COTTON BOWL HO!

The Cornhuskers will play in the Cotton Bowl in Dallas, Tex. on New Year's Day.

Tippy Dye, Nebraska Athletic director, made the announcement yesterday afternoon, following a meeting of the Cornhusker team. The team voted unanimously to accept the invitation.

"We are proud to receive the invitation and happy to accept it," Dye said. "This is a tribute to a fine group of young men and a great coaching staff."

Nebraska will meet third-ranked Arkansas on Jan. 1. Arkansas defeated Southern Methodist University 44-0 Saturday.

Coach Bob Devaney said, "We are very pleased to have this opportunity to represent the Big 8 Conference against the champions of the Southwest Conference—a very fine Arkansas team."

"But right now the only thing we are thinking about and preparing for is a football game with a tough Oklahoma team Saturday."

Jim Pittenger, ticket director, announced that Cotton Bowl tickets are $5.50 and may be ordered by mail. The ticket request should be sent with a check for the price of the tickets, plus twenty-five cents for mailing.

Pittenger also said "it is our understanding at this time" that a special price of $2.75 may be available to University students. Details about this will be announced later.

Chancellor Clifford Hardin spoke briefly to the team, congratulating the players on their efforts to date and wishing them success against Oklahoma Saturday in the final game of the season.

Husker co-captain Lyle Sittler said that when Devaney approached the team with the idea of going to the Cotton Bowl, most of the team would rather have returned to the Orange Bowl in Miami, Fla. "That was out of the question, however, since they had already made their selections," Sittler said.

"The freshmen and sophomores would rather have gone to the Sugar Bowl which is a flashier bowl than the Cotton Bowl, but the juniors and seniors wanted to pick a team instead of a bowl."

Sittler said the Dallas game offers a chance at Arkansas, presently third-ranked nationally, while the Sugar Bowl opponent would probably be LSU or Syracuse.

He said another advantage of the Cotton Bowl is that it is second only to the Rose Bowl in size of its television following.

Doug Tucker, senior quarterback, expressed what he hopes are the feelings of the whole team. "We're not considering the Bowl game until after the game with Oklahoma next week. This is the one we really want. We want to go undefeated this season."

"It is a real great honor to be accepted to the Cotton Bowl, and we are really looking forward to it," he added.

Rob Churchich, quarterback, said, "We're pretty happy about it, but we're taking them one at a time. We've got to beat Oklahoma first." He said the Arkansas team would be "pretty tough."

Sally Wilson, Tasseis president, was enthusiastic about the game. "It's a great thing. Since Dallas is closer, I hope lots of people will go. The Big 8 has gone a lot to the Orange Bowl, and it's good to go to a different place. We have to face stiff competition, but we'll come through."

Sandra Stefanisin, leader of the pom pom girls, also expressed the hope that more Nebraska people can drive the shorter distance, and will get to go to support the team. The pom pom girls will be at the Dallas game.

Georgia Merriam, another pom pom girl, was "really excited." "I hope we have as good luck as we did in the last Bowl game," she added.

KK Crowns Miss Wilson, McCloughan; Kappa Sigma Wins Skit Competition

A record crowd of approximately 4,700 saw Kent McCloughan and Sally Wilson crowned Prince Kosmet and Nebraska Sweetheart of 1964 at the Kosmet Klub Fall Revue Saturday night. McCloughan is a Sigma Alpha Epsilon senior majoring in physical therapy. He plays halfback on the Cotton Bowl-bound football team and is the top scorer in the Big Eight.

Miss Wilson is a Kappa Kappa Gamma senior. She is Tasseis president and business manager of the Cornhusker.

Kappa Sigma was awarded the first place trophy for the best skit of the evening. The title of the skit was "How to Succeed in College Without Really Trying."

The skit told of the plight of the three Fink brothers who came to college and were completely in the dark. The brothers remembered a book (same name as title) and by following the rules laid down in it, became successful in their college endeavors.

The second place trophy went to Beta Theta Pi. Their skit, "Custer's Last Stand," depicted the true behind-the-scenes story of Custer's Last Stand.

"The Celler Dwellers" of Alpha Tau Omega won the Travelers Act award.

Bill Hansnire, of Sigma Phi Epsilon, was named recipient of the Stephen Cass Memorial Scholarship Award.

It was announced that "The Unsinkable Molly Brown" will be the Kosmet Klub Spring Show.

"The Celler Dwellers" took first place for their travelers act in the Kosmet Klub show Saturday night.

Biennial Budget Asks $10 Million Increase

The University's 1965-67 biennial budget, which was submitted Friday, calls for an increase of $10,494,171 over the present state appropriation.

The budget requests $42,173,102 from state tax funds for the coming biennium, compared to $31,678,931 currently. This represents a 33.1 per cent increase in tax funds.

Chancellor Clifford Hardin said the new budget reflects the need for more funds "to meet the largest enrollment increases in the history of the University, to make salaries more nearly competitive, and to place such programs as medicine and agriculture in position to more nearly meet modern day needs."

The total budget calls for $62,305,313, an increase of 26.1 per cent over the present $49,408,012 operating budget.

A large part of the increase, $4,357,780, would go for work load increases throughout the University. It anticipated that enrollment will increase at least 1,600 students during the first year of the coming biennium. An additional 1,200 students are anticipated by the fall of 1967.

Another large part of the increase, $6.8 million, will be utilized in increased salaries and wages and in increased costs for books, equipment and supplies.

Also included in the new budget are expanded agricultural programs, especially in ag research and strengthening and modernization of the Omaha medical center.

"The University will be adding the equivalent of a large liberal arts college in terms of students each of the next two years," according to Hardin. "This means teaching many more credit hours and adding personnel to take care of the increased work load," he said.

Hardin said the University proposes to increase faculty, professional and administrative salaries an average of seven per cent during each of the two years to meet the competition and recruit new staff people. He said this is necessary because of the continually upward moving salary scale for academic personnel throughout the country.

Dr. Joseph Soshnik, vice chancellor, said that a summer school double session proposal is included in the budget request. This would expand the summer program to two six-week sessions effective during the summer of 1966.

Hardin said this would "bring the University closer to a full-time operation the year around," and offer fuller utilization of school facilities.

The budget calls for an average increase of 5 per cent per year for the non-academic staff and a single 10 per cent increase for graduate assistants.

The total operating budget is exclusive of athletics and student housing and other self-supporting auxiliary services.

Governor Frank Morrison said he was not surprised by the budget increase. "I told the Legislature two years ago that they are going to have to be prepared to increase the University budget by 20 per cent each biennium for the next 10 years," he said.

He acknowledged the fact that this biennium's increase exceeds this projection by a little.

He pointed out that more money needed for research and the first war babies, which are hitting colleges this year.

Hardin said the University "would be very favorable" to a possible early public hearing for the budget in January. He said he felt that "the earliest possible action" on the future budget is necessary in order to place the University in a position to hire needed additional faculty and staff, since it is difficult to hire after early spring months for the next fall's term.

The University's proposed budget for the next biennium is shown below.

Convention Discusses Representation

By JIM KORSHOJ
Junior Staff Writer

Representation and organization were the primary questions in yesterday's meeting of the Constitutional Convention.

John Klein reported that the representation committee had concluded that most of the problems which will confront the new student governing body will be of a general nature. That is, they will be issues which will concern the student body as whole, such as parking, football tickets, homecoming, etc.

For this reason, the committee was of the opinion that the best type of governing body would be one whose composition was most generally representative of the entire student body.

The discussion of Klein's report involved the question of whether or not the cross-sectional representation wanted could best be gained through representation by living unit or by college. Arguments for each method were given in an effort to give the representation committee aid in deciding this question.

Dean G. Robert Ross advised the Convention that it would be difficult for them to find sufficient information for them to distinguish whether the living unit or college representation would be better.

He reminded them that the University's enrollment will soon approach the 20,000 mark and that he could not see that living unit representation would be giving more personal contact between the governing body members and their constituents than would the college representative system.

In the report of the structural committee, Vicki Dowling asked that the Convention delegates give her their opinions on what they thought a policy statement of the new governing body should contain.

The question came up whether or not the new governing body should have powers over the Interfraternity Council (IFC), Panhellenic and the Nebraska Union.

John Luckasen asked whether including the IFC under the jurisdiction of the new government would give them the power to direct the fraternities concerning membership.

Klein answered that he was aware of the difference between the financing and alumni situations of fraternities and dormitories and the need for differing control of the two types of units.

He said the new government would recognize this and would rule accordingly. He favored bringing these bodies under the jurisdiction of the government because with the increasing number of residence halls, an organization of them would soon be governing five or six thousand students.

It was also discussed whether the new body should be a body with supreme power or just a coordinating one and whether organizational structure of the body should be.

George Vrba then moved that the first question decided by the structural committee be that of whether or not the Convention favored an Associated Students type of government. Joe Carroll amended the motion so that the first question considered be whether or not the body will be a supreme governing body. The amended motion passed.

Convention president John Lydick then concluded the meeting by urging the Convention members that they set the month of March as the deadline for the completion of the writing of the new constitution.

Auful Night Nets $600; Mr. Auful Ugly—Leising Queen—Miss Freeman

John Lonnquist, All University Fund (AUF) president, reported yesterday that nearly $600 was taken in at AUFul Night Friday.

Highlighting the fun-filled evening was the naming of the 1964 Activities Queen, Carolyn Freeman, Kappa Kappa Gamma, and the selection of Mr. AUFul Ugly 1964, Jerry Leising, Ag Men.

Leising went through ketchup and mustard and melted candle wax to win the "questionable honor," according to Lonnquist. He had candle wax all over his head, most of his face and down the front of his shirt. "It was kind of hot," Leising said.

He was awarded by a dance with the new Activities Queen, who was chosen to reign from seven sophomore women candidates.

For 50 cents or a handshake, students were admitted into AUFul Land and danced to the music of the Coachmen under green, purple, pink and blue lights.

Students could be found dancing in the Dog Pond, smashing up the AUFul car, spinning the magic wheel that turned squirts of paint into "self made art," and dunking the leader.

AUF workers acted as "Official Dog Catchers" and friends of friends turned each other in to the Dog Pound. Ten cents was the amount for bail.

The Mr. AUFul Ugly candidates wandered through the crowd begging for ticket stubs. A rubber suited Mr. Ugly had a flapping rubber tail which was "the living end." One had a face of welts and moles, another was painted all over.

An almost continuous line formed to throw balls at Lonnquist in an effort to unseat and dunk him in a tank of water.

Many succeeded. He was dunked 131 times, about once every minute.

Activities queen Carolyn Freeman . . . wins honorary dance with Mr. AUFul Ugly Jerry Leising.
