

Former Professor Active In Study Of Space Life

American scientists are making preparations to detect, preserve and return tiny forms of life which may be encountered on future space explorations.

One of the men now playing an active part in preliminary study is Dr. John Shannon, former University professor who is a biologist for the American Type Culture Collection, Rockville, Md.

Shannon lectured to a group of University professors over the weekend, and in an interview, explained that the use of liquid nitrogen freezing may be one of the answers to the problem of returning from other planets.

"While one of the most important considerations now is to see to it that we do not contaminate other worlds with our own tiny life forms, we will someday want to bring their microorganisms safely to earth without contaminating our planet," he said.

Shannon, an authority on keeping tissue and organ culture alive by freezing, said that science may never know just how long tissues can be kept alive in this manner since new methods of freezing and culture mediums are constantly being improved.

Commenting on another aspect of keeping tissue alive, Shannon explained that surgical procedures are much more advanced than biological know-how regarding the successful transplantation of tissue or organs from one individual to another within a species.

"The problem can be likened to the search for a cancer cure," Shannon said. "Success in the use of irradiation, cortisone and other chemicals to affect a permanent transplant of cells is strictly limited."

Architect Convocation Features Joseph Wills

The student chapter of the American Institute of Architects held a convocation in the small auditorium of the Student Union last Wednesday afternoon, with Joseph Wills as the principal speaker.

He gave an informal talk on his trip to Europe this summer as a result of the Clark-Enerson Traveling Scholarship. Ken Clark and Larry Enerson, local architects and sponsors of the program, were guests at the meeting.

Five students from the School of Architecture; Bob Boehner, Ric Reed, Joe Wills, John Spense and Herman Ray left Thursday morning for a three day convention at the annual regional meeting of the American Institute of Architects in Kansas City, Mo.

The topic of the meeting was "People and Places," concerning urban planning and design. Dr. Merlin Hodgell, Director of the School of Architecture, also attended.

Game Days Bring Sheldon Visitors

Three to four times as many people tour the Sheldon Art Gallery when the University of Nebraska plays at home compared to Saturdays when there is no football game.

The record Saturday attendance this fall of 892 persons was set Oct. 4 when Nebraska played South Carolina. The second highest attendance of 840 persons was recorded Oct. 11 when Nebraska hosted Kansas State. These figures compare with other Saturday attendance marks this fall of 200 to 300 persons.

More than 142,000 persons have visited the Gallery since the formal opening in May 1963. Norman Geske, director of the Gallery, predicts that attendance will hit the 200,000 mark before the second anniversary of the opening.

Unionizing

The Nebraska Union has programmed a full week of activities for this week, including an art display, a faculty recital, a speech by a famous author and a concert Friday night by Harry Belafonte in Pershing Auditorium.

Tickets for the Belafonte show, which will start at 8 p.m. Friday, are still available at the Union and at Miller and Paine downtown and Gateway stores.

Wednesday the Union will present John Howard Griffen, author of "Black Like Me." Griffen will speak at 3:30 p.m. in the Union Ballroom. There will be no admission charged.

A "Solon of Collegiate Art" will be exhibited in the Union gallery lounge until Nov. 22. The show will feature the art of University students.

The Union Film Series Wednesday will present "The Letter that was never Sent," for members only. Membership in the film series is available at the Nebraska Theatre for $6 Wednesday night. The series will present 12 films during the year.

Weekend film this week is "Sabrina," starring Audrey Hepburn and Humphrey Bogart. Times are 7 and 9 p.m. Friday and 7:30 p.m. Sunday. Admission is 25 cents and student identification.

Navy Commissions Former Mortar Board

Ensign Virginia Wheaton, a 1964 graduate of the University, has successfully completed the eight week indoctrination class for women at the U.S. Naval Schools Command, Newport Rhode Island.

Ensign Wheaton was selected as representative speaker for the class which was graduated in ceremonies held Oct. 16. The group of 81 graduates represented 32 states and 65 colleges and nursing schools.

Do you know what Sales Management at P&G means?

Does it mean...you manage to sell?
...you sell to management?
...the more you manage, the less you sell?
YOU'RE THE MAN IN CHARGE?

Take for instance, A. B. Morrow, University of Michigan, Class of '63. At the first level of P&G Sales Management, he now runs a $5,000,000 annual business. And, we mean he runs it. Andy is responsible for the recruiting and training of his people, for analyzing his business and developing promotions, for the actual sales to major accounts, and for all the many decisions that only "the man in charge" can handle.

At P&G, Sales Management also means unlimited opportunity. Sign up for a P&G Sales interview and get the whole story.

PROCTER & GAMBLE
Sales Management
Interviewing—November 5 & 6.

Recruiting future "men in charge" for P&G is one of the Sales Manager's most important responsibilities.

The sales meeting is a primary means used by the P&G Sales Manager for communicating with his organization. He must be expert at organizing and conducting productive sales meetings.
