

Institutes Set For Teachers

Preparations are being made in a number of University departments to offer special summer institutes and workshops for Nebraska elementary and secondary teachers.

The programs, in mathematics, English, economics and secondary education, will carry graduate credit and some financial support.

Forty fellowships are being offered by the Nebraska Council on Economic Education for elementary and secondary teachers in the social studies and business education.

Three hours of graduate credit will be offered to participants in the three-week institute involving the teaching of elementary economic concepts to youth. The fellowships will include the cost of room, board, tuition, educational materials and an additional $100 stipend for each successful applicant. The institute begins June 12.

National Defense Education Act fellowships for an eight-week course in English and leading to nine hours of credit will be offered to 60 successful applicants. They will be chosen from both elementary and secondary schools, and may include supervisors and coordinators of language arts. Twenty of the 60 recipients must be chosen from areas more than 500 miles from Lincoln.

The English courses, beginning June 10, include linguistics, composition and a seminar in special literary problems. Successful applicants will receive $75 per week, and an additional $15 per week for each dependent.

Forty fellowships, funded by the National Science Foundation, will be made to weakly trained, but scholastically able mathematics teachers to up-date their education.

Credit courses and some non-credit seminars will deal with geometry, calculus, algebraic concepts and elementary number theory. The eight week institute begins June 13. Stipends of $600 per person and $150 for each dependent up to four will be awarded to successful applicants.

'Ideal' Deadline Is Wednesday

The deadline for off-campus students to file for the UNICORN interview for Ideal Nebraska Coed or Outstanding Collegiate Man is Wednesday. All students who apply must have a 3.0 average and be a junior.

"SITTING . . . on a razor edge" echoed Sen. Wayne Morse as he described the United States' position in Viet Nam.

Americans 'Uninformed' About Viet Intervention

By Wayne Kreuscher
News Editor

The American people do not know all the facts about the United States' involvement in Viet Nam while "we're sitting on a razor's edge" in Southeast Asia, according to Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon.

Morse, a fourth-term U.S. senator, spoke to some 800 people at St. Paul Methodist Church Saturday night on the critical aspects of America's role in Southeast Asia.

"We're sitting on a razor's edge. No other issue or combination of issues facing the American people is as important as finding an honorable way to stop this war," he stressed.

He explained that by fighting in Viet Nam the United States is in conflict with the Geneva Conference, the United Nations charter and with the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO).

The Geneva Conference, which settled the French disputes in Southeast Asia in the early 1950's, "did not set up two governments in Viet Nam, but drew at the thirty-fifth parallel a military demarcation line and set up military zones," he pointed out. "We set up the South Viet Nam government while the Geneva agreement specifically prescribed against two countries and we made a puppet government in South Viet Nam," he said.

"We talk about freedom," he noted, "but here has not been an hour's freedom since we set up our puppet governments, one after another in South Viet Nam."

He pointed out that "my government used its power to prevent free elections" in Viet Nam under the International Control Commission because polls showed that the Viet Cong leaders would win by eighty per cent.

"By what right did we stop these elections called for by treaty?" he asked. He noted that two wrongs never make a right.

Furthermore, he said that the Geneva agreement prohibited arms in Viet Nam and that we violated these codes.

"They know all over Asia—India, Japan, Pakistan—they all know about it, but here in America we haven't had the full story at any time," he said.

The war in Viet Nam, according to Morse, is also in violation of thirteen articles of the United Nations charter and is even "outside the U.S. Constitution."

He said that no president has the power to send American boys to battle without a declaration of war and that the power to declare war rests in Congress and not with the president.

Morse insisted that before the nation continue fighting a war that has never been declared, it should exhaust all possible international ways for peace.

However, Morse stressed that "we can't get out of Viet Nam now" because there would then be the worst blood bath in the history of mankind between the Vietnamese.

"We should send whatever number of divisions of men necessary to Viet Nam to keep the peace," he said.

The senator criticized the unilateral action in Viet Nam and said the U.S. should go from war-making to peacekeeping through the United Nations or by reconvening the Geneva conference.

"Time is against us," he added. "We in the United States don't like to think in terms of time. We're a bunch of over-nighters. Eventually however, we will be driven out of Viet Nam. And Asia knows it."

Morse said in answer to a question that student demonstrations are fine as long as they remain within the law.

Shannon Says . . . Rush May Mean Forgotten Students

By Julie Morris
Senior Staff Writer

A University professor of political science warned last week, "We're going into a period when both faculty and students are likely to be forgotten simply in the rush" of University growth.

Dr. Jasper Shannon said that one of the prime reasons he joined the Nebraska staff in 1956 was because of the University's "reputation for democratic government." Shannon praised the Faculty Senate system.

"I'm a great believer in self-government," he said. "I think it is very important that a forum exist in which things can be discussed."

He said there are campuses in the country that lack or have weak faculty representation.

"When you are operating a University where you have an autocracy without having any representation at all you can see the value of a senate," he said.

The possibility of a too-powerful Faculty Senate at the University is "not likely to happen," Shannon said. "Faculty members are too busy with their own problems and like to forget the University's problems."

Turning his attention to student governing bodies, Shannon, who has taught at the Universities of Wisconsin and Kentucky and at John Hopkins, said, "a group of students is a very transient body; by the time they become aware of what is going on it's time to graduate and it's difficult to become involved and retain an interest."

"There is always a mixture of motivation" in political life at any level, Shannon said. "People get into these things because it's an honor or for personal publicity rather than to improve the situation."

A specialist in politics, political parties and leaders, Shannon has rubbed shoulders with some of the great in the political world. One of his former students is now governor of Kentucky, Shannon's home state.

Shannon said he has a "speaking acquaintance" with Nebraska Governor Morrison and that he had "crossed the path of Estes Keaufever in Europe last fall."

"My business is to study and look at leaders without making a nuisance of myself," the politician-scientist said. "They're terribly busy most of the time," he added.

Admitting that he is a "registered Democrat" Shannon added, "I don't hold rigidly to any particular political line."

Shannon's reply to the question of the "future" of the Republican party was, "I think the Democrats will make enough mistakes that the Republicans will come back into power. That is what normally happens."

"It is conceivable that in 1968 the Republicans may present a ticket of Lindsay (John, mayor of New York) and Hatfield (Mark, governor of Oregon). An easterner for president and a westerner for vice president, that's the way it's normally done," Shannon commented.

Panel Of Four To Discuss Asia

Four University students will present a panel discussion on Southeast Asia, Thursday noon, at the YWCA World Community luncheon.

The luncheon, which is held every Thursday at the United Campus Christian Fellowship house, will be led by Cathy Kilpatrick, Cheryl Mooney, David Jung and Bruce McSpadden.

All four students attended a seminar last week in New York City and Washington, D.C., which was sponsored by the Fellowship of Reconciliation and Methodist Student Movement.

The Feb. 17 luncheon will be highlighted by a speaker from the Peace Corps. Dr. Robert Manley, professor of history, will present a program on Nebraska at the Feb. 24 luncheon.

These luncheons are sponsored every Thursday noon to provide American and foreign students an opportunity to meet together, according to YWCA officer JoEllen Williams.

To any kid who'd like to leave home: We'll pay half your fare.

The idea's not as crazy as it may seem. Anytime we take a jet up, there are almost always leftover seats. So it occurred to us that we might be able to fill a few of them, if we gave the young people a break on the fare, and a chance to see the country.

The American Youth Plan*

We call the idea the American Youth Plan, and what it means is this: American will pay half the jet coach fare for anybody 12 through 21.

It's that simple. All you have to do is prove your age (a birth certificate or any other legal document will do) and buy a $3 identification card.

We date and stamp the card, and this entitles you to a half-fare ticket at any American Airlines counter.

The only catch is that you might have to wait before you get aboard; the fare is on a standby basis.

"Standby" simply means that the passengers with reservations and the servicemen get on before you do.

Then the plane's yours. The American Youth Plan is good year round except for a few days before and after the Easter, Thanksgiving and Christmas rushes.

If you can't think of any places you'd like to go offhand, you might see a travel agent for a few suggestions.

We can't add anything else. Other than it's a marvelous opportunity to just take off.

Complete this coupon—include your $3. (Do not send proof of age—it is not needed until you have your ID validated.) In addition to your ID card, we'll also send you a free copy of AA's Go Go American with $50 worth of discount coupons.
