"I'LL SEE YOU LATER!" ... Residents of Burr Hall claim that this is about the only way they can make a telephone call because of the shortage of phones in the building.

Burr Hall Protests Telephone Shortage

By Rich Meier
Junior Staff Writer

Residents of Burr Hall have originated a petition voicing their dissatisfaction with the phone service.

"We the undersigned residents of Burr Hall are currently without sufficient phone service as compared to other University living units. We desire the availability of private phone service in each room. We request that funds be provided for the installation of hook-up lines to each room during the summer of 1965."

Lee Carskadon, a resident of Burr Hall, was able to get 95 signatures on the above petition.

According to Carskadon there are about 120 residents to three phones in Burr West. "This is insufficient," he said.

"All the other dorms have the availability of private phones, we should have this privilege too," Carskadon said. "We pay the same amount of room and board, and do not receive the same services. The existing facilities are rather inconvenient, there is a lot of time wasted trying to make a simple phone call."

"I feel that the University has a responsibility to provide this service—we, as students, are busy too," he said.

M. Edward Bryon, housing director, said, "This problem is a physical cost problem more than anything else. Those dorms were built on a short budget, and as a result private phone facilities were not provided for."

"The University owns all the phone wires, and in order to provide service we would have to run a conduit in. We simply don't have the money to do so," he said.

"We operate on the $725 we get from the students, and we have to do what we can. I do not see the necessity of spending that much money at the present time."

"I expect that if we did put in facilities for private phones, only about 4 or 5 people would use them."

"If a person wants to be able to use a phone had enough he can move to one of the dorms that offer this service," said Bryon.

Selleck, Cather-Pound, Women's Residence Halls, all only on city campus, offer the availability of private phones.

Two years ago Selleck was converted. Before, private phones were not available, as is the case in Burr now.

Carskadon said that there were many people in favor of putting in private phones, and many other attempts at service have been made in the past. "But," he said, "you get discouraged fast when nothing happens. I am sure something could be worked out, though."

Bar M had no official comment. Gary Ham, president of Bar M, said the Burr government discussed the problem in a meeting Monday night, and decided to refer the petition and proposal to a committee to "look into the matter."

"We don't want anything said about this in the Daily Nebraskan. One kid has a gripe, who won't even be back next year, so why don't you just drop it?" he told the Daily Nebraskan.

Three residents of the hall had this to say. Dave Krager, resident on first floor and a signer of the petition, said, "I agree that there are not enough phones. Some people do want a private phone so they can talk without being bothered, and have private conversations."

"I don't think a private phone in every room is necessary, but we do need more phones."

"I stayed in Cather last year and I know that a lot of people on my floor had them."

"Probably, I would not use the private phone if it was available."

Leeroy Cech, third floor student assistant, said, "I don't have much of a problem, because I have my own counselor's phone. But we only have one phone a floor, and rush hours make it kind of bad. I signed the petition."

"I think it would help an awful lot if we had private phones or more phones. It would make for a little more convenience for the guys."

Dennis Baustert reported that he did not sign the petition, but only because he didn't see it.

"I think it would be a good deal if we had private phones," he said, "and I would probably get one if the rates were not too high."

"If we had another phone or two per floor, it would be a lot better, too," he said. "Three phones for 120 guys is pretty overcapitated, I would say."

He also said there were two pay phones in the common lobby for Burr East, girls, and Burr West, boys.

Jack Caldwell, Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Company Customer Service Supervisor, said, "I wasn't aware that private phone service was not available. We can put phones any place. If no proper conduit is available, this is just an engineering problem, and can be solved."

John Cosier, a junior majoring in physics and mathematics.

Fourteen other University students missed a perfect grade average by a fraction with grades of 8.800 to 8.993. They were:

Gary Fick, a senior majoring in agronomy; Ruth Rasmussen, a freshman majoring in mathematics; John Schrecker, a freshman enrolled in the College of Arts and Sciences.

Joann Strateman, a senior majoring in German and French; Marilyn Justice, a senior majoring in elementary education; Katherine Schach, a sophomore majoring in political science; Victoria Dowling, a junior majoring in English.

Steven Nelson, a sophomore majoring in mechanical engineering; Paul Rudolph, a sophomore in zoology; Marvin Criswell, a senior majoring in civil engineering; Catherine Origer, a senior majoring in pharmacy; Louise

Ellis, a sophomore majoring in history.

Janice Larson, a sophomore majoring in psychology; David Krohn, who graduated "with high distinction" last month.

Another 296 students were able to earn semester grades of 8.00 or higher. They included:

James Jorgensen, Lynn Winterer, Gary Larsen, John Wick, Loren Bonderson, Douglas Thom, Ronald Prior, Joan Graves, Kenneth Harr, Orrin Osterholm.

Poverty Program Aids 550 Students

By Keith Sinor
Jr. Staff Writer
Over 550 University students have received financial assistance through the War on Poverty's work-study program this semester.

Financial support for this program comes through a $138,400 federal allocation to participating colleges in Nebraska. At the present time the University is the only major recipient of the federal aid.

Dr. Edward Lundak, director of scholarships and financial aid at the University, said that he is expecting an increase in the federal grant to $1.2 million for next year. "This grant," he said, "is for the entire state and part of it will go to colleges other than the University."

He said that the University is the only school receiving a substantial proportion of the allocation at the present time, but that he expects several other colleges to enter the program in the coming year. Lundak went on to say that despite the division of funds, the University should still receive a substantial increase.

The program provides assistance to students from low-income families who are in need of financial aid. This aid is supplied through on-campus jobs ranging from clerks and typists to graduate assistants.

The only off-campus jobs in the program are at the YWCA. The federal government stipulates a 15 hour a week maximum for jobs provided through the program. The hourly wage for these jobs range from $.80 to $2.75 depending on the nature of the job. Lundak said that the pay scale is the same as that of the University payroll, and that the average wage was about $1.10.

A large increase in the number of students participating in the program will probably come in early April when information on the new federal grant is received. Many of these new openings will be filled by the nearly 2,000 students who are now employed at the University but are not in the program.

Applications for assistance through the program must be made through the office of scholarships and financial aid in room 205 Administration. Need will be a primary factor in receiving assistance under the program.

Elie Abel Speaks Today On U.S., Southeast Asia

Elie Abel, Foreign Affairs commentator for the National Broadcasting System, will discuss "The United States and Southeast Asia" at 3:30 p.m. today in the Nebraska Union Ballroom.

Since joining NBC News, Abel has been to Europe three times to cover the NATO Council meeting and the Geneva disarmament conference and last summer accompanied Secretary of State Dean Rusk on a tour of allied capitals.

As a reporter for ten years on the New York Times, he covered the 1955 summit conference in Geneva and the following year headed that paper's coverage of the Hungarian uprising. He also covered Premier Khrushchev's press conference when the Soviet leader criticized the United States over the U-2 incident.

One of his strangest experiences overseas occurred when, in 1959, Abel was one of 75 newsmen waiting in the dawn outside of Tezpur, India, when the Dalai Lama fled Tibet to escape the Communists.

"He came through about 8 a.m. in a jeep," Abel recalled, "surrounded by his companions, men wearing American-style felt hats along with their traditional long robes. It was quite a sight."

It was also a somewhat frustrating experience because there was only one telephone in Tezpur for reporters to file their stories. But Abel and some of his colleagues had the foresight to hire a plane which flew them to the nearest large city.

In 1949, Abel joined the New York Times and began a series of assignments that took him to Belgrade and most of Eastern Europe as a roving reporter, and then on to India, Pakistan, Nepal and Ceylon.

He left the Times in 1959 to become chief of the Washington bureau of the Detroit News. That same year he covered Premier Khrushchev's tour of the United States. He came to NBC News November 1, 1961.

Though he has been in some remote areas of the world, Abel recently had to report under difficult conditions in Washington, D.C.

It was late in the evening of October 22, the day President Kennedy announced the blockade of Cuba. Abel broadcast throughout the day from the State Department Auditorium in the capital, where that evening a special concert honoring the UN was in progress.

At the end of the concert the lights were put out. But Abel had to remain for a late radio news broadcast. Luckily he had a cigarette lighter which provided him with the only light to read his script.

Demonstration Tomorrow

A demonstration in support of a state proposed fair housing law has been called for tomorrow morning by the Governor's Commission on Human Rights.

Persons willing to express their support are being urged to assemble in front of the west entrance of the state capitol building near the Abraham Lincoln statue at 8 a.m., according to Father James Stewart of Omaha, chairman of the Governor's Commission.

The Rev. Carroll Lemon of Lincoln, executive secretary of the Nebraska Council of Churches, termed the march a symbolic gesture coinciding with the arrival of the civil rights marchers on the Alabama state capitol in Montgomery.

LB 661, the proposed fair housing bill, will be considered tomorrow morning by the Legislature.

Between 500 and 1,000 people are expected, the Rev. Mr. Lemon said. He urged students to assemble with the demonstrators and to contact their senators and express their support of the bill which seeks to end discriminatory housing practices.

Harvard Professor To Speak

Professor Henry Aiken of the Department of Philosophy at Harvard University will present a series of lectures on campus tomorrow and Friday.

Tomorrow at 3:30 p.m. in 207 Burnett, he will speak on the "Three Stages of Philosophy Activity." This lecture is particularly designed for interested faculty members and graduate students.

At 7:30 tomorrow night, Professor Aiken will lecture on "Ideology and Mortality" in the Pan American room of the Nebraska Union. Undergraduate students, graduate students, and any other interested persons will be welcome.

The last of the series of lectures will be presented at 1:30 p.m. Friday, in room B2A Burnett. Professor Aiken will speak on "The Ethical and Social Philosophy of Charles Sanders Peirce." Peirce is a well-known American philosopher. This lecture will also be open to undergraduates.

Professor Aiken has taught at Columbia, the University of Washington, and has been a member of the faculty at Harvard since 1946. He has had many of his works published both as books and articles. One of his most famous works is his analysis of ethics, "Reason and Conduct," published in 1962.

Female Senator To Address YR's

One of the two women in the Nebraska Legislature, Senator Calista Cooper Hughes of Humboldt will address the Young Republicans Thursday night, Mar. 25, at 7:30 p.m. in Room 414 of the Administration Building.

Senator Hughes is a graduate of the University of Nebraska and a member of Phi Beta Phi Sorority.

Senator Hughes won last year's closest legislative race by 18 votes to add "Lawmaker" to her previous titles of mother, housewife, and schoolteacher.

She serves on the Government and Military Affairs Committee, the Urban Affairs Committee and the Health Committee in the unicameral.

In the legislature, Senator Hughes has voted to indefinitely postpone or "kill" LB-8 — the so-called Liberty Amendment, voted to make the morning dove a game bird, and has sponsored several education measures. She is a co-sponsor of a bill which would require state-wide voter registration.

Senator Hughes' brother, John Cooper of Humboldt, was the Republican gubernatorial nominee in 1960.

It will be the first Young Republican meeting since the election of new officers. Appointments to the Executive Committee will be formally announced at this time.

Eight Students Attain Perfection ... Lead Grade Race

Although 10,000 undergraduate students were trying to do it, only eight University students were able to obtain a perfect grade average for 12 hours or more last semester. They were:

Charles Smith, a senior majoring in English; Susan Unthank, a senior majoring in Spanish; Dennis Beeson, a senior majoring in business administration; Lloyd Reeder, a freshman majoring in agronomy;

John Goedeken, a sophomore majoring in pre-veterinary medicine; Paul Steizer, a freshman majoring in math; Stephen Berquist, who graduated "with distinction" last month; John Cosier, a junior majoring in physics and mathematics.
