

Tyler Tells Of Work At German Institute

Dr. Varro E. Tyler Jr., a native of Nebraska, described his year of research at an East German institute in 1963-64 Monday evening at a pharmacognosy lecture series.

Tyler's work in the research institute was sponsored by the German Academy of Sciences of Berlin and was concerned with plant biochemistry.

He spoke entirely from slides. Tyler said he may have been the first American civilian in the German Democratic Republic.

His family stayed in West Germany but they were free to travel by car through East Germany during his assignment.

Almost all East German pharmacies are socialized and compare to the drugstores in the United States in the 1920's in the way that crude drugs in the form of teas are dispensed, he said.

He noted that less than five per cent of the people join the Communist party, despite the numerous benefits for those who belong to the party. For example, when a young married couple desire housing, they go to the administrator of housing and if they are members of the Communist party, they are given first priority, Tyler said. Otherwise it may be three years before they can even get a one-room apartment, he said.

Speaking about the East German universities he said, "People in teaching jobs are not particularly competent in their field, but they are competent in the political field."

He reported that 60-75 per cent of the students in Germany are women.

Names of streets in East Berlin change frequently to reflect the politics, he said as he was comprising West and East Berlin.

About one hundred pharmacists and pharmacy students attended the dinner preceding the lecture in the Nebraska Union Pan American room.

Tyler also lectured Monday and Tuesday on hallucinogenic plants, the chemistry and chemotaxonomy of the higher fungi and poisonous mushrooms.

Tyler is a graduate and past professor of the University. He is now chairman of the pharmacognosy department at the University of Washington and recently accepted the deanship of the College of Pharmacy at Purdue University.

Tyler's visit concluded the lecture series in pharmacognosy sponsored by the American Association of Colleges of Pharmacy. Gustavus and Louise Pfeiffer Foundation and the University's College of Pharmacy.

Atlantic Alliance

practical course is for the re-organization and re-orientation of the Atlantic Alliance and its expansion into a Pan-Atlantic Alliance or world alliance. This alliance would promote a concert of policy between all strong industrial nations of the free world.

"A change in the alliance is long overdue. It was originally formed to protect Europe in 1949 from Soviet expansion. It needs to be re-orientated to influence order in the world. In addition, Japan and Germany should be allowed to participate."

"Europe has recovered from the second World War. It is regaining its self confidence. No longer is an alliance needed for European defense. Rather, this alliance could be used to influence law and order in the entire world and insure the safety of the free world."

One of the acts that Rostow proposed that this alliance could follow is the establishment of a Monroe Doctrine for emerging nations, backed up by the power of the alliance.

"The habit of conflict is spreading in the world. In addition, an embittered atmosphere is prevailing. This must be faced directly in order for it to be averted."

"Where have we, on this side of paradise, gotten along without a policeman?" he concluded.

"The wisest and most powerful force in the world today is the United States. Any other basis for law and order is false. He stated that we face three alternatives in the display of this power. "The first course would be for our own massive rearmament or general mobilization. The dangers of this are obvious.

The second alternative would be for us to persuade peace-keeping effort. However other nations to join us in this could prove to be ineffective if the world scene degenerates any further.

"The wisest and most

A BIT OF EVERYTHING . . . awaits the early-morning visitor from the campus sanitation department.

Regents Meeting

He explained that the plans submitted by the firm would not be preparations for bids by contractors.

The reasoning behind hiring the firm is that they would coordinate the building and expansion plans of the campus, according to Board President Clarence Swanson.

Baker is presently serving on the staff of the U.S. Department of Agriculture as coordinator of extension animal science educational programs throughout the country.

Baker was one of 50 scientists named "distinguished nutritionists" by the Distillers Feed Research Council in 1964. A graduate of Oklahoma State University, Baker is a Farm-House alum.

He will be succeeding Dr. Robert M. Koch effective May 1.

The Board also announced that four faculty members have accepted Woods Foundation Faculty Fellowships and have been granted leaves of absence to complete their projects.

The four are Dr. Paul Schach, chairman of the department of Germanic and Slavic languages; Dr. Ralph Zariski, associate professor of political science; Dr. Norman Stewart, associate professor of geography and Audun Ravna, associate professor of music.

Schach, a specialist in Icelandic literature, will use his leave to continue research on early Icelandic Saga manuscripts in Europe. Zariski will be traveling in Italy to study the emergence of the political left in the country.

Stewart will travel to Ecuador to study the migration and settlement of the Highland Indians in Ecuador's southern tropical lowlands. Ravna will be on leave to make a series of programs for educational television. He will be playing piano selections from the works of great composers.

EAST GERMANY . . . was described with words and slides by Dr. Tyler, who did research on the biochemistry of plants in an institute there.

1. Hey, you coming to the hootenanny?
I'm not feeling very folksy tonight.

2. You got those low-down, feelin' poorly, out-of-sorts blues?
I wouldn't get so poetic about it.

3. Why not sing out your woes? Let the world hear your troubles.
Look, singing has nothing to do with it. I've been thinking about the kind of work I want to do when I graduate.

4. Music of the people can provide a catharsis.
I don't need one.

5. Shout your story to the hills, the sands, the far-away seas. And listen for an answer from the winds.
I doubt if the winds will tell me where I can get a challenging job with good pay and plenty of opportunity to wave up.

6. Oh, if that's what you're concerned about, why not get in touch with Equitable. They're looking for college men who have demonstrated a potential for above-average achievement. I'm sure you'd be happy in one of the special development programs because the work is fascinating, the salary excellent, and the opportunities unlimited.
Say, how about a medley of John Henry, Rock Island Line and Michael, Row the Boat Ashore.
