From the Stick

... by rick akin

Just rambling on this week. Some jottings thought up, some swiped, some prompted by this Homecoming Week, designed to lighten the burden on the library, flunk out freshmen and snatch up colds so we can walk around tonight for something to do. Never did like College Nights anyway.

The Series should have provided enough thrills to last you through the basketball season. I don't know who won, but it's been a 61st session of clutch play by both league champions. My early predictions: The Cards in six...

Speaking of basketball, it's arrived and Coach Joe Cipriano and aides have a black gadget with an orange top, that's supposed to develop Cornhusker rebounding. That's off the backboards but it may help that rebound to Big Eight respectability, started last year with a 5-9 tie for sixth. NU was 1-13 in conference play the year before...

Just I'd pass along how defensive right end Langston Coleman chose Nebraska, thanks to Wally Provost's Monday World Herald column.

Langston's mother worked for the family of Ted Sorenson, aide to the late President Kennedy. Sorenson's brother Phil, a Lincoln lawyer up for lieutenant governor in the Nov. 3 fiasco, befriended the Washington prep star on visits to his brother. In their talks Phil Sorenson helped Coleman make up his mind. With the red tape of scholastic requirements out of the way, Langston hitchhiked all the way from the Capitol City to play ball.

How glad we are. He pressured South Carolina quarterback Dan Reeves last Saturday like a dog after a felled pheasant...

For those that tuned KFOR for the Iowa-State-Nebraska fray, had one of those always-thought-of-but-never-happening incidents. Announcers Dick Perry and Jim Huge, ex-Husker right end, differed on the air over who scored on NU's two touchdowns. Tube Rookie Huge won...

Speaking of broadcasters, somebody poked Lindsey Nelson in the Benchwarmer a few weeks back, stating he voiced a partisan game on the side of Minnesota in the Huskers poised 26-21 victory.

Having spotted for the respected NBC sportscaster at that game, I can assure this Nebraska-prejudiced soul that Lindsey Nelson has many more things to worry about during the broadcast than to cheer for somebody. His is a fine sportscaster, unbiased to all, a gentlemen in his field and sports.

Onto the Huskers... Kansas State offers a scare after being edged only 7-0 by a highly touted Missouri club. The Wildcat offense hasn't rolled yet, but let's hope it doesn't Saturday. Count on that defense that held South Carolina to a mere three yards rushing for a NEBRASKA 21, KANSAS STATE 20.

Now after reading this, don't you wish you'd voted to abolish the Rag in the Student Council opinion poll.

Tough Defensive Tilt On Tap Tomorrow

The Cornhuskers will put an eleven-game winning streak on the line tomorrow against Coach Doug Weaver's Kansas State Wildcats.

The Homecoming week contest will see a tough defensive contest as Kansas State held powerful Missouri to a single touchdown last weekend, while losing 0-7.

Kansas State is a much improved team this year as an increased emphasis has been placed on football by that school. They own a 16-14 victory over Colorado who held Oklahoma State to a 14-10 victory last weekend.

Their other defeat is to Wisconsin by a respectable 7-17 score.

K-State boasts the nation's top punter in left halfback Doug Dusenbury. The senior upped his average against the Tigers last weekend with four punts for a 49-yard average.

Going into the Nebraska game, he has toed the ball thirteen times for a 48.2 yard average.

Coach Doug Weaver is expected to have his defensive unit intact Saturday. The Wildcats' defense ranks second in the conference to Nebraska.

The line includes standouts Bill Matan, a 231-pound junior end who was the top lineman against Missouri, and Bob Mitts, a 204-pound senior guard, who continues fine play well each week.

The last Kansas State victory over Nebraska was in 1959, when K-State produced a 29-14 win. In the series which began in 1911, Nebraska holds a 37-9-2 won-loss margin over the Wildcats.

The Huskers go into the contest relatively healthy. Bobby Hohn is on the doubtful list, but should be ready for Colorado on the 24th.

More action should be in the offing for Frank Solich who saw limited action last week, and Harry Wilson. Lighthorse Harry pleased the coaching staff last week with his improved blocking and over-all play.

Sophomore Quarterback Bob Churchich goes into this Big Eight encounter with a little more experience and can be expected to attempt to throw more short passes.

Minister Atones After Ten Years

A Kansas minister recently cleared his conscience for a buck.

In 1951 he lived in Manhattan and attended a basketball game on a student pass. Naturally, only students are allowed to use student tickets to attend Wildcat games in Ahearn Fieldhouse.

Apparently weighing heavily on his conscience for these past years, the matter was cleared when the minister wrote James A. McCain, K-State president, to explain the illegal entrance and to enclose $1. This dollar and the one he obviously paid to obtain the student ticket amounts to the cost of a general public ticket.

McCain sent the dollar to the K-State athletic department.

Dusenbury... Top punter

Nebraska's freshman football team, riding a five-game victory string dating back to 1961, opens its 1964 season Friday afternoon against Kansas State at Memorial Stadium.

Game time is 2:30 p.m., and ticket booths will be open on both the East and West sides of the Stadium. Admission is $1 and tickets will be available only at the Stadium prior to the game.

K-State yearlings. The first unit line averages 219 and the backs 203.

"We will not platoon the same way the Varsity does," Melton said. "At this stage we are most interested in finding out just who our best football players are. So we don't want to spend a lot of time on offensive or defensive specialties. We'll go both ways with our players. We do plan to substitute by units, but they'll be two-way units."

Coach John Melton will field a big club against the Huskers, whose clubs have won four-straight, terms the 1964 Husker freshman team "a pretty good club."

"Albert Fierro has been throwing the ball very well and looks like he will be a fine quarterback," Melton said. "And Charlie Winters, for example, has been looking very good as a running back. We have a lot of players who appear to be fine football players, but we'll know more after the test from Kansas State."

"Mr. Thomson.... please!"

Please tell me how you manage to make me look so great on campus. The only thing I can't pass now is a crowd of boys. Those vertical stretch pants follow the sleek line of most resistance. And guarantee the least resistance on campus. Then, total recovery (only the pants, Mr. Thomson, not the boys). The reflex action of your proportioned stretch pants is second only to the reflex action of that Psych major I've had my eye on. And the fit! Mr. Thomson, please, how did you get them to fit so well? I adore you, Mr. Thomson!

Boeing's world leadership in the jet transport field is an indication of the calibre of people you'd work with at Boeing. The forward-striding attitude responsible for this leadership has, since 1916, provided a steady succession of pioneering achievements: first twin-engine, retractable-gear, low-wing, all-metal airliner; first four-engine, pressurized airliner; first modern, high-performance bomber; first large swept-wing, multi-jet bomber; and, of course, America's first jetliner, the 707, and the 720 and three-jet 727. (Right now we're designing a variable-sweep wing supersonic transport.)

Boeing is one of the nation's major manufacturers of heavy transport helicopters (Vertol), and for more than two decades has pioneered most of the world's applications of the small gas turbine in aircraft, industrial, marine and vehicular fields.

And the space age? Boeing's contributions here include major contract responsibility for the Minuteman ICBM and NASA's Saturn V Booster—the launch vehicle destined to send America's first lunar landing team to the moon. We're also working full blast in all other phases of space flight, including a manned earth-orbiting laboratory and a lunar orbiter.

Projects underway in Boeing's extensive Scientific Research Laboratories encompass basic and applied research in celestial mechanics, solid state physics, nuclear and plasma physics, terrestrial and space flight sciences and allied human factors.

Engineers and scientists at Boeing work in small groups, under supervisors picked for ability to inspire and promote the ideas of their associates. Individual initiative and ability get plenty of exposure that way. (The company encourages graduate studies at leading colleges and universities near Boeing installations.) Boeing is an equal opportunity employer.

We're planning to interview engineering and science seniors and graduate students on campus on the date listed below. So drop in at your campus placement office and arrange an appointment. We'll be looking forward to meeting you.
