Friday the Daily Nebraskan carried a report on the presidential debate Thursday night between Kent Neumeister and Bill Poppert.

Davis Wins Engineering's Top Honor

An electrical engineering student at the University, Stephen Davis, is the winner of the 1965 O. J. Ferguson Award.

The Ferguson Award, named after the former dean of the College of Engineering and Architecture, is the highest honor an engineering student may receive at the University.

The award was presented Friday night at the annual E-Week Awards Banquet which climaxed a week of special activities for engineering students.

The Hamilton Watch Award for academic excellence was presented to Theron Carlson, a senior electrical engineering major.

The senior Pickett and Eckel Award was presented to Larry Wade, an electrical engineering major.

Allen Schroeder received the sophomore award. A chemical engineering major, Schroeder is the editor of the Nebraska Blueprint, a technical magazine for engineering students.

dential candidates, Rich Meier, Larry Frolik and Andy Taube explained their platforms.

Taube said he wanted to keep the Student Senate free from a lot of committee work and reports that should be done in the new government on the executive level.

He said that committees such as the Nebraska Student Government Committee needed to be improved and that the new Association should join one of the national student organizations.

He pointed out that students were now more or less paying for land where they park their cars on campus and that maybe instead of paying for this land, the money could be used to build a high rise parking building.

Taube also suggested that the University's counseling system needs to be changed and the people divorced from teaching and paper work should be used as counselors.

He said that the discrimination work done this year was a step in the right direction and that he thought that Senate members should hold informal sessions with faculty representatives frequently to discuss curricular needs.

Taube suggested that student forums could be held in the different colleges where the students would discuss such issues as Viet Nam. A student government representative would be present at these forums and then report back to the Senate.

"I have the time, experience and desire to be vice president," he said, "and I think I am flexible enough to work with either of the presidential candidates."

Frolik said he felt the vice president's one specific duty was to be the speaker of the Senate and to see to it that the senators carry out effective programs.

He pointed out that next year there will be no hold-over senate members as there are now and that experience such as his as executive secretary of Student Council this year will be needed in organizing new committees and helping new members out when they have problems.

He agreed with Taube that some committees should be moved to the new executive branch of the government.

Frolik said that the Student Welfare Committee has to be expanded and that there is a recreation problem, that Dead Week needs to be improved, that some type of teacher evaluation should be started and that we need to bring more controversial speakers to the campus.

He pointed out that the new government needs constructive non-conformists who aren't afraid of changes and he said we need a little "controlled rebellion."

Meier said he thought the Gaddy was wrong when it tried to move outside the existing structure of the school to improve things. Instead he called for "controlled rebellion" or changes inside the school's structure.

"The Gaddy has taken the easiest course," he stressed.

He said that the new government has to show the administration it is responsible, but that administration must take the first step in giving responsibility.

"In order for student government to demonstrate capability, administration must give it the chance to do so," said Meier.

Meier said women students over 21 should receive more freedom of action, the new government should join a national student association, that it should start teacher and course evaluation and that we need to continue stressing civil rights on the university campus.

"Student government should concern itself with issues that pertain to the students themselves and not waste time debating such questions as Viet Nam," he said.

Graduate Studies Abroad Available In 55 Countries

The competition for 1966-67 United States government graduate grants for academic study or research abroad, and for professional training in creative and performing arts, is now open. The Institute of International Education has announced.

The Institute conducts competitions for U.S. government scholarships provided by the Fulbright-Hays Act as part of the educational and cultural exchange program of the Department of State. Under this program, more than 800 American graduate students will have the opportunity to study in any one of 55 countries. The purpose of the awards is to increase mutual understanding between the people of the countries through the exchange of persons, knowledge and skills.

Candidates who wish to apply for an award must be U.S. citizens at the time of application and have a bachelor's degree or its equivalent by the beginning date of the grant, and be proficient in the language of the host country. Selections will be made on the basis of academic and/or professional record, the feasibility of the applicant's proposed study plan and personal qualifications. Preference is given to candidates who have not had prior opportunity for extended study or residence abroad and who are under the age of 35.

Creative and performing artists will not require a bachelor's degree, but must have four years of professional study or equivalent experience. Social workers must have at least two years of professional experience after the Master of Social Work degree. Applicants in the field of medicine must have an M.D. at the time of application.

Three types of grants will be available under the Fulbright-Hays Act: U.S. government full grants, joint U.S.-other government grants, and U.S. government travel-only grants. A full award will provide a grantee with tuition, maintenance, round-trip transportation, health and accident insurance and an incidental allowance. In Japan, Nepal, India and the Republic of China, a maintenance allowance will be provided for one or more accompanying dependents.

Joint U.S.-other government grants will provide tuition and full or partial maintenance from a foreign government, plus travel costs from the U.S. government. These grants will be available in three countries: Poland, Rumania and Yugoslavia.

Travel-only grants will supplement maintenance and tuition scholarships granted to American students by universities, private donors and foreign governments.

Countries participating in the full grants program will be: Afghanistan, Argentina, Australia, Austria, Belgium, Luxembourg, Bolivia, Brazil, Ceylon, Chile, China (Republic of), Colombia, Costa Rica, Denmark, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, El Salvador, Finland, France, Germany (Federal Republic of), Greece, and Guatemala, Haiti, Honduras, Iceland, India, Iran, Ireland, Italy, Japan, Korea, Malaysia, Mexico, Nepal, the Netherlands, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Norway, Pakistan, Panama, Paraguay, Peru, the Philippines, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, Thailand, Turkey, United Arab Republic, the United Kingdom, Uruguay, and Venezuela.

Travel-only grants will be available to Austria, Brazil, Denmark, France, Germany, Iceland, Israel, Italy, the Netherlands and Sweden.

Because of the growing interest in Inter-American studies, there are grants available to a number of Latin American republics in the fields of history, social sciences, political science, law, and humanities and other suitable fields. Grantees will live in university housing when available and will be expected to participate in the academic and social life of the students in the country of assignment. Applicants should have an interest in and knowledge of the Latin American area and specifically in the country or countries for which they are applying. Preference will be given to single applicants and to applicants who are well informed on the American political and social scene. Candidates for grants to Latin America may be called for a personal interview.

There will be opportunities for teaching assistantships in India and Italy for students interested in teaching English as a foreign language; also, teaching fellowships at universities in Italy for the teaching of American language and literature, history, philosophy, law, social work and clinical child psychology.

Application forms and information for students currently enrolled in the University may be obtained in the Administration Building.

The Institute of International Education is the largest nonprofit organization in the field of international exchange. It administers programs involving the exchange of students, scholars, leaders, artists, and professional men and women between the United States and more than 100 countries and also serves as a clearinghouse for information on all aspects of international exchange.
