

Skirting Other Campuses—

Xavier University Forms Apathy Club

The Apathy Club of Xavier University has been formed at that school "to vegetate, thus making any worthwhile project or endeavor on the campus as much a failure as possible."

The club will have the motto "Omnia pro me et ego pro nullo," which translates to "All for me and me for none."

The powers of the organization are exemplified in the fact that they can and do make many social events on campus failures and lower the academic standards of the university. In the organization there will be: no officers, for this might stir interest; no dues, and meetings once a semester with anyone attending being subject to immediate dismissal from the organization on the grounds of showing interest in anything — even apathy.

To qualify for membership in the group one must prove that they are not an active member in any organization on the campus and prove beyond a doubt that they have done nothing for the improvement of student welfare, the university or themselves. They must: never ask questions in class other than required test material, how long term papers would be, if they should be typed, etc.; be completely silent at all athletic events unless they are booing or using vile language; and encourage others to qualify for membership in the organization.

The charter of the club was ratified by the Xavier student council, as one council member said, "in order to help crystallize — or perhaps coagulate — a feeling that has been prevalent on the campus for a long time."

The Liberal Arts college of Minnesota University will start limiting freshman enrollments beginning with the fall term of next school year.

The college will attempt to meet their rising student population by changing the required score on the College Aptitude Rating from 40 to 50. This will require a student to rank in the upper half of the applicants in order to be accepted by the college.

It is estimated by Minnesota officials that the change in requirements will cause about 2,000 students to be refused admission next fall. The liberal arts college now enrolls about 13,000 students.

A new cigarette has been developed which is, according to the president of the firm manufacturing the cigarette, "satisfies both the taste and the family physician." The cigarettes will be made of lettuce.

According to the manufacturing firm president, Perry Resnick of Philadelphia, Pa., the cigarette tastes like a tobacco one and is harmless to the circulatory system and the heart.

The cigarettes will be marketed as "the cigarette you can live with," and, according to Resnick, "will give smokers a way to continue enjoying the smoking habit with improved tastes and without the assault of nicotine on the body."

Teachers College Sets Scholarship

Susan Tetherow and Dianne Finsieski are the first beneficiaries of a new scholarship fund established in Teachers College.

The new scholarship fund provides two $500 scholarships annually and was established through the Nebraska Foundation with a contribution from a donor who wished to remain anonymous.

Dr. Walter Beggs, dean of Teachers College, said the new scholarships will be awarded annually to sophomores in the college on the basis of scholarship, financial need and professional promise.

Miss Tetherow, is majoring in speech therapy and hopes to work as a therapist in the Valentine area.

As a member of a campus service organization's Orthopedic Project, Miss Tetherow has been working with children in Lincoln hospitals. She is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta social sorority and the Student Education Association.

Miss Wisnieski is a member of the University Lutheran Chapel, and a part-time secretary at the Chapel. She also is a member of Student Union, Builders and the Student Education Association. She was named to Alpha Lambda Delta, freshman scholastic honorary.

Popular Exhibits Cited At Museum

University museum officials cite the Ralph Mueller planetarium and Ceres, the transparent lady, as the two most popular exhibits during 1964.

Attendance figures show that approximately one-quarter of a million persons will have visited the museum by the end of the year according to "Museum Notes," official publication of the museum.

Both the planetarium and Ceres were scheduled for a number of showings in addition to regular performances for clubs, children's classes and organizations this year.

Dr. C. Bertrand Schultz, museum director, explained that over one-half million persons tour University Museum exhibits annually. This includes Trailside Museum in Fort Robinson, the State Fair displays and the museum on campus.

The most important factor in the increase in attendance is the increasing use of the museum by school teachers to supplement science classes, Schultz said.

The favorite planetarium sky shows are those which include a display of the northern lights and thunderstorms on the plains, he said.

Former Grad Speaks To Air Force Cadets

First Lieutenant Gordon W. Fox is on campus today speaking to Air Force ROTC cadets.

Fox graduated from the University in 1962 with a degree in Mechanical Engineering. While here he served as the Commander of the 465th AFROTC Cadet Wing and was designated a distinguished military graduate and selected for a regular commission.

'Language Day' Planned

The machinery for starting a special "Language Day" is being set up by the departments of Classical, Germanic and Romance languages.

The special, one-day program, tentatively scheduled for Mar. 27, 1965 will be open to all Nebraska students whose high schools wish to take part.

John Aronson, director of admissions at the University, said the "Language Day" will involve a number of laboratory demonstrations, films and a series of language contests.

The project, he said, will also be of special interest to counselors, instructors, and to secondary school administrators working on problems of curriculum development.

Languages which may be included in the program are Czech, French, German, Greek, Italian, Japanese, Latin, Portuguese, Russian, Scandinavian and Spanish. Preliminary reports from the admissions office indicate that the majority of high school administrators contacted would like to have their students take part.
