Athletic Conference Held Here This Week

More than 450 college women from 35 states assembled at the Nebraska Center yesterday for the 20th national conference of the Athletic and Recreation Federation of College Women. It will last through today.

The national organization coordinates all activities of local college and university women's athletic associations.

Several leading authorities on women's athletic and other organizations will address the assembly, made up of both college women and their advisers.

Mary Dolliver, dean of women, Oberlin College, spoke Monday on "Ingredients for Leadership." Dean Dolliver is a recognized authority on club and association leadership, was active in overseas Red Cross work and can trace her experience back to the days of chautauqua and lyceum circuits.

Dr. Leona Holbrook, chairman of physical education for women at Brigham Young University, spoke yesterday. Dr. Holbrook is the author of a number of books and articles on recreation, Girl Scout activities and private women's organizations. She has been listed in Who's Who in American women since 1959, and among many other honors was given a distinguished service award by the Utah Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation in 1964.

Former Professor Succumbs

Dr. David O. Whitney, 86, professor of zoology at the University for 32 years prior to his retirement in 1948, died Apr. 7 in Auburn, Calif. The University received word of his death late Monday.

A native of Vermont, Professor Whitney taught at his alma mater, Wesleyan University in Connecticut, before coming to Nebraska in 1916, seven years after he received his Ph.D. degree from Columbia University.

Generations of Nebraska students took zoology from Professor Whitney and his research papers, often with a touch of whimsy in the titles, received national notice. He was the author of two books, "Family Skeletons," and "Family Treasures," both dealing with heredity.

He gave the University State Museum one of its earliest habitat groups, "The Whooping Cranes," and also made financial contributions to serve students through the University Foundation.

Professor Whitney was departmental chairman from 1934 to 1946. After retirement he continued to reside in Lincoln until 1961 when he went to California.

He is survived by a daughter, Elizabeth Whitney Vollhofer, now a staff member of the American College at Leysin, Switzerland, and a granddaughter, Miss Ingrid Vollhofer, a student in Vienna.

After cremation in California the ashes will be returned to Lincoln for interment in Wyuka cemetery.

Marchers Protest War In Viet Nam

As student bystanders watched, fifteen sign-bearing University students and faculty members marched in front of the Military and Naval Science Building Monday to protest the U.S. government's actions in Viet Nam.

Led by sophomore Allen Gerlach, and including history professor David Trask, the group said they were demonstrating to show the nation is not unified on the question of Viet Nam. The march lasted about an hour.

No effort was made to halt the demonstrators. An Army ROTC spokesman said he thought the group was not in possession of all the facts concerning Viet Nam but that he had no objections to their marching.

Said Trask, "We want to make it clear to the community there are those who do not agree with government policy in Viet Nam and they want to make their views heard."

Gerlach, who said he had read a number of documents published by the United States on Viet Nam, said he thought the solution to the Viet Nam war is for the United States to pull out of the country and take the matter to the United Nations to set up a method of holding elections there.

He said that former president Dwight Eisenhower stated in 1956 that if elections were held then, eighty per cent of the people would vote for the Viet Cong.

"Since then the situation has deteriorated," Gerlach said.

Gerlach said the people of Viet Nam are entitled to governing themselves and that if they wish to be a Communist nation this is their alternative.

He said he did not agree with the "domino theory" which holds that if Viet Nam is lost to the Communists other countries would follow suit.

The protest was held in front of the ROTC department, Gerlach said, because it is a "symbol of the military whose actions we are protesting."

Army ROTC Offers 2-Year Scholarship

The University Army ROTC is seeking candidates for a two-year scholarship leading to a commission in the regular Army.

Men not currently active in the ROTC program are eligible for the scholarship.

Applicants must have an overall grade average of 6.0 or higher, have four semesters remaining before graduation and have completed four semesters of basic ROTC or have completed a tour of active duty in the Army.

Interested students should contact room 110, M & N Building before Friday.

Coffee Hour Reset

There will be a pre-vacation coffee hour for graduate students today instead of Thursday as originally planned.

It will be held from 4 to 6 in 241 of the Nebraska Union.

Panhellenic Requests Support Of Decision

Diane Michel, Panhellenic president, Monday urged all Panhellenic members to "stick by our decision" on the discrimination resolution revealed last Friday.

Miss Michel's comment followed the reading of a letter from Susan Smithberger, explaining her reasons for writing an editorial last week which called the resolution "an inefficient bit of bureaucracy."

In the letter Miss Smithberger explained that after reading the resolution it was her opinion that it "fell apart" after the first two paragraphs. She said that the University does not restrict the Negro from attendance, as the resolution would lead one to believe. She also pointed out that it is "better to pledge ourselves to work toward the right of free choice of houses." This is not to suggest that each house go out and pledge a Negro right now, she said. This would be childish and immature.

Miss Smithberger's letter said that each house should have the right to pledge a Negro if they so desire. She said she would be proud to call a Negro her sister.

Miss Michel stressed the fact that Miss Smithberger's editorial did not necessarily represent the feeling of her house, Kappa Kappa Gamma.

She said that the action taken by the Council in its resolution was approved by a "vast majority of people." "There is nothing wrong with our statement," she said.

"Everyone else has a right to their opinions."

In other business the Council received a request from Larry Frolk, public issues chairman of the Student Council, to fill out forms telling whether each house has a discrimination clause or not and if the house is not allowed to answer by their national group.

Frolk reminded the Council delegates that the discrimination report released last semester did not list this information for sororities, merely for fraternities. He said he wanted to complete this report before the old Council leaves office.

He said he was not trying to pressure the houses, he merely needed written statements either revealing the information, or stating that the house could not tell.

Miss Michel said that Panhellenic was not advocating the answering of the questions, merely requesting the houses to put down "what they can."

The Council also heard from John Kenagy, senator's program chairman for the Student Council. He told the delegates to urge the girls in their houses to write letters to their senators protesting the proposed tuition increase.

Kenagy pointed out that it is not too late to do this, since the subject will not come up on the floor of the Unicameral until after spring break. He told the delegates that it is "your responsibility as campus leaders and leaders of your sororities to get your girls to write."

Asked whether the letters would do any good in the face of a recent report that the tuition increase was suggested by the Board of Regents, Kenagy said that this report was not true, "so your letters will do some good."

The Council held a discussion on the effectiveness and faults of Greek Week, and several suggestions were made by house representatives.

Included in these suggestions were: Greek Week should be earlier in the year, possibly the fall.

There should be a big name band for the dance, to draw more people.

The convocation needs a larger room and more powerful speakers if it is to be effective.

Rules and instructions for the Greek games should be out-earlier than just the week before they are held.

Possibly the games should be changed, to add variety.

Donna Marie Black, former Miss Nebraska appeared before the Council to ask for support in holding a Miss University of Nebraska pageant as a preliminary for the Miss Nebraska and then the Miss America title.

Miss Black told the Council that the plan already has the approval of Dean Ross. This would apply for independents as well as Greeks, she said.

The pageant is more than just a beauty contest, she said, noting that talent enters the picture to a large extent, and scholarships are involved with the national title.

The contest will be held late in April or early in May, she said, and all delegates were urged to promote the idea in their houses.

Interested girls between the ages of 18 and 28 should contact Miss Black at her Lincoln home, or Mary Lee Jepson, Alpha Delta Pi or Sandy Wright, Delta Gamma.

The Miss Nebraska pageant will be held June 17-19.

The Panhellenic health council recently met with the fraternity representatives and Dr. Samuel Fuenning, director of Student Health, to discuss health programs for houses.

The committee report to the Council said that Fuenning suggested that health chairmen for houses should hold the office for more than one year, since this is not long enough to make an effective program.

The social committee also met with fraternity representatives and discussed house functions. The committee's report to the Council said that the possibility of sororities calling fraternities to complete their calendars was discussed. Another suggestion was that functions be more informal, so the cost will not be so high each time.

University Students To Aid Negro Voter Registration

Eleven University students will travel to Charlottesville, Va. over spring vacation to aid in voter registration.

The students will be working in one of six similar projects being held over the vacation period, sponsored by the National Student Young Women's Christian Association, (YWCA). The projects will be conducted in five cities in the South, and one in the North.

Miss Betty Gabehart, executive director of the University YWCA, who will accompany the group, said groups from other universities would be working with Nebraska students. Other students expected to participate include those from the University of Virginia, University of Illinois, Virginia State University, Norfolk division, and

New Rochelle College of New York State.

Purposes of the project, Miss Gabehart said, are to lend a supporting hand in the NAACP, to give students a chance to have experience in voter registration, to help them understand a Southern city, and to enable them to work with voter registration and education in their own or other communities later.

The current project is the second in a series started in 1964, Miss Gabehart said. It is a help project for the continuous work done by the NAACP.

Students participating in the project are Bob Bogott, Peggy Trumble, Colline Van Foxal and Jo Ellen Williams, Tony Bryan, Bob Cherny, Mrs.

Janice Jeffery Funk, Marvin McNeff, Gale Muller, Sharon Mundell and Emily Schlaht.

In order to be aware of the situation in Virginia, orientation sessions for the students started on Mar. 21, and will continue until the group leaves. Each student is required to attend at least three sessions.

In addition to registration, the students will take part in seminars with leaders for racial equality. One of these will be with Sarah Patton Boyle, author of "The Desegregated Heart," and "For Human Beings Only." They will also meet with a representative from Farmville, in Prince Edward County, Va., which has been the scene of racial violence in the past.
