

Council Plans 'Service Day'

Student Council decided yesterday to set up a committee which will establish a "service day" on the University campus when students will help the city of Lincoln with community projects.

This committee will be made up of Student Council members and members of the United Christian College Fellowship and other organizations on campus.

Kent Neumeister, who introduced the motion setting up the committee, said that a service day would make more students conscious of community problems and would really help the city.

Roger Iliff, who is a member of UCCF, also said that a day devoted to community service will help students become more involved in the community and help both the community and the students.

It was suggested that this day should become a permanent event on campus with importance similar to that of Spring Day and Ivy Day.

Larry Drost from the Lincoln Health Department pointed out that a "service day" could help the city and gave an example of what such a day could do yet this year.

Drost explained that the city was holding several big clean-up days in May in areas of the city where housing is in poor condition.

He explained that the city had taken a block-by-block survey of Lincoln and had marked off the areas of the city where the garbage disposal and other sanitary conditions were poor.

"If students at Nebraska want to help us with this drive," he pointed out, "we'll find something for them to do."

He suggested that the boys could do physical labor and the girls could do leg-work.

This clean-up drive was just a suggestion of what a "service day" could do this year. Other things it could do each year would be connected with charity drives, the Salvation Army, Lark School, Malone Center and other activities and organizations in Lincoln.

Before the motion was passed, Skip Soiref questioned Student Council's role in organizing such a day.

Larry Frolik said, "Student Council is what we make it and if we want we can concern ourselves only with busy work that has to be done, but isn't particularly significant. If we want to make the Council meaningful we will do things like this."

Other business at the meeting included a detailed report from the Parking Committee which explained what the students' money for stickers and finances was used for at the University.

Don Cruise, a member of that committee, said that between September 1963 and August 1964 there was an excess of revenues over expenditures of $15,557.52 from the parking permits and fines.

He emphasized the fact that this $15,557.52 is not a profit. Captain Masters from the University Police told the Council that in years to come there probably will be a rise in the cost of permits.

He pointed out that the University can not use tax money for parking. Besides bonds, he said, the only way the University could pay for parking ramps would be by raising the charge for permits and fines.

Bill Coufal announced the schedule for the 1965 Masters Week which will begin with the arrival of the masters Sunday, May 2.

May 3 and May 4 they will attend a series of meetings, banquets and tours.

The masters are: Harold Corey, Hazel Stebins, Harold Anderson, John Brown, Paul Babson, Dr. James Jensen, Gene Robb, William McCleery, Arthur Weaver, Dr. Paul Bare and Herbert Brownell.

John Kenagy told the Council that the letter-writing campaign to the Nebraska Legislature about the tuition raise has not been going as well as it could be.

He said that members of the Council and campus leaders must continue to encourage the students to write their senators protesting the possible tuition increase.

John Lydick, Student Council president, said that the Council would make a presentation next week to the Legislature concerning the possible tuition raise.

Lydick also announced that Larry Frolik had been chosen chairman of the new Civil Rights Committee.

HONORARY CHAIRMAN . . . of the AUF Faculty Drive, Dr. Esquenazi-Mayo and Rita Reinmiller, AUF member, are shown explaining World University Service (WUS) to Vinod Kotecha of Zanzibar. WUS helps underprivileged foreign areas with building schools and in other phases of education. Funds collected through the Faculty Drive are going to WUS. The drive will continue until the week after spring vacation. $880 has been collected. The goal is $1300.

Co-Ed Housing Will Increase In Selleck, Remain In Towers

By Rich Meier
Junior Staff Writer

Selleck and Twin Towers will remain co-educational according to Ed Bryon, housing director.

"The north part of Selleck, the eight, one, two, and three thousand buildings, will be girls. Cather will remain men. There will be no change on East Campus. And we have reached no decision about Capital yet," he said.

The cost for the conversion of Selleck will be quite a bit, "but we have not figured the actual cost in dollars yet," Bryon said. "Quarters for the women's resident director must be built, the bathrooms must be changed, and there is some furnishing and repainting to be done."

"There are two lounges with fireplaces that aren't being used properly and we will fix these. This is something that we would do even if the women weren't moving in," he said.

"One thing that has perplexed us is the upgrading of Selleck. There is a high degree of furniture breakage, and mistreating of the facilities by the fellows. The attitude in the past has been, 'if they are not going to treat it well then why buy them good furniture?'"

"We are now trying to get the students to tell us what they want, and thus have some assurance of good treatment."

"The problem here seems to be that Selleck is spread out so much that there is a lack of identification with the hall, with their surroundings. The only thing the guys seem to feel is their own is their room."

"There has been little breakage in Cather. There seems to be more of a sense of pride. We have had some furniture carried off though."

Having girls and boys living together "is good for both," according to Kathy Froebe, resident of Selleck. She said, "The guys act more human, and the girls put more effort out. The girls spend that extra minute before the mirror."

"If we didn't have any girls around here everybody would start acting like animals," said John Valaika, 71 Cather.

Linda Peck, a junior resident of Selleck said, "I plan to live in Selleck next year. I like the convenience to the campus and the co-ed living that Selleck provides."

"I transferred here from Greely," she went on, "and they have co-ed housing, so I was quite surprised to find my room assignment down here was co-ed too."

"I think that co-ed housing socially helps both boys and girls. They are more on the ball in manners, dress, and even running down for a coke. No one gets too grubby, if you know what I mean."

"There is only one disadvantage that I can see to living here in Selleck. There should be separated facilities for washing, and television for the girls for after hours," she said.

Bryon commended the Committee for Co-educational Housing in their work. "The work coincided with some of our objectives, and they did a fine job."

"Some of the things we did, we wouldn't have done without the support of the students, though. We probably wouldn't have divided Selleck, and allowed Cather to continue to house men, for example," he said.

Jim Imler, Chairman of the Co-ed Housing Committee, said, "I hope that co-ed housing is continued in the future. Our studies seemed to show that the majority of students wanted co-ed housing, that it is feasible, and has many things to offer."

There will be 436 girls in Selleck, 480 in Pound, and 552 in WRH, next year, according to Bryon.

He said that he does not anticipate an overflow, but that it will be close. "In terms of prediction, we expect an excess of less than 50."

"In January, we expect the new girls' dorm next to Abel Hall to be completed. We hope to be able to use this second semester. We are, therefore, because of the housing situation, encouraging those women who are doubtful in any way to come to the University second semester."

"In the future we are planning another residence complex on north fourteenth, the other side of Nebraska Hall. This is due for construction in 1967."

"There has been no discussion of raises of the cost for room and board. There will be no increase next year, and we will do everything to keep costs down."

K-State Veterinarian Joins University Staff

A former Kansas State University faculty member has been appointed by the University Board of Regents to the staff of the Department of Veterinary Science, effective July 1.

He is Dr. Charles Mebus, who will assume responsibilities for histopathology work in the department. Mebus is a member of the board of the American College of Veterinary Pathology. From 1963-65, he served as associate professor of veterinary pathology at Kansas State, and was a staff assistant from 1960-63. From 1958-60, he was in general practice as a veterinarian at Dover, Del.

Mebus, who will hold the rank of professor at Nebraska, received his M.S. and Ph.D. degrees from Kansas State University in 1962 and 1963, respectively. He received his D.V.M. degree from Cornell University in 1956.

Dr. M. J. Twiehaus, chairman of the Department of Veterinary Science, said the appointment of Mebus will fulfill a long-standing need of the department to more thoroughly investigate the pathogenesis or development of disease agents in the body of animals.

"His experience as a practitioner in the field and researcher in virus diseases will greatly assist the Department of Veterinary Science in studying viral diseases in meat producing animals in Nebraska," Twiehaus said.

"One of the pressing problems that the industry faces today from a disease standpoint is fetal deaths in swine and cattle. Twiehaus and his staff believe that viral agents are of primary importance in these losses.

"The research in this area by the veterinary science staff indicates that viral agents can pass the placental barrier in the pregnant animal, destroy the fetus or feti and then disappear, and as a result, no evidence of the virus can be found when losses occur.

"Dr. Mebus will be a key member of the research team in the Department of Veterinary Science to further explore losses in our meat producing animals," Twiehaus concluded.

Eighty-eight Students File For ASUN Senate Posts

The number of persons filing for Student Senate for next year totals 88, for a total of 37 positions, compared to 31 persons filing last year for 21 positions.

For the Arts and Sciences College, 36 persons have filed, compared to 12 last year. Nine representatives will be selected from the following persons:

Eleven persons have filed from Teachers College, compared to 13 persons last year. Seven representatives will be elected from the following persons:

el, junior; and Karen Westberg, sophomore.

Ten persons have filed from agriculture and home economics this year, compared to four last year. Three positions are available for this college. Candidates are:

In the Graduate College eight persons have filed, compared to five last year. Seven persons will be selected from:

Seven persons have filed from Business Administration College, compared to three last year. Four of the following persons will be selected:

Three persons have filed for the office of president. They include Kent Neumeister, John Klein and Bill Poppert.

There have also been three filings for the office of vice president: Larry Frolik, Rich Meier and Andy Taube.

NSGA Seeks Unity Among State Colleges

EDITORS NOTE: The following article is one in a series explaining the functions of the various Student Senate committees.

The Nebraska Student Government Association (NSGA) is composed of the student governing bodies of the schools of higher learning in Nebraska.

Member schools include Chadron State College, Hastings College, Peru State College, Scottsbluff Junior College, Wayne State College and the University.

NSGA is presently in the process of contacting other schools concerning membership.

Diane Michel is chairman of the NSGA committee at the University.

The three main purposes of the NSGA as outlined in the constitution are: to further good will among the member schools, to seek to promote the exchange of ideas and programs on student government and campus life and to improve the efficiency of the member student government associations through cooperation.

Conferences are held annually during the fall semester. Each school is allowed one faculty advisor and five student delegates, two of which have voting power.

This conference is held at the school of the elected president of the NSGA. The officers serve from one fall conference to the election of officers at the next fall conference and are not eligible for reelection to an office previously held.

NSGA publishes an intercollegiate newsletter carrying correspondence from the various schools. The newsletter is published monthly.

Annual dues of fifteen dollars are paid per student governing body.

Student Parties Form Future Election Prompts Action

The passage of the new Student Association Constitution last month has prompted the formation of the first active student political party at the University, according to Mike Gottschalk.

A meeting Tuesday evening was attended by over thirty University students, many of whom are candidates for the upcoming student government elections May 5.

The name Vox Populi, a Latin word meaning "voice of the people," was decided upon for the party.

Those attending the group's first meeting agreed that the creation of a political party was necessary to bring into reality the dynamic student government made possible by the new constitution, Gottschalk said.

The students also discussed the value of a political party for providing a broader base for participation in student government.

The formation of this party is aimed at producing more active campaigning, emphasizing issues rather than popularity and producing a more active interest in the University community for their student government, according to Gottschalk.

Study groups were formed to gather information on book store pricing policies, off-campus housing, student-administration, student-faculty relationships and the pros and cons of closing the campus to traffic.

The findings of these committees will be incorporated into the party platform which will be voted upon at the next meeting, Apr. 27.

Any students interested in the party should leave their name and telephone number at the Daily Nebraskan office and they will be contacted and notified of further party activity.

Five students from the College of Arts and Sciences have pledged their mutual support in the upcoming Student Senate elections, to work for a better student government and a better University.

The students are Joe Carroll, Phil Boardman, Joan McClymont, Ron Pfeifer and Mel Schlachter.

The issues on which they base their campaign are:

The formation of a student advisory board for the College of Arts and Sciences.

Further investigation by the Student Welfare Committee into the many traffic, recreational and library problems.

Closer contact between the students and their administration, the student senators and their constituents and the students and administration.

An investigation and improvement of the Senators Program.
