GOP Needs To Find Points Which Have Appeal: Peterson

By Jim Korshoj
Junior Staff Writer

The need to find points which appeal to the American people was named as the greatest challenge facing the Republican Party by former Nebraska governor Val Peterson last night.

Peterson, who has also served as U.S. Ambassador to Denmark, made this point in a talk to the Young Republicans. He spoke on "The Future of the Republican Party."

"The Republican Party is definitely not liquidated," he said. "Not all of Goldwater's 25 million votes were received just as an endorsement of him. Many of them were cast as endorsements of the Republican party," he said.

Peterson said that the Republicans must, in order to come back from their defeat in the recent election, work for and endorse policies which will be favored by the majority of the people. "The purpose of a political party is to try to render maximum amounts of service to the people of the country," he said.

He also expressed concern over the party's failure at times to convey their stands to the people. "The Republican party has not expressed itself in as affirmative terms in some years as is desirable," he said. "We can't be successful unless we are definitely for things."

Sheldon Designer Wins Art Award

The New York architect who designed the University Sheldon Memorial Art Gallery, Philip Johnson, has received the 1964 "Art in America Award."

Johnson is the first architect to receive the award. Winners in other years included painters Mark Tobey, Edward Hopper and Andrew Wyeth, a sculptor Alexander Calder, and photographer Edward Steichen.

The honor, given by the Art in America magazine for outstanding contribution to art, carries a $1,000 prize and a medal designed by Seymour Chwast.

with Conservatism," Peterson said. "The true Conservative is interested in taking the best things from the past and using them for the future. There is nothing about Conservatism that means radicalism or extremism," he said.

Peterson also spoke on the negative charges against many Republican candidates in the last election. He said that he could see nothing negative about fighting to maintain a sound budget and a sound dollar.

In commenting on the election, Peterson said that he doubted that any Republican candidate could have beaten President Johnson. "I think the only one who would have had a chance would have been Nixon," he said. "But as a new President who hadn't had time to have things go too wrong, Johnson had too many things going for him."

Peterson said that he had one criticism of the Republican's campaign. He said that in a meeting of Republican leaders before the campaign began, it was decided to "write off" the Negro vote and to try to capture the South.

"This was sheer, bald racism, and a despicable approach to a campaign," Peterson said.

In response to a question concerning the future plans of the Republicans in regard to ultra-conservatives in the party leadership, Peterson said that he favored removing these people from their positions. "We would probably then lose some votes from this element of the party,"

Kansas Hosts Conference On Campus Government

The annual Big Eight Student Government Association Conference will be held at the University of Kansas Dec. 11 and 12, according to Ray Edwards, president of the Association.

Big Eight schools will send participants to discuss prominent student government problems and solutions on the Big Eight campuses. In legislative sessions the he said, "but we can get along without their type."

When asked what the Republicans should do on the local levels in 1966, Peterson answered that they should do their best to encourage the best candidates they have to run for office. "We need capable, forward-looking people to run for office if we are to win," he said.

Dave Clark Five Stars At Pershing

The Dave Clark Five, a young singing group from England, will be appearing at the Pershing Auditorium, tomorrow at 8 p.m. Admission price is $3.

"Considering that the Dave Clark Five is running a close second to the Beatles, it is surprising that the tickets aren't selling as well as they should," Ivan Horg, manager of the Auditorium, said.

The group's latest recording, "Glad All Over" has moved ahead of any Beatle recordings in England and is climbing on American popularity poles, according to Gold's Record Department.

Ashley Montagu To Give Lecture

Ashley Montagu, a world-famous anthropologist and prolific writer on the races of mankind, will deliver the 1964 Montgomery lectures here.

He speaks at 3:30 p.m. next Monday and Wednesday at Love Library auditorium. Montagu will also appear at the Unitarian church Sunday.

delegates will enact programs for the association to sponsor. Student flights to Europe and the Eight College Bowl were sponsored by the association last year.

Governor-Elect of Kansas, William Avery, will speak to the group at a banquet on the evening of the 11th.

The group is scheduled to elect new officers for the coming year.

'Fraternity AUF Results Very Poor'

Results of the All University Fund fraternity drive were unimpressive, John Lonnquist announced at the Interfraternity Council meeting last night. He said that fraternities which did not contribute will be contacted by AUF.

John Cosier, scholarship chairman of IFC, said that pledges receiving downs should be required to attend the tutorial program on Sundays at 7 p.m. He said that Panhellenic urges pledges who received downs to attend the tutoring program.

Ladd Lonnquist announced that Student Health is requesting that every active fraternity member take part in the free diabetes tests.

"Around 500 yearbook proofs have not been turned in yet," Mrs. Hazel Jackman said. If the proofs are not returned by December 15, a proof will be selected at Miller's, she said. The photographic office is closed in the Union, but yearbook pictures will be taken at Miller's until Dec. 12, Mrs. Jackman said.

"Instead of charging each man $2 for the house composites and glossies we will send each fraternity a bill," Mrs. Jackman said.

A motion to donate to the Builder's Student Professorship Fund was defeated. Tom Brewster, president, said that IFC was a governing body and could not donate money.

Dan Iseman presented ideas and projects for the pledge training program. He suggested a research program on both the value of pledge sneaks, and pledge participation in Homecoming displays. He also proposed studying problems of pledge training from the pledge's point of view. Information concerning the history of the University should also be made available to pledges, said Iseman.

Bill Poppert said that of the rush chairmen, he had talked to none who were in favor of Spring Rush. Brewster told all IFC members to solicit their house for an opinion of spring rush.

Ag Meeting Here Today

Classes for Ag students will be dismissed this afternoon so they can attend the fifth annual Agricultural College Professional Opportunities Conference.

Mr. Jerry Ladman, Placement Officer, College of Agriculture, Iowa State University, will be the speaker at the 1 p.m. general assembly in the Activities Building.

Following the general assembly there will be sessions conducted by 25 industry representatives. Sessions will be held in Ag Chemicals, Ag Education, Ag Marketing, Seed Production, Dairy Production, Economic Research, Electrical Power Use, Farm Cooperatives and Irrigation.

Other sessions offered are Farm Machinery, Farm Management, Feed Industry, Public Relations, Food and Drug Administration, Peace Corps, Soil Conservation and Wildlife Service.

Any University student who is interested in attending the sessions is invited to do so, said Charles Adams, Conference chairman.

Ag Chorus Holds Choral Concert

Students are invited to attend the annual Christmas choral concert at the Activities Building, East Campus at 3:30 p.m. Sunday.

The College of Agriculture chorus under the direction of Mrs. Adelaide Spurgin will sing traditional and modern carols. Robert Heist and Lowell Peters will sing "A Christmas Folk Song" composed by Audun Ravan, associate professor of piano.

The program is being presented by the Student Union, East Campus, with the cooperation of the Ag Executive Board, the Faculty Wives Club and the Newcomers Club. A tea will be held following the concert.

Council Supports Increase In Tuition

By Priscilla Mullins
Senior Staff Writer

An increase in tuition was supported by the Student Council yesterday as it passed a resolution by Mike Barton stating that the Council favors the increase as a solution to the financial difficulties of the Daily Nebraskan.

The resolution came after Student Opinion Committee chairman John Cosier announced that 134 of the 147 students to be contacted by a telephone poll have been contacted, and 54 per cent of these 134 favor a tuition increase.

Cosier said that 28 per cent of the 134 favored reducing the costs by either cutting back to three papers a week instead of four, or printing only half as many papers each day.

Of those contacted thus far, 18 per cent favored remaining with the present increased advertising situation, according to Cosier.

Cosier said that 13 students must still be contacted for the poll, and the final results should be ready for the Council next week.

He said he did not feel that those 13 will greatly change the results of the poll as now reported.

"The poll ran much better than I had expected," Cosier said. He said that most of the people contacted did want the paper changed in some way, and the greatest percentage wanted the increased tuition.

Cosier said that the increased tuition alternative was favored among those contacted by a 2-1 margin over the next nearest alternative.

The Council also elected three delegates to the Big Eight Student Government convention, to be held at the University of Kansas on Dec. 11-12.

The delegates are Pam Hedgecock, Bill Hansmire and Skip Soiref. Dick Kosman, chairman of the Big Eight Student Government Committee for the Council will also be a delegate, as well as Council President John Ly-

Results of the questionnaire distributed by the Parking Committee concerning the inter-campus bus were given to the Council by Bill Poppert.

To the first question asked, "Do you feel this bus service is adequate to meet the needs of your schedule?" the replies for Tuesday were 304 yes, and 89 no. For Wednesday, 362 said yes, while 170 said no.

The second question asked how many times the student has been late to a class or had missed classes due to the bus. For Tuesday, 12 per cent replied that they had been late or missed a class three times or more. For Wednesday, 20 per cent replied in the three or more category.

The third question asked if the student felt the bus could serve him better if it were to make a stop between campuses. For Tuesday, 46 said yes and 357 said no. For Wednesday 60 said yes and 465 said no to the 27th and Holdrege location.

According to Poppert's report, some of the most frequent comments were that the students felt the bus was too crowded, the bus did not leave on time, and that the students want a bus during final exam period.

Poppert said that the Parking Committee is checking into the possibility of getting a larger bus. He said that the buses will run during final exams.

Two runs will be made during finals from East to City campus and one from City to East campus both in the morning and during lunch.

The questionnaire was distributed when the weather was warmer, according to Poppert, and this may have some influence on the findings, since the weather has since turned cold.

Reporting for the Academic and Faculty area, Skip Soiref said that the Dead Week proposal was approved by the Calendar and Final Examinations Committee of the Faculty Senate.

He said that the Committee is taking the proposal to the Faculty Senate next week for Senate members to vote on, but the Committee is not making any recommendations one way or the other on the proposal.

Soiref said the proposal, whether passed or not, will bring the desires of the students before the faculty, thus making them aware of the students' wishes.

The freshman English group final examinations will be held the Saturday preceding finals, according to Soiref, so this final will not be included in the proposal.

Mike Jeffrey told the Council that a Round Table discussion with Dean Ross will be held in 235 Union on Dec. 10 at 7:30 p.m. He urged all Council members to attend the meeting.

Library Committee chairman Kent Neumeister told the Council that his committee is looking into the possibility of having either a required or elective course on the library system offered at the University.

Peace Corps Committee chairman Andy Taube reported that his committee will have a report on the money taken in for the movie "Mexican Bus Ride" which was shown.

He said that a display is presently located in the Student Union, publicizing the Peace Corps. After Christmas, the displays will be handled by the individual colleges, as will all information concerning the Peace Corps, he said.

Reporting on the Constitutional Convention, Bill Coufal said that Sunday's meeting will be important in discussing policy matters, and he urged Council members to attend and offer ideas.

Council President John Lydick told the Council that a political science advisor will probably be secured for the Convention by next week.

The Student Welfare Committee received a letter from the Nebraska Nurses School in Omaha, according to Bob Kerrey, asking why they did not have candidates in the various campus elections.

Kerrey said he replied to the school by sending a list of names of people in charge of this matter, and suggested that they contact them, and then let the Welfare Committee know what happens.

'LAFB Not Necessity;' Callan Addresses YD's

Business, farming economy and the University will help Lincoln "weather the storm" of the Lincoln Air Base closure, Clair Callan told the Young Democrats last night.

Callan noted an air base closing in Kansas which affected the entire city's economy. Lincoln does not rely entirely on the air base and so will not be so drastically affected, Callan said.

Since winning the election to the first district, Callan has met with the Corps of Engineers to discuss the Missouri River basin project, with mental health officials and has requested placement on the Agriculture and Interior Committees.

"The business of agriculture is the biggest problem in Nebraska and probably the biggest in the country. What we need is a program with continuity," Callan said.

The great potential of the rivers and streams in Nebraska is a reason for Callan's request for the Interior Committee. The $85 million mid-state Bureau Reclamation Project at Grand Island is an example of that potential.

The project is set up to store water from the existing wells in the Grand Island area below the dam as well as to bring in about 9,000 additional acres to irrigation, Callan said.

The Mid-State project and the Little Blue Project in the south east part of Nebraska are all part of the over-all development of the Missouri River basin.

Two things must happen to put the Missouri River projects on a sound basis, Callan said. Both the payback from the revenue of electrical power and the interest rate must be changed, Callan said.

Next week Callan plans to tour north east Nebraska. He will make stops at West Point, and Sioux City and visit the Omaha Indians at Macy.

On Dec. 8 Callan will meet with Secretary of Agriculture, Orville Freeman, who is holding a briefing with all the new congressmen. All the Democratic congressmen are invited for dinner at the White House, Dec. 9.

Callan thanked the Young Democrats for their work during the 1964 campaign. "The YD's at the University are largely responsible for our success," Callan said. "You can't do it alone, I tried it several times," he said.

Callan complimented the group for "starting back to work." "If there is anything I can do, I will be glad to do it," he said.

Giant Serpent Fossil Excavated On Farm

The skull and a portion of the 20 foot neck of a marine reptile with a body shaped like a turtle and a dinosaur-shaped head, has been unearthed at a farm northwest of Valparaiso.

The 120-million-year-old fossil was identified by Dr. C. Bertrand Schultz, director of the University State Museum, as a plesiosaurus, a strictly marine specimen that lived during the Cretaceous period, during which Nebraska was flooded by a shallow sea.

The giant serpent fossil measures almost 40 feet in length, and it could have weighed as much as 20 tons when alive, Schultz said.

At least 20 tons of earth was removed from the site, much of it excavated with a tractor driven by farm owner Adolph Resak's son, Gene.

The discovery is an unusual one for Nebraska, because the fossil was so complete, Schultz said.

The skull, vertebral column and one of the four "flippers" have been uncovered so far, he said. Plesiosaur fossils have been found in Kansas, according to the nationally recognized paleontologist. The only evidence found in Nebraska until now was part of a fossil discovered at the Greenhorn Limestone Quarry at Garland, about ten years ago.

The Lincoln Gem and Mineral Club under the direction of University scientists did a great deal of the excavation work. The 125-member club is headed by Gene Eno of Lincoln. Members of the club, and members of the Resak family as well as university officials have worked in shifts to remove the earth over and around the fossil.

Much of the supervisory work was done by Larry Martin University undergraduate from Bartlett. The plesiosaur will be fully restored and put on display in Nebraska's Morrill Hall Museum, Schultz said.

Dentists Will Attend Periodontics Course

Twenty-five Nebraska dentists will attend a special limited enrollment, continuing education course in periodontics tomorrow and Friday at the Nebraska Center.

Periodontics involves the study of the control of infection of teeth and gums.

The two-day course is part of a series of special refresher courses held for Nebraska's dental profession at the Center. Future programs include courses on pedodontic appliances, operative procedures, dental health and diagnosis.
