

Huskers Drop Pass Defense Lead But Still Head Other Departments

Kansas City, Mo. — Colorado, giving up but 109 yards passing the last two weeks, has slipped past Nebraska in the Big Eight Conference's passing defense division to break the Cornhuskers' monopoly on all team statistical leads.

The Buff secondary first held Oklahoma to only 19 aerial yards and then came back to put the clamps on Gary Lane and his Missouri receivers last week to run its season average to just 71.3.

Nebraska, facing teams forced to the air against a stubborn front wall, has allowed 193 passing in the last two outings, losing its last week's lead and slipping to 76.3.

However, the Cornhusker line continues to be impregnable, holding Kansas' talented rushers to 101 yards, including a season's low of 27 by the Jayhawkers' Gale Sayers. In the past four games, Nebraska has given up but 229 yards rushing, an all-time best for the Big Eight. Its season average is now 72.9.

The story is the same in offense, where the Cornhuskers continue to hold good leads in all three departments. Nebraska's bulge in rushing offense is 25 yards over Oklahoma. The passing lead was stretched to almost 33 yards over Oklahoma State — Nebraska, with 984 through the air this year, has gained more than it did passing all last year — and the total offense is a very comfortable 65, 362 to 297.5 over Oklahoma. The 362 average is still above last year's pace for Nebraska.

Oklahoma took over second in rushing defense by half a yard, holding Iowa State to 34 yards, lowering its average to 134.4, compared with Missouri's 134.9. Missouri held onto its total defense, runner-up spot with a 220.3 mark. Oklahoma is seven yards back. These two will fight it out for the No. 2 spots this weekend. Team Rankings By Depts.

rood awakening

It looks as if the Sooners will have the privilege of digging into campaign-suppressed hate literature Novem-Party hasn't had to resort to his little black book . . . ex-ber 21. The devious "permanent spokesman" of the Husker cept for the first few rather mild pages.

The Freeman White passing scandal and the double wing episode against the Gopher Party were just a hint of what the Husker propaganda machine is capable of.

As for straight stuff, or the real campaign issues. The defense has improved, their secondary has tightened up. Huskers haven't been able to hide the fact that their pass while their ground game remains lethal. Oklahoma State should succumb to the straight stuff this Saturday.

But the following week, Coach Devaney may have to resort to his little black book again. Devious means are the only means that will defeat Oklahoma in Norman.

Nationally, the little-black-book method has been used liberally and as a result no team and no rating lasts more than two weeks. This writer has his own little book and the top ten looks more like this:

- 1) Notre Dame 2) Nebraska 3) Alabama 4) Arkansas 5) Michigan 6) Texas 7) Georgia Tech 8) Ohio State 9) LSU 10) Oregon State.

Meanwhile back in Lincoln . . . The Cowboys had their fun last year and the Huskers are due for a better game. Last home game and all that rot. It'll be NEBRASKA 28, OKLAHOMA STATE 8.

The usual mistakes: Iowa State 14 over Kansas State; Kansas 21 over Colorado; Missouri down by 1 to Oklahoma; Illinois 13 over Wisconsin; Oregon 1 over Indiana; Michigan 10 over Iowa; Minnesota 1 over Purdue; Notre Dame 7 over Michigan State.
