

Liberal Regulations At Foreign Schools Surprise Women Exchange Students

By Toni Victor
Junior Staff Writer

Foreign universities are for the most part liberal about hours for women, according to several University foreign students and Americans who have attended schools in other countries.

"We had no hours at Chung Chi College," said Jean Wong, a graduate student in chemistry from Hong Kong. She said that the dormitories were closed at midnight or one, but that girls could ring the bell and be let in. She stated that no type of demerit system was employed.

"A girl had to sign out as to where she was going, but we were allowed to go home and take overnights any night of the week," continued Miss Wong. She thought that the women were trusted more at her former college, and perhaps were more responsible there than here.

There are no dormitories for women at the Colegio de Mexico, stated Susie Rutter who attended the school during her junior year. Consequently there are no special rules or regulations for women, she said.

Miss Rutter also studied at the University of Madrid in Spain. At Madrid, she explained, there were dormitories, but no demerit systems. She attributes this to the more liberal atmosphere in foreign countries.

Miss Rutter stated that despite the lack of hours, the women seemed to get their studying done.

No Need

Janine Jensen, a University junior, lived for the summer in Switzerland and has several friends at the University of Zurich. Miss Jensen feels that the women there are generally mature and do not have a need for strict hours and demerits.

Pia Dranth, a University student from the Netherlands, exclaimed, "I led a free life at the Agricultural University of the Netherlands. I was most amazed to find out how the women students live here!"

Miss Dranth explained that at her former school, a girl lives in a room in town and is free to leave and come home when she pleases.

Hours in France

The University of Dijon in France does have dormitories and hours for women during the regular sessions, according to Mrs. Carol Youseff who studied there for the summer. Mrs. Youseff noted that quite a few of the schools in France do not provide dormitories.

Mrs. Monsoor Ahmad, a University student from India, previously attended Bihar University in India. She said that dormitories were provided for the women students, but that many women lived in town. Mrs. Ahmad explained that curfew hours were set by the individual, depending upon how much studying one had to do.

Housing Code Protects Student Health, Welfare

"Students develop a depressed attitude from living in housing that is marginal or sub-standard," stated off-campus Housing Officer, Wayne L. Blue.

According to Blue, this psychological factor is one of the prime reasons for enforcement of the Housing Code as passed by the Board of Regents.

Both male and female sophomores and freshmen under twenty-one years of age are affected by this code and must be living in University approved housing, on or off campus.

Students develop a depressed attitude from living in housing that is marginal or sub-standard," stated off-campus Housing Officer, Wayne L. Blue.

The second important condition for approval is the actual physical condition of the housing. The situation should be conducive to study. Also, in an apartment shared by two men, the bedroom must be 120 square feet, said Blue, and must contain single beds for health reasons.

Last semester approximately 3,777 single men lived off campus in approved housing, as shown in figures compiled by the Housing Office.

Blue stated that the Housing Office is providing a valuable service to students by offering its facilities to judge the condition of intended housing.

Upperclassmen may also use the facilities of the Housing Office to judge the desirability of intended housing. Married couples do not come under the jurisdiction of the office, said Blue. He felt that in this circumstance the wife will usually be more particular about the housing arrangement than the Housing Office.

Bauer Speaks On Income Tax

Two important facets of the code for housing approval, said Blue, are the managerial concept and the environmental condition.

A proponent of the income tax legislation in the last legislative session, Sen. Hal Bauer of Lincoln, spoke Monday night to Burr East and Burr West living units.

The first, he explained, concerns the necessity of having a person be responsible for students living in such off-campus housing as apart-

Keith Olsen, ASUN senators committee member, said that the primary topic for discussion was the income tax.

Plans are now being made to invite Sen. Eugene Mahoney of Omaha to speak to the living units on "the other side of the tax issue," Olsen said.

Fraternity Help Week

"Rather than a period of physical exhaustion, the idea now is to make it mean something to the pledge. It is one last thing to unify a pledge class," said Greg Andrews, IFC affairs committee chairman.

Phi Gamma Delta is the one fraternity which no longer even has a help week. President John Kenagy said, "Pledge training throughout the semester suffices as a final binding together and it isn't necessary. The pledges still plan a social service project, but it is not done in conjunction with initiation."

see the climax of a pledge initiation and not help week," he said.

Positive Effect

Kappa Sigma president Bill Stryk said, "We feel this is a positive substitute for a 11 types of hazing used in the past. Through the efforts of working and informative lectures pledges are bound together as a unit, and work as one for the betterment of the house through unity, cooperation and brotherhood."

Bob Strayer, president of Triangle fraternity, said their help week has both constructive projects and odd practices.

initiation of hazing by the statement of position by the College Fraternity Secretary Association.

2. Paddling is prohibited.

3. No ceremony or pre-initiation "stunts" can be held outside of the chapter house or a recognized initiation hall.

4. There will be no compulsory pledge activities after 12:00 p.m. on week nights.

5. The IFC cannot allow any pledge class activities that are not sponsored or approved by the active chapter.

6. Any fraternity pre-initiation week program commonly called "Hell Week" shall be constructed on a constructive projects and old practices of the above statements.

7. Any fraternity pre-initiation week program must be registered with the office at least 10 days preceding the date on which said week will begin.

'Rewarding Experience'

Bob Milligan, president of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity, described help week as a rewarding and interesting experience. More emphasis is placed on constructive work and influential speakers from professional organizations are scheduled.

One fraternity president said the program is a little of both help and hell but it is more help now. He said the pledges have lots of rules and are expected to fulfill their tasks. Duties and tradition are combined with cleaning and fixing the house.

Intensive Education

An intensive program of education about the fraternity, projects in the house itself and a community project are parts of help week in Delta Tau Delta fraternity, president Dave Geier said. "It gives the pledges an opportunity to work together and makes them aware of the purposes of the fraternity and the ideals we uphold."

ENGAGEMENTS

Connie Hunsacker, graduate student in psychology from Lincoln, to Richard Myers,

The pledges spend one evening in the homes of Lincoln alumni. Help week is the transition period to active membership and is the final climax before initiation, Milligan said.

Alpha Gamma Rho's help week program is a complete revision of what was carried on five or six years ago, president Ken Beebe explained. Constructive projects as opposed to the old derogatory type are planned to make a pledge appreciate exactly what the fraternity is.

Student Injures Police Officer

A University student backed his car into a motorcycle policeman Tuesday on the University campus, according to Lincoln police.

Alpha Tau Omega presents a fraternity help week award on Ivy Day to base the award on the number of pledges activated, grade average, and service to the community and to the University.

Jim Klynon said the main purpose of help week is Sigma Phi Epsilon is to get the house cleaned up, but included in the program also are outside speakers.

The police said that the policeman, Sgt. William Gernigan, received leg bruises and was taken to a Lincoln hospital.

'Culminates Pledgeship'

"Help week is a culmination of pledgeship. It is not a time for catching up, it's a time for summing up," said Bob Fulton, Beta Theta Pi pledge trainer.

IFC passed the following by-laws regarding hazing in May, 1963.

1. All hazing practices are forbidden at the University of Nebraska. Any tactics likely to prove injurious to the pledge or any form of activity that may bring discredit to the fraternity of the organized fraternity system as a whole is prohibited. The IFC will be guided in its def-

Gernigan was going east on Vine when the student, Dennis Bargaen of 855 Elmwood Avenue, allegedly backed his car from a driveway directly behind the University health center and struck the policeman.

The Beta pledges work at the Nebraska State Hospital mopping and waxing floors, washing windows and also work with the patients. Another work project is at the State Capitol arranging files and polishing the liberty bell. In addition they also have house projects.

Jack Guggenmos, president of Delta Upsilon, described their help, health and construction program as a speeded up week of study and constructive work in the house.

"We have real good active support but the attitude of the actives is dying out. They are coming around to the idea that it is not as beneficial as it should be. I would like to
