

University Scholarships To Exceed $1.3 Million

More than $1,350,000 in gift scholarships and grants are being awarded to students for the 1965-66 school year.

While the deadline for applications was in February, many students don't seem to realize this, according to Edward Lundak, Director of Scholarships.

"We have just finished awarding the scholarships for the incoming freshmen," Lundak said, and "the target date for informing all of the other upperclassmen, business and professional scholarships and other special awards, is the first week in June."

He said he hopes all the students will be notified before they leave for the summer.

"Most of our awards are made on a year to year basis, and therefore must be renewed or reapplied for, from year to year," he said.

In order to be considered for a scholarship as an incoming freshman, there are three criteria. The freshman must be in the upper one-third of his class, must have a recommendation from his principal and must take the Regents exam.

An evaluation is then made of his total high school performance and points are assigned accordingly. There are a possible 14 points on the basis of class ranking, 30 points possible depending on the Regents performance, 10 points on the basis of the principal's recommendation, 10 points from the types of courses taken in high school and 10 points possible on the basis of extra-curricular activities.

"Most of them scored right up there, with 96 and 97," Lundak said.

In order to be considered for an upper class scholarship the student must have at least a 6.0 average and be taking at least 12 hours at the time he will be using the scholarship. He must take the upper class Regents exam.

To evaluate or rank the student, there are three criteria used: his cumulative average, his test score and his class ranking.

To assign an evaluation number, the student's cumulative average is multiplied by ten and his test score is added to this.

"We are going to rely more and more on the student's ability to demonstrate proficiency than we have in the past, and less on the test score," Lundak said.

"There are five parts to the test and students may take any four. Most of them—in fact 64 per cent took the math, English, history and science parts and left out the fine arts part."

"Our scholarships range from a high of $1,500 a year to a low of $100. We have very few that are below $100," he said.

"The average award made is that of the tuition. The student must pay the general fees, the money that goes to Student Health, Student Union, the Daily Nebraskan and other areas," Lundak said.

The money for scholarships comes from the Nebraska Foundation. They have about $7,000,000 invested in stocks, bonds, farms and other areas. The interest, about four per cent, is used to finance scholarships," Lundak said.

"The Nebraska Foundation has had a hard time getting going. In fact it was well into the 1950's before they had over a million dollars."

"We also award over $400,000 in National Defense Funds. You need only a 5.0 or above average to be eligible for these. The deadline each year is March."

"We also have local funds for emergency loans," Lundak said. "These are made at any time to students who become ill or can't pay their tuition for some good reason."

Although it is too late to be considered for scholarships next year, this year's freshmen and sophomores should be thinking about applying for the school year of 1966-67.

because his name had been typed on the bottom of each ballot rather than being rotated and because the Daily Nebraskan had not listed his name on their sample ballot.

Bob Kerrey, chairman of the Elections Committee, earlier explained that the Elections Committee felt the election for fifth place should be held over because they had originally left Suhr's name off the ballot and had typed it on the bottom of each one. He said the Daily Nebraskan's mistake was not the Committee's error.

Psota argued to Student Court that the Elections Committee said only that typing the name on the bottom of each ballot "could have had an effect on the election's validity" and that he felt it hadn't.

He said he had talked to Alan P. Bates, chairman of the Sociology department, who said that the position of a name on the ballot might have some merit, but that it was so minor that it made little difference.

He also said that names of political candidates are not rotated on state ballots.

Kerrey said the committee followed a practice of rotating the names, but that there was no specific law dealing with the rotation of candidates' names for student elections.

Suhr said that he felt because of the extreme closeness of the election his name being on the bottom of each ballot did have an effect. He pointed out that most people didn't know that they could vote for less than five and thus many might have just circled the first couple names.

has promoted the interests of her state on a local and national level," the letter conclude.

Miss Walburn

In the letter of nomination for Suzi Walburn, the writer cited her "extended interest in the whole campus, and not just in herself."

The letter said that Miss Walburn "has demonstrated true leadership abilities through her positions in various organizations."

She served as president of the Student Union, first vice president of her sorority, Alpha Chi Omega, president of Panhellenic, president of the Big Eight Panhellenic and a Motar Board.

"Suzi's membership on the Mortar Board shows that she is considered outstanding on the campus," the letter said. "Her selection as Big Eight Panhellenic president shows that the other schools in the midwest area recognized Suzi's leadership abilities."

The letter said Suzi is "efficient in organizations and her dealings with other people. She is pleasant to work with, and she handles her responsibilities well," the letter added.

According to the letter, Miss Walburn was named to Gamma Gamma, a new Greek honorary. "She is a dedicated person and has worked long and hard for the Greek system."

"More than this, though," the letter concluded, "Suzi is a tireless worker for her school, her scholastic work and her state."

Nebraskan Encourages Applications For Editor

Applications for lower staff positions on the Daily Nebraskan are heavy, according to Editor Frank Partsch, but very few students have applied for editorial positions next year.

"Judging by the number of applications and quality of applicants for the staff writer and copy editor positions, the new editor and his editorial board should have smooth sailing next year," Partsch said. "The problem is finding a new editor."

The applications are available at the Daily Nebraskan office and at the office of the School of Journalism, and must be returned to the Daily Nebraskan office or the School of Journalism office by May 25. The Daily Nebraskan will end its activities for the year with the publishing of next Friday's paper, to give the staff a chance to observe "Dead Week," as was done last semester.

Interviews for the top positions—editor, managing editor, news and sports editors and business manager—will be held during the week of May 24-28, with the newly chosen senior staff choosing business assistants, staff writers, photographer and copy editors immediately thereafter. Applicants will be notified of interview times.

The senior staff members are chosen by the Faculty Subcommittee on Student Publications (Pub Board.)

At the present time, Partsch said, no applications had been received for editor, and two each for managing and news editor. "It looks right now as if anyone would be able to just walk in and pick it up," he said. "I wish a little more interest could be aroused, because of the necessity of having a strong newspaper and of the personal benefits gained by staff members."

Partsch said "scheduling difficulties and professional reasons" prevented him from reapplying for the position of editor.
