

Editorial— Time For Change

Today the pages of the Daily Nebraskan are filled with advertising.

We did not like shoveling this paper into the little brown, pick-up boxes any more than you liked grabbing it, scanning it and throwing it aside.

It is time for a change. The members of the Nebraskan staff realize more than anyone else that 15,000 students at the University of Nebraska rate a higher quality campus newspaper.

An eight page edition will appear next Wednesday. The extra space should lower the amount of advertising necessary in the Monday, Thursday and Friday editions. If the venture is financially successful—it will become a weekly feature.

This procedure will not alleviate all the problems—but it is a start. And we hope that this beginning will be an impetus to the type of collegiate newspaper that you, the readers, deserve.

CAMPUS OPINION

Pacifist's Attitude Unrealistic In Today's World

Where would this country be, and what would it be like if Eisenhower, or JFK, had burned their draft cards? If George Washington had cold feet at Valley Forge? If Paul Revere had fallen off his horse? If John Hancock couldn't spell his name?

It is ironic, and pathetically amusing that the SDS, which claims to be an educational organization, for students, cannot spell the word sponsored. The SDS also seems to claim a monopoly on moral values, but is it really immoral to want to fight communism? And is it moral to abandon all the small, but free nations to the scourge of international communist expansion?

Many of the Teach-In speakers advocated turning the whole Viet Nam problem over to the UN, which sounds like a good idea, at least on the surface. In fact, however, the UN has only been able to achieve a temporary solution, when it has been called on to intervene, and then, even that solution came at a terrible cost in terms of human lives and money. The UN is most effective when there is complete cooperation and willingness to negotiate, on both sides, and this does not seem to be forthcoming in this case. The UN is virtually broke at present, and cannot afford any more blunders in the course of trying to help this world in chaos.

A few other questions need to be asked about the "Students for a Democratic Society." They admit that they are leftist, but how far left? They admit to a number of leftist radicals in their midst, but how many of these radicals are there, and how radical? Are their organizers on this campus merely misguided pacifist intellectuals, or are they commies? How much do we really know about them?

Judging on appearances at the Teach-In, the SDS seems to be composed largely of a bunch of long-haired, wild-eyed, bearded beatniks, who ought to know better. Any 100% red-blooded American will give them just about as much attention as they deserve, and see to it that they are laughed off the Nebraska campus.

Sincerely,
Little Abner
