

Enrollment Increase Creates Dormitory Demand

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third in a series of articles exploring the expansion going on at the University.

By Beth Robbins

With University enrollment on the upswing, there is a constant demand for additional housing. "Planners are responding to the need," according to Carl Donaldson, University business manager.

According to University plans, one new dormitory will be finished each year for the next three years.

Abel Hall, named for George B. Abel, Lincoln contractor, is the first of these dormitories. "Finished for all practical purposes," workers are pouring sidewalks and completing details, according to Donaldson. They are also moving the furniture into the building he said.

The massive dormitory, "like Pound and Cather Halls, jammed together," will house 88 people on each floor. This will include two counselors. The floors will be divided into two sections for activities and dorm government, according to Donaldson.

To speed transportation in the building, two of its four elevators will serve floors one through six, the other two floors seven through twelve.

Designed by Davis and Wilson of Lincoln, the total cost of the dormitory will reach between 4.25 and 4.5 million dollars, Donaldson said.

Right next to Abel Hall on 17th Street, a second new dormitory is also rising. Although, as Donaldson said, the new dormitories "can be shifted either way as the population changes," the University presently plans to house 440 women there in the fall of 1966. The Board of Regents has not yet named the building.

The third new dormitory is planned for a site on North 14th Street, to be finished in 1967. It will house between 12 and 14 hundred students, Donaldson said.

The University is also considering building a housing complex to be leased by sororities and fraternities. This idea is "widely accepted" among the various houses as one possible solution to the land and housing shortage, according to Mike Gottschalk, expansion chairman of Interfraternity Council.

Gottschalk and Donaldson agreed that the confined position of the campus will pose problems for future expansion.

"Were adequate housing available," Gottschalk said, "at least two more fraternities would colonize the Nebraska campus next year, and as many as five in the next five years."

A similar situation exists among sororities, according to Miss Madeline Girard, Panhellenic advisor.

According to Miss Girard and Gottschalk, one sorority, Gamma Phi Beta, and two fraternities, Phi Gamma Delta and Alpha Tau Omega, are building additions this summer. The ATO Annex has been leased by the Alpha Delta Pi sorority. They are renovating the house and will move in next fall, Miss Girard said.

In compliance with the Board of Regents' housing code, which goes into effect this fall, Phi Delta Theta, Theta Xi and Sigma Chi fraternities are being remodeled. Several others will be repaired extensively or remodeled in the next few years, Gottschalk said.

The main causes for expansion or remodeling are a lack of space, the University housing code and a need to meet city fire regulations, Gottschalk said.

Criminals Not 'Coddled'

"You can go to our files and pull out the case histories and they'll show that mental illness is not what makes a man a convict," he said.

He said the files would show that something like 70 per cent of all inmates are unskilled, lacking in education, lacking in spiritual training. They have a low-to-normal IQs and alcohol somewhere in their background, involving either a parent or themselves, and an almost complete lack of an interest that would let them use their leisure time constructively.

"So other sociological problems, not mental illness, are involved," Sigler said.

And, he added, it is doubtful if psychiatric treatment could have helped Starkweather.

"He killed once and it didn't bother him. Then he killed some more. And then he was killing to cover up evidence. There was never any remorse."

"Sure, circumstances of environment were involved. And maybe a psychiatrist could have helped him at an early age. But when he came here he was a vicious animal," Sigler said.

Education Institute Being Held

Thirty secondary school teachers have been selected to attend an Institute for Educational Media Specialists at the University this summer.

The Institute is designed to train teachers as coordinators of instructional materials in school buildings, according to Dr. Robert Stepp, member of the University staff and Institute director.

Participants will be introduced to and given experience in all phases of the operation of audio-visual equipment, production, of materials and administration of an instructional materials center.

The Institute is financed by a $44,000 grant from the U.S. Office of Education under the National Defense Education Act.

Participants include: Melvin Abrahamson, Ralston; Alva Cavett, Lincoln; Dorothy Coleman, Pineville, La.; Richard Corwine, Millard; Thomas Crockett, Lincoln; Richard Cronin, Hastings; Elizabeth Dillon, Grand Island; Glen Dockins, Farmington, Mo.

Mary Douglass, Lincoln; Darlene Goldammer, Seward; Doyle Gump, Lincoln; Myrtle Hall, Sargent; Leo Halahan, Wilcox, Ariz.; John Kuczer Jr., Bellevue; Jerry Ludwig, Bellevue; William Moss, Bellevue; Marjorie Neeland, Chadron; Gary Nickels, Beatrice; John Potter, Ottumwa, Ia.;

Library Institute In Session Now

A four-day conference on the "Creative Instructional Uses of Reference Materials" is being held at the Nebraska Center this week, ending tomorrow.

More than 100 elementary teachers, librarians and a group of authorities on early childhood teaching are attending.

The program, sponsored by Teachers College and coordinated by Dr. O. W. Kopp, chairman of the department of elementary education, gives the teachers a chance to observe reference material lessons in the Clare McPhee Laboratory School.

Each participant is given the opportunity to develop a project involving the use of instructional materials with the hope that unique approaches will be developed.

Public Health Job Interviews Set For July 15

August graduates from the University will have the opportunity to talk to John Andrews, Public Health Advisor, with the Venereal Disease Branch of the U.S. Public Health Service.

Andrews will be at the campus July 15 to interview graduates for positions as Program Representatives (VD).

He will be interested in having interviews with B.A. or B.S. majors in the biological sciences, English, language, journalism, public administration, psychology, the social sciences, speech, communication arts, math or the humanities.

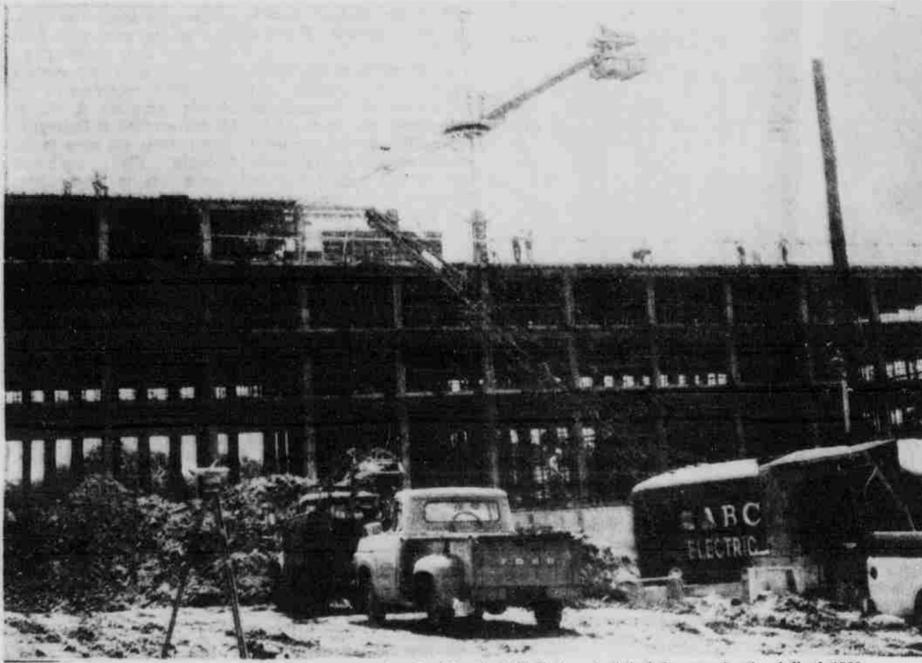

Interested students should come to the Placement Office in 340 Nebraska Union as soon as possible to make individual appointments with Andrews.

University Women Offered Opportunity For Rec. Swimming

Women students and faculty members have the opportunity for recreational swimming in the Coliseum swimming pool from 2:30-3:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

A ten cent fee for laundering of suits and towels is charged to those not in a swimming class.

Swimmers are asked to bring their own caps, although suits and towels are furnished.

The new girls' dorm now under construction beside Abel Hall, is scheduled for use in the fall of 1966.

Twenty-six Journalists Completing Internships

Twenty-six School of Journalism students are completing professional internships this summer, according to Dr. William E. Hall, director of the School of Journalism.

Twenty-one are employed on the editorial staffs of newspapers, two in broadcasting and three in advertising. All but five are working in Nebraska.
