

WEEK IN REVIEW

CAMPUS . . .

INNOCENTS AND MORTAR BOARDS were named for next year at the annual Ivy Day Saturday.

Mortar Boards for 1965-66 are Shirley Voss, president; Vicki Dowling, vice president; Jeanette Coufal, secretary; Patti Teel, treasurer; Barbara Beckman, historian; Cuz Guenzel, Percy Wood, Jean Holmquist, Linda Cleveland, Marsha Lester, Janice Whitney, Diane Michel, Judy Bucklin, and Cassie Wild.

Next year's Innocents are Brian Soiref, president; Everett Madson, vice president; Bruce Snyder, secretary; Robert Wilburn, treasurer; Lawrence Frolik, sergeant at arms; Kent Neumeister, John Luckasen, John Cosier, William Haug, William Harding, John Baldwin, Donald Pont and Frank Partsch.

THE STUDENT COUNCIL met for the last time yesterday as the Association of the Students of the University of Nebraska took over student government here.

Kent Neumeister accepted the gavel from Student Council President John Lydick, and an announcement was made that a John Lydick Award had been established to recognize an outstanding senator each year.

SUPREME COURT JUSTICE William O. Douglas addressed an All-University Convocation Wednesday, and said that federal courts, in the "troubled times of the past few decades," have done "yoeman service" on the racial issue.

CITY . . .

LINCOLN AIR FORCE BASE sponsored its last annual Air Show Saturday, including sky divers and supersonic jets.

Over 7,500 spectators watched an F-106 fly past at 7:57 p.m., and sky divers from Fort Riley, Kansas, jumped into 50 m.p.h. winds.

THE LINCOLN ROMAN CATHOLIC DIOCESE will offer its first celebrated mass this Sunday at 10:00 a.m.

Bishop James Casey will join seven other priests for the service at the new Cathedral of Risen Christ.

STATE . . .

TORNADOES CLAIM at least four people dead, dozens injured, and damage that will soar into the thousands of dollars from the severe weather that swept across Nebraska Saturday. The central and eastern sections received the brunt of the tornadoes that included high winds, hail and rain from thunderstorms that moved northeastward.

WILLA CATHER, Nebraska Pulitzer Prize winner was honored at a tenth anniversary Pioneer Memorial Conference in Red Cloud. Sen. Kenneth Bowen read a proclamation officially designating part of Webster County as "Catherland."

NATION . . .

JOHNSON DECLARES his determination not to abandon our commitment to South Viet Nam. In a press conference on American efforts in Viet Nam, the President said the aim of Communist China "is to erode and discredit America's ability to help to prevent Chinese domination over all of Asia, but in this they shall never succeed."

LUNIK 5, launched by the Soviet Union and landed on the moon Wednesday, has stopped giving signals.

Tass, the Russian news agency said that the proposed soft landing of the satellite provided much information "which is necessary for the further elaboration of a system for a soft landing on the moon's surface."

Speculation was made as to whether the retrorockets slowed the ship enough for a soft landing.

A U.S. AIRCRAFT CARRIER has canceled a refueling stop in South Africa later this month because her Negro crew members would be "unwelcome" according to officials.

The carrier is named the Independence.

Strateman, DeMars Nominated

... Letters Due Monday

The Daily Nebraskan's first letter of nomination for Outstanding Nebraskan was for Jim DeMars.

"DeMars," the letter said, "has probably devoted more time to University activities than almost any other junior at the University."

The letter praised him for his tireless effort at organizing student contributions to University and for his "organizing ability."

"A hard worker, who isn't afraid to be the first at taking on a new job. A constant fighter of student apathy and disinterest." Both of these statements were used to describe DeMars.

"A junior such as DeMars who has given so much of his time to the University and who has willingly taken so many jobs deserves some kind of recognition as truly one of Nebraska's outstanding," the letter said.

"DeMars has worked in everything from his own fraternity and campus politics to encouraging students to take part in charities," the nominator stressed.

He is presently president of Theta Xi fraternity and past vice president and secretary.

"DeMars is mainly possible for his fraternity's ever increasing interest and leadership in student activities and scholarship," the letter stressed.

He has received both the Theta Xi Service Scholarship and greatest scholastic improvement awards.

DeMars has been vice president of Young Democrats for two years and has taken a great deal of interest in encouraging student participation in state and national politics.

He is student state chairman of the Kennedy Library Memorial Drive.

On IFC he was recently appointed the first chairman of the IFC Publications Committee. "This position," the letter nominating DeMars said, "is just an example of the many projects DeMars has taken leadership in organizing and putting into effective operation."

DeMars, the letter continued, is also secretary of All University Fund and has constantly worked at interesting students in the importance of charities and helping people outside the University's own world.

On the Cornhusker he has been a section editor and next year will be in charge of all copy that goes into the book as copy editor. He has also been a Spring Day chairman and was the 1965 assistant overall spring day chairman.

"DeMars' work for Spring Day publicity a year ago," the letter stressed, "was the most effective and colorful advertising a University activity has ever had."

Not forgetting scholarship, the letter also said that DeMars has maintained a solid B average and is currently vice president of Pi Sigma Alpha, political science honorary.

The letter nominating Miss Strateman stressed her "high scholastic standards" as well as her "essential characteristics of leadership."

"JoAnn ranks first in her senior class, with an 8.7 average. She received special recognition at the honors convocation, and was the recipient of the Motar Boards' award for the highest women's average."

The letter said Miss Strateman is the recipient of a Woodrow Wilson grant, and is a candidate for a Fulbright Grant.

"JoAnn is truly interested in studying and learning for the sake of learning," the letter said.

Spring Choral Concert To Be Given Sunday

The Spring Choral Concert, presented by the College of Agriculture Choir, will be held at 3 p.m. Sunday in the Activities Building.

The choir, directed by Mrs. Adelaide Spurgin, will present "Campus Projections."

ter continued. "Her attitude toward her school work is that of a true scholar."

While in college Miss Strateman served as secretary of Associated Women Students and on the AWS tribunal, in addition to numerous activities in the past, according to the letter. "She served as standards chairman for her sorority, and as such, tried to help others maintain high standards in all phases of their campus life," the letter said.

LAST PLAY . . . for the 1964-65 University Theatre season, "Antony and Cleopatra," starts Thursday, May 20 and will run through May 23.

Lady-Like Female Throws Discus For Track Team

By Priscilla Mullins Senior Staff Writer Hey guys! You had better get on the ball. There's a sophomore coed at the University who can probably beat some of you in discus throwing.

She's blonde, blue-eyed, 5-6½ and 20 years old. Her name? Carol Moseke.

She may be only a girl and a small one at that—but can she throw that discus! While her performance at Spring Day was only 128 feet, Carol has in the past thrown the discus 154 feet.

Carol got her start in girls' track while she was a junior at Cedar Rapids High School. Beginning in the summer of 1962, she competed in national competition for women's track. She won second place in the nation in shot put for the girls' division (age 14-18) that first summer. The next summer she placed fourth in the shot put and sixth in the discus—this time in the women's division (age 18 on).

During the summer of 1963 she also participated in the national pentathlon, winning ninth place in the women's division.

Last summer Carol again participated in national competition for track, winning fifth in the women's discus throw and seventh in the women's shot put. Carol is a member of a girls' track team for Roberts Dairy. The team, called the "Road Runners," has been midwest AAU (Amateur Athletic Union) champion for the past two years, and will try for a third title this Saturday.

Carol's philosophy on girls in track is that while girls can't do as well as boys because they aren't built well enough for such rigorous competition, they still deserve a chance to show what they are capable of.

She said that she did not

Iowa State Assesses Highest Midwest Tuition

Iowa State University had the highest undergraduate resident tuition among 11 Midwest state supported institutions in the 1964-65 school year. The undergraduate non-resident tuition ranked fifth.

Undergraduate resident tuition totaled $345; nonresident tuition was $750. Both paid $69 in special allocation with the balance going into the operating fund.

Michigan State University followed Iowa State in resident tuition with $324.

"The Pool of Knowledge," a landscape fountain at Colorado State University was drained recently and will remain drained according to officials at the University.

Such things as carp, cigarette packages, and plastic bags were found by employees when the pool was drained last week. The float that controls the water level in the pool has been stolen at least ten times.

William McGregor, Physical Plant manager said that during the last day of operation the float was stolen three times. He went on to say that the pool would be refilled, but that if more vandalism occurred, it would be drained permanently during the school year.

The University of Colorado sponsored a ten-hour teach-in last Thursday and Friday on the United States' war in Viet Nam.

Nearly 3,000 students jammed into the ballroom where it was held to hear the program. Some 50 speakers commented on the highly controversial subject of Viet Nam during the teach-in.

The three thousand had dwindled to several hundred as the meeting ended at 8 a.m. Although the program debate had ended, smaller groups carried the discussion on into the day.

In general the reaction was that the teach-in was valuable, but that nothing new was said.

If the University of California is to avoid future student revolts of the sort that have plagued its Berkeley campus since last autumn, the university must reorganize its structure to keep pace with the times that produce such so-

Math Experts To Lecture This Weekend

Two internationally known mathematicians will lecture to students and faculty members at the University Friday and Saturday.

Dr. George Polya of Stanford University will appear under the auspices of the Nebraska Career Scholar, and National Science Foundation Teacher Development Programs.

Dr. Raymond Wilder of the University of Michigan will appear under auspices of the Nebraska-South Dakota Section of the Mathematical Association of America.

Polya will speak at 10:30 a.m. Friday at the 501 Building, City Campus, on "Research Problems on the High School Level." His Lecture at 10 a.m. Saturday in the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education is entitled "Three Aspects of Mathematics: Intuition, Guess and Proof." The latter address is a part of the program of the Nebraska Academy of Sciences.

Wilder will also deliver two lectures, "An Elementary Property of Closed Coverings of Manifolds" at 3:30 p.m. Friday in Burnett Hall, and "The Role of the Axiomatic Method," at 2:15 p.m. Saturday in the Nebraska Center.

Polya, born in Hungary and educated in European institutions, is the author of over 200 research papers and several outstanding monographs and books on mathematics.

Wilder's best known work to date is his "Introduction to the Foundations of Mathematics." He has served as president of the Mathematical Association, lectured in a number of American universities, and was a Guggenheim fellow in 1940.

This is the essence of a special report to university regents on basic causes of student unrest as evidenced by Berkeley disorders of the past eight months.

The 85-page report on a four-month study headed by Beverly Hills Atty. Jerome Byrne was recently delivered to a regents' committee and made public.

Byrne, in a news conference stressed that he and his staff sought not to assess blame for the conflict but to identify its causes and propound a cure.

Accordingly, the Byrne report is a positive, constructively-worded document which points no finger at individuals and names no names.

But implicit in it is a sympathetic acceptance of the source of student unrest, coupled with a critical representation of the university's disciplinary methods, administrative structure and board of regents' conception of its purposes.

Navy To Present Awards Tuesday In Love Library

The University Naval ROTC Unit will hold its annual Awards Day on Tuesday at 2:30 in the Love library auditorium.

Captain H. A. Pahl, USN, of the staff of the Strategic Air Command at Offutt Air Force Base will give the principle address. Several other distinguished guests will present awards to outstanding midshipmen in all four classes.

The afternoon program will include the award presentation in the library followed by a reception in the Pawnee room of the Nebraska Union to honor the recipients.

Parents of the award-winning midshipmen will be present at the presentation and reception.

'Tuition May Be Increased To Meet Budget Requests' ... Says Chancellor Hardin

By Priscilla Mullins Senior Staff Writer

The tuition increase proposed by the Nebraska Legislature could be made a part of the legislation concerning the University's budget, according to Chancellor Clifford Hardin.

Hardin said that the Budget Committee of the Legislature has said that the University must raise the tuition to accomplish all that is called for in the budget requests.

However, he added, things are in such a state of flux right now that no one can say for sure what will happen.

He said that if the Legislature should leave the amount of increase to the Regents, he would predict that the increase would not exceed the Legislature's proposal in any area.

Hardin said that the action taken last week on the University's capital improvement bill demonstrated that a majority of the legislators "squarely faced some of the real problems facing the University and have proceeded to do something about them."

"I hope they approach the biennial operating budget with the same understanding," he said.

If a tuition increase were to come about, it would probably be in the fall, since the Budget Committee has recommended this, Hardin said.

In Tuesday's legislative action, state senators rejected efforts to cut deeply in recommended appropriations for the University and the state colleges and buried an attempt to eliminate the proposed tuition increase.

An attempt was made by Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff to eliminate the proposed increase, but his measure was defeated 3-37.

Going along with Carpenter's measure were Senators Fern Hubbard Orme of Lincoln and Edward Danner of Omaha.

$2,660,000 from the general fund to remove the need for a tuition increase. Attempting a reduction in the University's budget requests was Senator Clifton Batchelder of Omaha. He proposed an amendment calling for a $2.1 million decrease in the request.

Batchelder's attempt was defeated 14-26. Other senators speaking on the proposed tuition increase included Elvin Adamson of Valentine. He said that many Nebraskans have to make tax sacrifices to finance increased building and operating costs at the educational institutions, and students should share the burden.

Fred Carstens of Beatrice said that he thinks "it's wrong for these young people to believe that we owe them an education."

Batchelder said the institutions are "subsidizing" non-resident students. He proposed cuts representing the difference between amounts paid by out-of-state students and actual costs of educating each student.

"Are you here to serve the taxpayers of this state, or are you here supporting the local chambers of commerce and the educational pressures that are brought to bear?" he asked.

Senator George Gerdes of Alliance, budget vice-chairman, said he thought that "this budget has been cut to the bone, I'm sure." He added that further reductions would "cut down the quality of education."

Mrs. Calista Hughes of Humboldt said that she was supporting the committee's recommended tuition increases because she felt statistics proved present non-resident rates are too low.

The only amendment adopted in the Legislature Tuesday earmarked the $8,197,237 recommended by the committee for the College of Medicine at Omaha.

Carpenter said that it would prevent any diversion of appropriations from medicine to other branches of the University.
