

COLIN JACKSON . . . Member of British Parliament, speaks on war in Viet Nam.

Briton Says U.S. Bombing Purposeless

"Bombing in Viet Nam is not serving the purpose," observed Colin Jackson, member of the Labor Party in the British Parliament, in speaking to University students.

The bombing, he said, is morally doubtful and "tactically, is not bringing the North Vietnamese to the conference table."

He pointed out that the problem has existed for many years.

"The Viet Nam people are tired of being fought over for 23 years," he said, with the Japanese, the French and now the Americans being involved in the affairs of the country.

French At Fault
The French have a lot to account for, he said, pointing out that they "did not allow a democratic form of government to develop in Viet Nam."

Assessing the U.S. policy in Viet Nam, a radio commentator for the British Broadcasting Company said, "What horrifies me, but it is not my business whether the United States doesn't want any friends, is the small group of hawks who want to bomb Viet Nam to smithereens."

Jackson described Congress as a group of hawks and doves, both in varying degrees.

Bomb Strategy Wrong
"The Chinese are delighted we're doing this (bombing)," he said. The Chinese point out the United States to the Afro-Asian countries.

"China is taking a back seat in the war," he added.

Noting that U.S. bombing is not achieving its purpose, he pointed out that the U.S. is bombing in the jungles and paddy fields and that the Viet Cong is not a little group of Jesse James'.

Concerned over instability in South Viet Nam, Jackson noted jokingly that the last name which lasted long enough to be remembered was that of Diem, "except possibly that of his wretched sister-in-law, 'Madame Barbecue'."

"However, we must let the North Vietnamese know, without war, that they are not going to get their way," he said.

Australia Safe
If Viet Nam were to fall under Chinese domination, Jackson expressed no fear for Australia or New Zealand, saying "I know they (Chinese) are in the Olympics, but they're not that good swimmers."

Speaking on the Pakistan-India crisis, Jackson said, "India is democratic, but the Kashmir people have no freedom."

"Kashmir is a police state — one out of every ten persons there is an Indian soldier," which he said is a "sad state."

Wrong Aid To India
He further noted that the wrong type of aid is being sent to India and Pakistan — "military or money which goes to the pockets of the wealthy."

"I would like an autonomous state, but India will not allow a plebiscite," he said.

Concluding on what he termed a more optimistic note, Jackson said that "A cloud is looming over the horizon of a conflict between Russia and China."

"We shouldn't encourage the Chinese and Russians to fight each other, but if by some wild chance they should stumble into a disagreement — why, we can't stop them," he added.

Animal Science Building To House Labs, Classes

Although building plans have not yet been drawn for the new animal science building to be built on East Campus, the facilities which the building will house have been determined.

"During the last month, the architect, members of the administration, and members of the Animal Science department have visited four states (Oklahoma, Kansas, Colorado, and Iowa) to get ideas for the building," Dr. Walter Woods of the Animal Science department said.

Chemical laboratories and animal laboratories will be incorporated into the building to be used for both teaching and research. Offices for the staff will also be housed there.

Research programs will be conducted in beef cattle, swine nutrition, reproductive physiology, and genetics. Woods explained that these programs would give "basic research in these areas through which graduate students will be trained and also increased knowledge to solve problems in animal production."

Some examples of research activities are beef cattle and swine digestion experiments, physiology of reproduction studies using laboratory animals, breeding and selection work with rats, and rumen fermentation studies.

The Legislature has appropriated $1.6 million for the building which will be located near the Meats Laboratory.

The Animal Science department has been working with an architectural firm in Omaha.

Tuition Hike Hurts Non-Nebraskans

By Jan Itkin
Junior Staff Writer

Both University enrollment and tuition were higher this fall than ever before. Tuition was raised $35 a semester for residents and $135 for non-residents, bringing tuition to $167 and $435 for residents and non-residents respectively.

Non-resident Drop
According to figures released by the Office of Student Affairs, the tuition hike had an effect on non-resident enrollment.

Although non-resident enrollment was up 131 students from last year, non-residents represent only 12.9 per cent of the total enrollment as compared to 14.2 per cent last year.

Freshmen enrollment has increased by 1,020 students making a total of 4,666 freshman but non-residents comprise only 8.9 per cent of the new students as compared to 10.5 per cent last year.

John Aronson, director of admissions, explained the change in University enrollment percentages as follows:

"There are at least four possible causes for the decrease in the percentage of non-resident students. Some students may have decided to attend a college nearer home because of the non-resident tuition raise.

"Conversely," he continued, "more Nebraskans may have attended the University because of the non-resident tuitions at other schools. That would result in an increase in the percentage of resident students."

"Also, last year admission requirements for non-residents rose sharply," Aronson explained. "We refused 34 per cent more students last year than the year before, and they were primarily non-residents."

"And finally," Aronson concluded, "more Nebraskans are becoming aware of the University's strengths and are choosing to attend for non-financial reasons."

RAM To Organize Inter-Dorm Group

By Steve Jordon
Junior Staff Writer

Plans for an Inter-Dorm Council are being made by Residence Association For Men (RAM), the student government of Sells Quadrangle.

Still in the early planning stages, the council would serve to coordinate social events and act as a central organization for the 4,000 dormitory residents at the University.

"We have several constitutions of other campus residence hall governments," RAM vice president Larry Anderson said.

"What I would like to see is a council of four officers elected at large from the residents and the presidents and vice presidents of each hall," he said.

Progress in the plan is being held up because Abel and Cather-Pound dormitories have not set up a working government.

"We plan to do something definite about it in the next week or two," RAM president Marv Almy said.

"There will soon be too many dorms too far apart to keep activities from conflicting," said Anderson. "The council would be a focal point to unite the dormitories."

RAM has taken the initiative in something that should have been done long ago, he said.

"Two years ago there was a push to have an all-dorm government, but it was dropped," Anderson said. "Now we have to get busy to make up lost time."

The lack of communication between dorms has been a growing problem since dorms are being built farther and farther away from each other, he said.

Plans for the council tentatively include the East Campus dorms, he said.

Val's 'Inconsistency' — Mrs. Biegert Challenges 'Resign Or Drop Out'

Mrs. Maureen Biegert, Democratic national committeewoman, challenged Val Peterson, president of the University Board of Regents' and announced candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, to "either resign from the Board of Regents' or drop out of the gubernatorial race."

She offered this challenge at last night's meeting of the Young Democrats after prefacing her remarks by announcing she was "most assuredly and positively not running for political office."

The Board of Regents', she explained, was a historically non-partisan and Peterson's announcement of last week was "inconsistent to this historical non-partisan stand."

Mrs. Biegert said that Peterson was confusing the people of the state by his "dual role" and that they are "at a loss to know if he is appearing at one of his numerous speaking engagements as a president of their University Board of Regents' or as a candidate of the Republican party."

"I bear no personal ill-will toward Mr. Peterson," she added. "In fact, he came to see me the week before he made his announcement."

Mrs. Biegert went on to speak of patriotism — of those who show their patriotism by working for their country and not simply talking about it.

"We must remember," she said, "that the claim of patriotism can mask a lack of faith."

This lack of faith, she continued, is exemplified by those who fear that a speaker on Communism might "seduce a whole campus."

She also challenged U.S. Senator Carl Curtis to "let us know his feelings on the John Birch Society."

The John Birch Society also came under fire through a unanimously passed resolution which was presented by Bob Haas, vice-president of Young Democrats.

"Resolved: We of the University of Nebraska Young Democrats condemn forms of extremism in American life; including the John Birch Society, the Klu Klux Klan, and the Communist Party."

Fund To Support Medical Award

A $7,500 endowment fund in memory of Harry Z. Rosenfeld has been established in the University Foundation. The Harry and Blanche Z. Rosenfeld Foundation of Omaha is the donor.

NU Foundation president Harry Haynie said income from the fund, about $300, will support the "Harry Z. Rosenfeld Memorial Award."

The award will be given annually to a senior University medical student for an outstanding thesis on the causes and treatment of heart disease or of other related medical fields.

Recipients of the award will be selected by the internal medicine department chairman and members of the senior thesis committee at the medical college.

Senate Approves 'Room' Petitions

Student Senate passed a motion yesterday which urges administration to establish conference rooms in each department where students can extend discussions after class.

Sen. Kelley Baker, who introduced the motion, said the rooms would have a comfortable atmosphere where students and-or faculty could get together after class and discuss almost anything.

"A student," Baker said, "can often learn a lot more out of class than in class."

Baker stressed that the motion did not require the Administration to establish these rooms immediately, but that it "urged" them to consider the idea as a guideline for future University planning.

He said that the idea for conference rooms on this campus was initiated by Steve Abbott, a senior in Teachers College, and the new political party, Student Action for Government Effectiveness (SAGE). Baker said that petitions had been distributed and some 250 students and faculty members had signed the petitions calling for conference rooms.

Abbott, explaining the University's need for conference rooms to the Senate, said, "For too long the administration has been planning the educational facilities, or not planning them" and students haven't had enough to say about the planning.

This year, he said, may be a little different because students will be pushing for conference rooms. He said he wanted the Senate to pass the motion so the idea could go on to the faculty Senate and administration, letting the University know that the students are concerned about their own "intellectual atmosphere."

Abbott said that the only possible objection against the rooms would be lack of space and money. But he stressed the school is building new buildings and they can make plans in these new buildings for the rooms.

He said that many University professors have shown interest in having these rooms established.

In other business at the Senate meeting, Sen. Bob Samuelson announced that the ticket office was reserving 750 tickets for students' use at the Missouri football game.

He said that this was the first time the ticket office had ever reserved out-of-state tickets solely for students' use and that it was definitely a "step forward" for the students.

Samuelson said that since several thousand students would possibly want tickets for the official migration to Missouri and there were only 750 tickets, a ticket drawing would be conducted by the Association of Students of the University of Nebraska (ASUN).

He said applications for tickets could be made Oct. 12 and 13 and the drawing would be held Oct. 14. He said that everyone who wanted to apply for a ticket would have to ask for it in person at the ticket office.

There will be no block tickets, he explained, but students can attach their applications in groups of two and they will be drawn in that way.

All the tickets for the Missouri football game at Columbia Oct. 30 had previously been sold.

The Senate approved the three cabinet appointments of Froy Fredricks, secretary of organizations for honoraries, sororities and societies; Barb Beckman, secretary of regulatory organizations such as IFC, Panhellenic and AWS; and Larry Johnson, for all other activities.

Pam Hedgecock was named the executive member and director of the Electoral Commission. Bill Hansmire was elected the Senate member of the Electoral Commission.

Bill Coufal, president pro tempore of the Senate and Student Welfare area chairman, announced that John Metzger was the arrangement chairman for Quiz Bowl and Nancy Peterson the assistant questions chairman.

STEVE ABBOTT . . . shows Kathy Weber and Kent Neumeister, right, the petitions 250 students signed for conference rooms.

Plans Begin For Linking Two Buildings

Plans for a classroom-office building connecting Bessey and Burnett halls are currently underway, according to Carl Donaldson, University business manager.

The building, which will cost between $1.5 and $2 million, will be ready for use in the fall of 1967.

Devis-Wilson company is the architect, and it is hoped that bids will be taken in the spring.

"The longest and hardest part of a building such as this," Donaldson said, "is the programming — how many stories, whether it should be mostly classrooms or offices, whether it should connect the other buildings or be a part of them."

An additional problem concerning the building, Donaldson commented, was the adjustment and relocation of the greenhouse which is situated between Bessey and Burnett on the site of the proposed building.

AWS Plans Workshop; Will Discuss Programs

AWS is holding a workshop tonight at 7 p.m. in 234-235 Nebraska Union. This meeting is for the residence directors, house-mothers, living unit presidents, and AWS representatives. AWS rules and program will be discussed and clarified.

Marching Band Swings With New Maneuvers

First do a 48-count Skinny Minnie, freeze for eight, and then do a Hog Dog and a Teenie Weenie.

Confusing? That's what the 170-piece Cornhusker Marching Band thought when they first saw the names and descriptions of maneuvers they are using this year for precision drills.

The first such drill by the band was included in the pregame show last week, to the tune of "Strike Up the Band," by George Gershwin.

For the Wisconsin halftime Saturday, the band will play "Marches from Around the World" a collection of famous band numbers, including John Phillip Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever."

At the same time they will be executing a drill that includes Minstrel Turns, Round-off Boxes and Ball Moons, that will leave the band in formations from which they will play concert march selections.

The movements are combinations of left and right "pin-wheels," executed by groups of four bandmen rotating a quarter-turn every eight steps, and regular marching movements.

The show will also feature Susie Kunc, in her first year as the University "Sunshine Girl."

Board of Pathology Certifies McFadden

Dr. Harry W. McFadden has received special certification in the field of clinical microbiology from the American Board of Pathology.

He is professor and chairman of the department of medical microbiology at the University College of Medicine.

In addition to this special certification, McFadden is a Diplomat of the American Board of Pathology in the field of pathologic anatomy. He has been interested in clinical microbiology and infectious diseases for many years.

University Foundation To Explain Program

The University of Nebraska Foundation will present its program in a roundtable discussion this evening at 7 p.m. in the Nebraska Union.

The discussion is for Builders, Motor Board, Innocents, Senators and the Daily Nebraskan.

College Of Medicine Names Acting Buyer

Harold Fick has been acting buyer in charge of purchasing for the University College of Medicine. He was promoted to the acting buyer's position upon Richard Bennett's appointment as director of special business services for the University.

In his new position Fick is responsible for procuring supplies and equipment for the medical campus. He is a 1960 graduate of the University College of Business Administration.
