorority health counselors during the Panhellenic Workshop next week. Selleck, Cather and Burr Halls have already had their instruction periods.

"This is part of a basic plan to educate the students to care for themselves, this is what the University is aiming for. It is our goal too," Thompson said.

Queen To Be Crowned At Tonight's Pep Rally; Displays To Be Judged

The 1964 Homecoming Queen will be crowned while the football team looks on at the pep rally tonight.

Each candidate will be escorted by a member of the football team and all of her activities will be read after she is introduced.

Vice Chancellor G. Robert Ross, dean of Student Affairs, will present the new queen and the first and second runner-up with a dozen roses. Carol Klein will crown the new Homecoming Queen. Miss Klein was last year's queen.

The Rally Parade will start at 6:15 p.m. from the Carillon Tower and will move to the north steps of the Union. Following the rally will be the viewing of displays. The route for cars to follow will start at 17th and R, follow R to 14th, then go down S Street to 16th. It will follow 16th to Vine Street, where it will go to 14th.

Dennis Swanstrom, Innocents Homecoming chairman emphasized the fact that the only place cars may enter the route is from the east on R Street, or from the south on 17th Street.

Displays are to be in operation from 6:30 until 10 p.m. tonight. Tomorrow they are to be in operation from 11 a.m. until 1 p.m. for the benefit of game visitors.

The 100-piece Kansas State University band will participate in halftime activities at the game tomorrow.

Members of the Kansas State band will perform during the first six minutes of the halftime program. During the game they will be seated in the West stadium, according to Don Lentz, director of bands.

People To People Sets Meeting To Orientate American Students

An orientation for American students will be held Sunday at 2:30 p.m. in room 332-334, Student Union. It is sponsored by People to People (PTP).

Miss Florence Bruger, with the department of social work at Wesleyan, and a wide traveler, will orient American students toward better cooperation and friendship with foreign students.

Aims of the session are to explain to American students what a foreign student wants to hear about America, what to do to make foreign students feel a part of the University, and what not to do to make them feel they are a foreign student.

Emphasis will also be on what American students should be aware of concerning foreign students.

The orientation session is open to all American students on campus.

People to People is an organization founded for the purposes of creating world peace and world understanding. Founded by General Dwight Eisenhower, it includes a variety of programs, among them the University program.

The PTP chapter at the University was founded in 1961 for the purpose of helping foreign students become acquainted with the University.

Activities include social events, a job-placement committee, and a Student to Student committee for American and foreign students.

Tours, orientation sessions, and speakers are also planned for foreign students.

This year a central coordinating committee was set up between PTP, Nebraska International Association, a national foreign student association groups to plan activities together and arrange dates.

A Students Abroad committee of PTP arranges for students to spend the summer in Europe as a Student Ambassador in cooperation with the University Program of PTP. Central headquarters are at Kansas City, Mo.

Students Plan Recreation Area For City

Plans for a five-mile long park along the west edge of Lincoln have been drawn up by two groups of third-year architecture students at the University.

Professor Dale Gibbs of the School of Architecture and Arthur Duerschner, a Lincoln architect worked with the two groups in formulating plans.

The problem of beautifying the area around Salt Creek was brought to the School by the Army Corps of Engineers, according to Don Cross, one of the group captains.

The Corps was working on improvement of flood control on Salt Creek, and asked the School to come up with a plan to beautify the surrounding area, according to Cross.

Gibbs said that Lincoln expansion is bound to go west, and with this in mind, the students made the area into a beauty zone to provide a transition from the city proper to the expansion area.

In a report made by Cross, he mentioned that "Unless this Salt Creek area is enhanced, it will remain a detriment to the development of Lincoln."

Cross said that city expansion will undoubtedly go west, since it has just about reached its limit on the east, due to a drainage and sewage problem faced there.

The park, called Crescent Greens Park, would include many recreational facilities. Among those included are a lake for the Boy Scout camp area south of town.

Going from the Boy Scout area north along the edge of town, the continuous park would include areas for gardens (botanical and Japanese), a golf course, horseshoe—playing, ice skating, picnicking, badminton, croquet, tennis, and lagoons surrounded by gardens and picnic areas.

There would be a camping area around Highway 6 for trailers, tents, and other over-night campers, as well as information booths located at key points in the park.

With the University students in mind, Cross said the plans include making the north end of the park near the campus into a campus-oriented area. This would include a dance pavilion on the island at Oak Lake and an amphitheater where University-sponsored activities such as Stan Getz' appearance could be held. The area would also include a garden area, and a family picnic area, which would be more for West Lincoln residents.

Cross said that the students designed the park without estimating the cost. He said that buildings and privately-owned areas would have to be purchased to allow the park to go through.

Gibbs said that it would probably involve quite a bit of expense, but said that he felt it was worth it to city expansion. He said that it will demand initiative on the part of local residents, and they must somehow be shown that this is a worthwhile project.

NU Ag Judges To Enter Contest

Yost To Receive Award From Dental Association

Dr. Howard Yost, Grand Island orthodontist and community leader, will receive the distinguished service award from the University of Nebraska College of Dentistry Alumni Association tonight.

The annual award will be presented at a banquet this evening in the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education in connection with the Association's annual homecoming meeting.

Yost will be cited for his outstanding contributions in the field of dentistry, orthodontics in particular and for his active support of the Grand Island community.

A native of Bladen, Yost received most of his early education at Red Cloud. He graduated from the College of Dentistry in 1919.

He has written many articles for dental journals and has been in demand as a clinician for such organizations as the American Association of Orthodontists, American Dental Association, Nebraska Dental Association, Pacific Coast Society of Orthodontists and the Federation Dentaire (Internationale).

Yost, appointed to the Nebraska Board of Health in August, serves his Grand Island community as president of the local chapter of Rotary.

He has distinguished himself in the orthodontics profession nationally as a fellow of the International College of Dentists and as a diplomat of the American Board of Orthodontics.

His past leadership activities include presidency of the Nebraska Dental Association in 1961. He also has served as president of the Northwest District Dental Society and Central Section, American Association of Orthodontists.

Yost's citation will include prominent mention of service with distinction on the building committee of the University's Dental Alumni Association.

NU Scientist Will Speak In Zurich
