

New Justices Preparing Student Court Procedure

By Steve Jordan
Junior Staff Writer

Setting up precedents in procedure, jurisdiction and application will occupy the Associated Students of the University of Nebraska Supreme Court this summer and next year.

"We will be all over the country this summer," according to Sue Turner, one of the six Associate Justices in the court, set up by the new ASUN constitution.

"However, Vernon Duncan (Chief Justice) and John Klein (Associate Justice) will be here and will go over the Judiciary Code in use by today's state and federal courts," and we'll all keep in touch."

"They will make a modification of this policy for our use," she said.

"It's going to be up to the students to make the court work effectively," Miss Turner said. "We are going to have to let them know that we are a functioning unit and make each student realize his power and become more active in student government."

"By next fall I'd like to see each student having read this constitution at least once," she said. "They need to know how to work through it and can then take an active interest in government."

"I'd also like to see more people come to the Senate meetings," Miss Turner said. "Students should make an effort to see how their government works and involve themselves in it."

"If the students realize what we can do for them, the court will be a beneficial aid," she said.

"We will officially take office the first day of classes next year," according to Associate Justice Larry Leistritz.

"We've just had one orientation meeting," Leistritz said. "The new court will generally assume the function of the old Judicial Committee."

"The court will be setting precedents and laying down the lines for future courts," Miss Turner said. "Our decisions will be in line with state and federal courts and directed toward the more unified, active student government."

"We will make decisions to be carried out," she said. "Any appeals will go to the Faculty Senate. We won't be deciding cases between individual students or disciplinary cases."

"Cases will be brought to us by any organization," she said. "We will be mainly concerned with disputes between organizations, forming and amending organizations' constitutions and disputes between students and organizations."

"We discussed having juries in some cases," Miss Turner said. "When an organization has a case and one of the justices belongs to the organization, he will become a non-voter."

"The work is all very difficult because we're just formulating our procedures," she said. "It's all very abstract now."

"We're almost going to have to advertise how to use the court," Miss Turner said. "I want to see a tighter, more organized and unified University with more power and definitely more activity. University goals should be unified also."

Tribunal, Pub Board To Interview

A sign up sheet for interview times for Student Tribunal will be posted on the Student Council office door. Interviews will be held the Saturday following spring vacation.

The Student Tribunal operates with the approval of the Faculty Senate and the consent of the Board of Regents. Its main purpose is student discipline. It consists of seven judges: four seniors, two juniors and one law student.

The tribunal reviews cases and makes recommendations for disciplinary action to the Dean of Student Affairs.

Students must fulfill the University eligibility requirements for participation in activities.

Interviews will be held Tuesday, April 27 in the Nebraska Union for Publications Board members.

Interested students may sign up for interview times in the Student Council office. Applications must be returned to the Council office by 5 p.m. Monday, April 26.

The responsibilities of the Publications Board are interviewing and choosing the paid staffs of the Daily Nebraskan and the Cornhusker and setting the policies for the two publications.

Indiana Professor To Speak Today

Dr. Herbert Muller, Professor of English and Government at Indiana University, and author of several books, including "The Uses of the Past," will give two lectures in Lincoln this week.

He will speak on "Prospects for the Open Society" at a University convocation today at 3:30 p.m. in the auditorium of Love Library. Tomorrow night, he will speak on "Freedom in the Modern World" at the Unitarian Church of Lincoln, 6300 A Street, at 8 p.m. There will be no admission charge.

Dr. Muller received his degrees at Cornell, and has taught there, at Purdue, and at the University of Istanbul. He has taught at Indiana University since 1956.

In addition to "The Uses of the Past," Dr. Muller has written "The Spirit of Tragedy," "The Loom of History," "Issue of Freedom," "Religion and Freedom in the Modern World," "Freedom in the Ancient World," and "Freedom in the Modern World."

His Lincoln appearances are being sponsored by the Conventions Committee of the University, the Unitarian Church of Lincoln and the Billings Lectureship of the Unitarian Universalist Association.

College Cowboys To Ride In Annual University Rodeo

College students from all over Nebraska will be riding, roping and steer wrestling that others may learn.

The 7th Annual Nebraska Collegiate Championship Rodeo will be held April 30 and May 1 at the State Fairgrounds Coliseum. Proceeds will go to the Lancaster Association for Retarded Children (LARC).

The rodeo, dovetailed with the Block and Bridle Horse Show, is sponsored by the University Rodeo Club. Participants in the rodeo are students from four year and junior colleges in the state. Schools invited this year are McCook Junior College, Kearney State College, Hastings College, Milford Trade School, Norfolk Junior College, Peru State College, Wayne State College, Union College, Nebraska Wesleyan University, Midland College, Doane College and Fairbury Junior College.

The rodeo will also provide two $100 scholarships — one to a University freshman who is in Rodeo Club and has participated in the state high school rodeo, the other to a club member who is a senior and has been active in the club though not necessarily in rodeo.

Female participants may join in barrel racing, ribbon dogging and goat tying.

An added event this year is the Fraternity Wild Cow Race in which teams of three boys must catch a cow, saddle her and ride her across a designated finish line. A rodeo queen will be chosen from candidates put up by individual living units on the campus.
