

University Begins Lettered Grading

It's as simple as A-B-C. And also D and F. Beginning this semester grading will be changed from the 9 point system to the letter system. The 9 point system was begun at the university in 1947.

The Faculty Senate last year approved a motion by Dean Walter Milltzer of the Planning Begins On New Building

A section of the playing field north of University High School is the site chosen for the proposed women's physical education building. A tentative program has been drawn up, according to Carl Donaldson, University business manager, and referred to a committee studying the project. Leo A. Daly and Sons of Omaha have been selected as the architects. Donaldson said the building should be constructed by fall, 1967—"depending on how fast we can get the material together."

Plans for the $1.8 million structure include a swimming pool and play area which do not resemble the conventional gymnasium.

The building will replace Grant Memorial Hall, which was recently razed. Women's physical education courses are currently being held in University High School, the Coliseum and Nebraska and Bancroft Halls.

College of Arts and Sciences urging the adoption of the A, B, C, D and F system with point values of 4, 3, 2, 1 and 0 respectively for these grades.

The motion also stated that "I" will stand for incomplete and "W" for withdrawn.

In the new system, A through D will be passing and F failing. There will be no distinctions between the grades such as minus or plus.

Dr. Floyd Hoover, registrar, said that grades already on Records will start with the new system.

If students need transcripts which include both types of grading systems, a note will be included explaining them.

No decision has been made by the Interfraternity Council on what grade average would be required for pledges to be activated.

Miss Madeline Girard, Panhellenic adviser, said that no decision has been made on the average to be required for sorority pledges for initiation, but expects the matter will be discussed and possibly a decision made at the Monday meeting.

Abel Men To Select Leaders

Student government in Abel Hall, the University's newest residence hall, will begin functioning within the next few weeks according to Richard Fowler, resident director of Abel North.

Tentative plans have been made to hold election of officers on each floor and establish an all-Abel council within a few weeks said Fowler. "We foresee a strong house government with the council as an overall governing body," he said.

The council, which will in all probability consist of the presidents of each floor, will also serve as a means of communication between Abel and the other residence halls," he added.

According to Fowler, the student government will be used to institute social and intellectual programs, provide a sense of unity throughout the hall, and allow dorm residents to gain valuable governmental experience.

The various governing bodies will probably be under the supervision of Fowler's assistants, although he plans to allow the groups to make their own decisions on a wide variety of topics.

Fowler stressed that only tentative plans have been made along these lines, and that further details and final decisions concerning Abel's student government will come during the latter part of the semester.
