

Union House Rules Posted

The House Rules for the Nebraska Union, established in July of 1965, have been posted near the entrance to the Union and contain rules for the use of facilities and rules for personal behavior.

Proper attire, according to rules of good taste and propriety, are interpreted in the House Rules to mean "fully clothed including footwear."

The statement of rules also states, "Boisterous, amorous or destructive activity, abusive or obscene language will not be tolerated." Violation of this rule will be cause for dismissal from the Union.

Refusal to present proper personal identification to Union staff members will also be grounds for dismissal from the Union.

The Union expects the public "to obey the laws of the state and nation and to conduct themselves in accordance with the rules of morality and decency..." according to the House Rules statement.

Rules for use of facilities include the prohibition of advertising in the Union by a commercial firm of retail products or services. However, the Union will promote recreational, educational, or cultural events which the University feels to be in the best interests of the student body.

Tipping is not permitted. Food, food products and refreshments will be served in the Union only by the Union Food Service; however, lunches may be brought into the building if they are to be eaten in a commuter's lunch area.

The Union describes itself in the House Rules as, "the living room of the college." It helps the college family, "... to know and understand one another through informal association outside of the classroom."

Morrison Urges Political Not Personal Debate

By Julie Morris
Senior Staff Writer

Governor Frank Morrison urged the Young Democrats Tuesday night to join the Young Democrats Tuesday night to join the Young Republicans "in a search for the truth by attacking problems, not people" in the upcoming election campaign.

"We need more, not less, drawing of Federal resources for development." "There is no connection between undesirable Federal control and drawing on the resources of the Federal government," he said.

Morrison was speaking at a Young Democrat meeting in the Nebraska Union.

Morrison, who is serving his third term as governor, has announced his candidacy for the U.S. Senate seat now held by Republican Carl Curtis.

Morrison, who was accused by some of jumping into the senatorial race because he had been promised a Federal judgeship by President Johnson if he lost, told the Young Democrats that he gave up the prospect of attaining a Federal appointment by running, along with relinquishing the prospect of a fourth term in the governor's office.

A consistent theme throughout Morrison's remarks was an insistence upon the necessity for public debate between political opponents, specifically between he and Curtis. He said that the campaign will be one of issues and that a debate between the two men would bring out the issues.

"Personally I'm a dedicated individual and I don't like the government telling me what to do," Morrison stated.

On the question of reapportionment, Morrison said, "I don't think the Dirksen (Sen. Everett) amendment has a chance of passing!"

Morrison said he would like to see "candidates face to face with the audience, face to face with issues and face to face with each other."

Curtis told ASUN senators at a coffee last week "I have never debated" and that he doesn't intend to.

When the floor was thrown open for questions following the formal speech, Morrison urged the students to "let your hair down and ask me anything."

Replying to a question about his position on the war in Viet Nam, Morrison, who had previously dodged the question at other gatherings, said, "I think the Senate should participate in foreign policy with a degree of responsibility. The fact that we can disagree adds to, rather than detracts from, the image of this nation."

Before Morrison spoke at the Young Democrat meeting, the group passed a resolution calling for a debate between the two candidates.

The governor commended the group for passing the resolution and suggested that they ask the Young Republicans to join them in inviting candidates to debate before the student body at the University.

Morrison explained that public disagreement regarding policy measures is evidence that the country is not being run by a dictator or strongman.

Curtis said at the ASUN coffee last week he feels vocal opponents of foreign policy in the Senate are bad for the nation because they tend to confuse our allies, our people and our men in Viet Nam.

Morrison also stressed the idea that the states must use the Federal government's programs rather than being afraid of them. "We've got to use the Federal government and all of its resources as a tool," he said. "Instead of running around teaching people to be afraid of the Federal government we must learn to use it."

Miss Michel also said that Panhellenic is considering requiring that Lincoln girls participating in rushing live in the dormitories during Rush Week.

Erma Winterer, vice president, explained that Panhellenic would like to do this because "we like to keep the girls isolated as much as possible so they can make their own choices."

"Much of the Federal aid today is vital to the growth and development of this University," Morrison said, listing the medical center in Omaha, the new dentistry building and the planned new science complex as projects that are benefiting from Federal funds.

Miss Winterer said the move is also being considered because the Lincoln rushees sometimes find transportation to and from the campus a problem.

Miss Michel announced that formal installation of new Panhellenic officers will be March 7. Miss Winterer is the new president.

Display Depicts Uses Of Energy

An exhibit of the United States Atomic Energy Commission, "Power Unlimited" is being presented in the lobby of the Nebraska Union this week by the Arnold Air Society in conjunction with Air Force Week.

"Power Unlimited" is a series of panels, depicting the present and future uses of nuclear energy as a source of limitless power on land, on and under the sea, and in outer space. The series explains in nontechnical language how nuclear energy is produced, controlled and directed.

Also on display in front of the Military and Naval Science building this week is an F-86 fighter plane.

Bauer Files For Election

Sen. Hal W. Bauer Monday announced he will be a candidate for the University's Board of Regents this year.

Bauer, who apparently will be ending his one-term career in the State Legislature, will oppose the re-election of Lincoln businessman Clarence E. Swanson.

Bauer, a Lincoln lawyer, 38, was the main sponsor and principal fighter for the historic state income tax passed by two votes in the 1965 Unicameral.

He had been favored for re-election in his 28th District in 1966.

Bauer said he sees a seat on the Board of Regents offering the opportunity for "broadened public service."

"The University right now is one of the strongest forces for progress in this state. Its impact goes beyond providing educational benefits for the entire state."

Bauer said he did not believe he could devote in 1967 the sufficient time away from his profession that would be required to do a conscientious job in the Senate.

The state senators, Regents are elected on non-partisan tickets. They serve six-year terms and publicly meet about once every six weeks.

Incumbent Swanson is a Republican; Bauer is a Democrat.

IFC Holds Joint Council Wednesday

The Interfraternity Council (IFC) will hold a joint meeting for house presidents and treasurers Wednesday night at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education.

Three recommendations from the Interfraternity Board of Control relative to the method of reporting monthly accounts will be discussed at the meeting.

One of the recommendations would make a practice of informing each chapter of its amount of "allowable month-end receivables," in general, an amount to not exceed $400 for each chapter or 10 per cent of the projected Oct. 1 revenue billings for chapters whose projected revenue is less than $4,000 per month.

The recommendation further provides that if the "actual month-end receivables" or sum of the amounts owned by persons billed by the chapter, exceeds the allowable month-end receivables, then the house must reduce this to 75 percent of the allowable receivables by the 20th day of the next month or a penalty will be imposed.

If this were not done, the chapter would be put on special probation until such time as the actual receivables shall be reduced to 50 percent of the allowable month-end receivables.

Cole: Dean Is 'Educator'

Rochester N.Y. — (I.P.) Professor Joseph W. Cole, University Dean of Student Affairs at the University of Rochester, proposes that "we reject the disciplinarian keep-the-house-in-order role for the dean of students, and instead cast him as an educator, "administratively responsible for important aspects of the university's teaching, research and service function—with teaching defined in broader terms."

In his article, "The Dean of Students as I see Him" which appears in recent issue of the "Rochester Review," Dean Cole states: "A dean of students can contribute to the educational goals of a university only if certain conditions exist."

"Such recognition is best reflected by the status that student personnel people enjoy in the university's administrative hierarchy. For example, a voice on important policy-making groups is essential. Such privileges must initially be granted by the president or faculty; their perpetuation depends upon the quality of dean's contribution to the policy-making function of the various bodies."

"Clearly the university's definition of the faculty's role is crucial to the dean of students in his role as educator. It is significant, I think, that at Rochester there is a faculty—not a graduate faculty and an undergraduate faculty. During the past year six department chairmen, sixteen full professors and eight associate professors were teaching freshmen courses."

As long as a university recruits top-flight faculty and puts them in the classroom, the transmission of man's accumulated knowledge will occur at a high level and will occasionally include the first of a brand new piece of knowledge, Dean Cole said.

"Moreover, to the extent that deans of students, working with students, are able to create meaningful opportunities for interaction with these same professors—in the residence halls, in the university center, in the chapel, in the conference hall, the integrative aspect of the educative process will be furthered."

"This integrative, value-seeking process was clearly accepted as a responsibility of our early colleges and universities."

Navy Cites Instructor

Lt. David Michael Bennett, a University junior instructor of Naval ROTC, was cited for meritorious achievement for his services in Viet Nam in ceremonies at the University Tuesday.

Lt. Bennett was awarded the Navy Commendation Medal with Combat V ribbon by Capt. A. C. Mullen, professor of Naval Science.

In his capacity as Sea Force Shiprider, Lt. Bennett advised and assisted commanding officers of the Vietnamese Navy Sea Force ships and flew over hostile territory as an observer for naval gunfire missions.

The citation, transmitted by Admiral Roy L. Johnson, U.S. Pacific Fleet Commander, stated that Lt. Bennett was given the award for meritorious achievement while serving with friendly foreign forces engaged in armed conflict against communist insurgents from July 6, 1964 to July 7, 1965.

Lt. Bennett was awarded the Air Medal for valorous conduct in 1965. That citation was made for his combat activity as a spotter against the Viet Cong in small, unarmed aircraft.
