

Neumeister, Poppert Vie For President

Five men are seeking to lead over 13,000 students in the most important student executive body at the University.

Included in the five are two candidates for president of the new Student Association, Kent Neumeister and Bill Poppert, and three candidates for the vice presidency of the Association, Larry Frolik, Rich Meier and Andy Taube.

The Daily Nebraskan interviewed each candidate to find out what he feels will be the most important problems he will have to face if elected and what he will do if elected. Today we present the interviews with the candidates for president, and tomorrow the vice-presidency candidates' interviews will be printed.

"I want to be president of all the students and of all the different colleges and of all the different living units," said Kent Neumeister as he explained what things he would like to accomplish as president of the Student Association.

Neumeister listed three main projects that he would like to start if elected: Teacher and course appraisal, a pageant of University students for the Nebraska centennial and a better organization of the alumni activities.

He explained that he wants to establish a commission that will coordinate different organizations on campus such as Kosmet Klub, the Student Union and Builders to design a pageant for the 1967 Nebraska Centennial.

"This program will inform the people of the state about the role that the University has played in the state's history," he said.

He pointed out that a teacher and course appraisal book of some kind which would be administered by the students would help to better the relationship between the teachers and the students so that they could become assistants in education rather than adversaries.

Neumeister also explained that the University's alumni associations and the friends of the University should be better organized so that the University's many friends could work together throughout the state on such matters as the school's budget.

He also suggested commissions to do such things as expand the student tutoring program, investigate recreation facilities and text book prices and increase the number of convocations, especially those of controversial speakers at the University.

Neumeister pointed out that he wants to reduce the tension between the Greeks and independents by searching for those qualities which the two systems have in common and rallying them together in such programs as the Centennial Pageant.

"If I'm elected," he said, "I will use the best creative talents of all groups for the benefit of the whole University."

Neumeister is a member of the Arts & Sciences College and has a 7.763 average. He is presently a Student Council representative and chairman of the Counselling Service Committee and former chairman of the Libraries Committee. He lives in Selleck Quadrangle.

Bill Poppert said that he felt "getting the new Constitution to work right" would be one of his main jobs next year if elected president of the Student Association.

Poppert said that the way the new Constitution and student government is set up there could be a Greek-Independent split.

"The new Constitution," he said, "lends itself to political parties and this of course could split so that one side is Greek and the other Independent. This could happen, but it definitely shouldn't."

Poppert pointed out that organizing the new government under the new Constitution will be a full time job. He said that if he is elected he will see to it that the student government is a better all around government instead of overloading it with a lot of things that really have nothing to do with governing.

He explained that one of the main things he would like to do is open the Student government committees to people outside of just the representatives.

"If we opened the Student Association committees," he said, "we could promote student interest in the problems of the University and also we would be limiting the representatives to as few committees as possible so they could devote more time and effort to a few."

Poppert said that he wants to help independents get into some activities and he said that he didn't feel they had always had the chances they deserve.

"I'm not campaigning on a pro-Greek or pro-Independent ticket, but on a pro-University attitude," he stressed.

Poppert is a member of Pharmacy College and has a 5.9 average. He is a member of Delta Sigma Phi Fraternity and is presently a Student Council representative.

He is chairman of the Student Council parking committee and IFC rush chairman.

Klein Withdraws

John Klein today announced his withdrawal from the Associated Students of the University of Nebraska (ASUN) race and threw his support for the presidency of the student body to Bill Poppert.

In a statement to the Daily Nebraskan, Klein offered his help to the new president in "drawing up and introducing legislation with respect to the procedure for establishing the constitution and programs to make student government a more effective and significant force."

Klein said he withdrew from the race because of a heavy academic schedule. His withdrawal leaves two candidates in the running: Poppert and Kent Neumeister. Larry Frolik, who with Poppert, drew Klein's support, has paired himself with Neumeister on a joint ticket.

The all-campus election for Senate and executive positions under the newly adopted constitution is next Wednesday.

Klein said he held that the success of the new constitution depends upon the election of competent people, and "with the exception of Bill Poppert and Larry Frolik, I feel that the candidates who have filed . . . demonstrate no promise of competence to effectively establish the new government."

Klein, who was a member of the constitutional convention which drew up the new document, is a sophomore in the College of Law. He has previously been appointed to a position next year on the Student Court, where he will serve as an associate justice.

Neumeister and Poppert, both juniors, were not on the convention.

In addition to Frolik, Rich Meier and Andy Taube have filed for vice president.

Schedule Announced For Masters Week

The University Masters Program, scheduled for May 2-4, gives students an unusual opportunity to meet and talk with alumni leaders who have achieved outstanding success in their chosen fields.

"The program provides a stimulation and valuable experience for students, and it gives the Masters an unusual opportunity to share their wisdom with young people who are eager to learn," said University Chancellor Clifford Hardin.

"The Masters Program has earned a firm place as one of the most important events of the University year," he said.

According to Bill Coufal, student chairman, "The focus of the Masters Program is on the future, a future which sometimes seems ominous to the student. I urge all students to participate in Masters Week, and I am sure you will find it to be a most stimulating and rewarding experience."

Masters for 1965 are Paul Babson, Dr. James Jensen, Dr. Paul Bare, Gene Robb, Arthur Weaver, Herbert Brownell, Harold Corey, Mrs. Hazel Stebbins, Judge John Brown, William McClery and Harold Andersen.

The Masters Week schedule is as follows:

FSNCC Booth To Collect Contributions For Gulfport

Friends of SNCC (Student Non-Violence Coordinating Committee) will sponsor "Dollar Days" today and tomorrow. A booth will be set up in the Student Union where students may make contributions for the maintenance of the Gulfport project.

The main task of the Gulfport project, which operates in North Gulfport, Miss. and the larger Gulfport area, is one of organizing the Negro populace for political action. It includes voter registration work, teaching the people the contents of the Mississippi constitution and organizing "block captains" to aid in registration.

Work is also done in recruiting people to the Freedom Democratic Party and balloting to show the relative effect in politics the Mississippi Negro could have. Programs include discussion groups on political machinery and local issues.

Candidate Correction

Tom Pickering is a candidate for Student Senate from Graduate College instead of Arts and Sciences as was previously announced in the Daily Nebraskan.

Honorary Seeks Eligible Students

A University senior, E. Vee Riggs, has been named the outstanding advertising major in the School of Journalism.

By winning the honor, she received a trip to the annual New York Advertising Club's Advertising Marketing Week Program in New York City. The Lincoln Advertising Club provided a grant to finance the trip.

Panhellenic Gives Support To Future Beauty Contest

Panhellenic gave its support to the Miss University of Nebraska contest proposed by some former Miss Nebraska winners, as well as the present Miss Nebraska, Sandy Rice.

Mary Lee Jepsen, Miss Nebraska of 1962, spoke to the Council Monday, urging their support and signature on the franchise for the contest.

The University will be considered as a city, Miss Jepsen said, and will need some group to sign the franchise. Usually the Junior Chamber of Commerce for cities sign this, she said, but since the University has no JC group, she and the other girls felt Panhellenic would be a good group to sponsor it.

She said that Panhellenic should be interested in the contest and the pageant because "everything Panhellenic stands for, the Miss America pageant stands for."

Miss Jepsen pointed out that the pageant stresses scholarship, talent, poise—all of which are stressed by Panhellenic.

Although Panhellenic did not vote their support for the contest, they held off on voting on the question of signing the franchise until they could "discuss it further next week."

The contest, which has the approval of Dean G. Robert Ross, according to Miss Jepsen, will be held May 23, with part of the activities taking place May 22.

Miss Jepsen told the Council that some of the other Miss Nebraskas were working on other parts of the contest, such as contacting the Nebraska Union about using their facilities to hold the contest.

An admission fee of 50 cents will be charged for the contest, so the $50 entry fee for the Miss Nebraska contest would be provided, she said.

This would leave only two obligations for Panhellenic, according to Miss Jepsen. These would be making sure the money is paid, and getting the winner to the Miss Nebraska contest in York.

Miss Jepsen pledged to be personally responsible for the $50 entry fee, should this not be made through the admission charge.

According to Miss Jepsen, the contest would foster two goals: facilitate better independent-Greek coordination and promote more Greek participation.

In other business Panhellenic members heard plans of a Greek newsletter from Jim DeMars, Interfraternity publicity chairman.

DeMars said that IFC is planning to back such a newsletter beginning with five or six trial issues next year, and would like assistance from Panhellenic.

"We need something to let us know what's going on in our own system," DeMars said.

Bill Coufal, Masters Committee chairman, reminded the Council that May 2 is the beginning of Masters Week, and urged each member to take materials on the program and masters to their houses Monday night and go over them during house meetings.

In Council reports, the Presidents' Council reported that at their last meeting they had discussed methods of promoting more safety in houses. By safety, the Council referred to unsafe procedures now allowed whereby anyone can walk into a house anytime during the evening.

The Rush Council discussed problems of rushing, and proposed that each house turn in party themes to avoid duplications. Another suggestion was to cut out cocktail parties during rushing.

Diane Michel, president, reminded the Council that Rush Week will be from Sept. 1 to the 6th.

The Standards Council reported that they discussed proper attire for girls until the end of the year. This includes "no shorts and slacks on campus." The Council chairman pointed out that girls should not walk to class in their physical education clothes. These rules hold for downtown too, since girls "are representing the Greek system, your house and the University."

The Health Council report to the Panhellenic members proposed a health newsletter to be sent out once a month next year. This would include articles on such matters as preventive measures and facilities of Student Health.

Another Health Council suggestion calls for a Health Week to be held at the beginning of next year.

The Council discussed the Madeline Girard Award, to be presented on Ivy Day to the house with the most outstanding philanthropic program.

House applications for the award must be turned in to the Panhellenic office today.

Quiz Bowl Competition Begins Finals Tonight

Following the regular double elimination Quiz Bowl matches tonight, a special single elimination championship tournament will begin, according to Larry Johnson, retiring publicity chairman.

Without this extra tournament, there would be too many teams to compete in the finals tomorrow night, Johnson said.

The earlier matches include Theta Xi II versus Delta Upsilon at 7 p.m.; Alpha Gamma Rho versus Beta Theta Pi Pledges, 7:20; Phi Gamma Delta versus Eclectics, 7:40.

Avery House versus Beta Theta Pi, 8:00; Delta Upsilon versus Purple Gougers, 8:20; and Four Frosh versus The Olds, 8:40.

All teams in matches one, two and three must report to the south conference room by 7 p.m.

Those in the other matches must report to the south conference room by 8 p.m.

At 9 p.m. all teams not eliminated will report to the small auditorium for the beginning of the single elimination championship tournament.

After this preliminary championship tournament, the four teams remaining will compete in the finals tomorrow night over KUON-TV.

The University champion will be determined from those teams surviving the matches tonight and tomorrow night.

The Quiz Bowl competition this year began with 74 teams competing, and after tonight will be down to four teams.

Throughout the year questions which have stumped many participants have come from four basic areas and one extra field. These include history, literature, physical and natural sciences, fine arts and current events, from cartoons to sports to classics.

The Big Eight competition is set for May 15, and will be held in the auditorium of Sheldon Art Gallery. Competition will go on all day, and awards will be made that evening at a banquet.

All Big Eight schools but the University of Oklahoma have replied to invitations sent out by Nebraska, according to Larry Foster, new publicity chairman for Quiz Bowl.

The University's team for the Big Eight competition will be a composite of the various teams, formulated on the basis of questions answered correctly by persons during the year's competition.

Those persons who are strongest in each of the areas will be put on the team, Foster said.
