'Students Are Not Apathetic'

By Randy Irey
Junior Staff Writer

"The University student is not apathetic; rather he is just not excited about anything."

This is the opinion expressed by Robert Dunn, associate professor of psychology. When questioned about the student mind, he said that "apathetic" is not necessarily a good term to use. "It's a characteristic of the present generation to play life with a cool facade. It is simply a norm of the generation."

Level Of Adaption

This is so for the University student in particular, he continued. "There is a term in psychology—the level of adaption—that can be used to explain the student. One of the aspects of this is that a person compares his present condition with past conditions. The important point, is that if the level of conditions around the person, in his view, is the same or better, he will not be discontent. This is true no matter how much discontent there is that he doesn't know about."

The other side of this level of adaption is a perpetual and simultaneous comparison of where you see yourself in respect to others, he continued.

At the University, according to Dunn, the environment is stable and everybody is relatively the same. The students don't know of any other place that "has it better." The entire state is relatively

Capp

Al Capp To Visit Campus

A noted cartoonist who professes to be "an authority on nothing with opinions on everything" will speak in the Nebraska Union ballroom at 8 p.m. Thursday.

Al Capp, creator of the Lil Abner comic strip, will speak under the auspices of the Nebraska Union fine Arts Convocation series.

Rich Scott, Nebraska Union program director, explained Capp's program as "having no set topic—he'll talk on anything."

When people come to the ballroom, Scott continued, they will be given cards on which to write any questions they wish Capp to answer or topics they wish him to comment on. Capp will then sort through the cards and talk on "whatever the cards suggest."

Tickets are available free of charge at the main desk of the Nebraska Union.

Ten May Queen Finalists Selected

Ten women have been elected finalists for May Queen by junior and senior women. Wednesday will be the election of the May Queen who will be presented at the Ivy Day ceremony in the spring.

Ginsberg Discussion Scheduled

An open forum on poet Allen Ginsberg will be held in the Nebraska Union next Tuesday at 3:30 p.m.

A four member panel of students and faculty members will present interpretations and viewpoints of the poet who appeared before a capacity crowd at the Union on Feb. 18.

Clay Gerken, director of the counseling service; Robert Narveson, assistant professor of English; Steve Abbott, editor of Scrip literary magazine and Liz Aitken will make up the panel.

Gerken will present his views on the psychological effect Ginsberg had on the campus. Gerken, along with other members of the counseling service, held a conference with Ginsberg while he was on campus.

Narveson, adviser to Scrip, will speak on Ginsberg's poetry as literature.

Abbott, who acted as Ginsberg's host during his stay, and Miss Aitken will present the student view of the poet.

The forum is being sponsored by the Union Talks and Topics Committee.

Council Unknown To Many

The Inter-dorm Coordinating Committee is virtually unknown to many of the residents in Abel, Cather, Pound and Selleck.

Out of 25 dorm residents interviewed by the Daily Nebraskan, about one-third did not know what the Inter-dorm Coordinating Committee is.

Feelings of those who did know about the committee ranged from enthusiastic to indifferent.

One Selleck resident said that it was a start toward a government of all the dorms and will represent the dorms to the whole campus and present a unified voice to administration.

"Complement" "It will complement rather than dictate to the dorms," he said. "It will not be a weak coordinating group. There are enough leaders who see the necessity of it that it will come about."

"Personally I think it's a good deal if they can get it to work, but independent people are hard to get organized. Unity is the main objective and all the dorms on campus will know what's going on in the other dorms," said a Pound resident.

"Combine Campuses" Marlene Vogt, Burr East, said the council will coordinate social activities among the dorms and help to combine East and City campuses. "As yet it doesn't seem organized, but if it holds the interests of the residents as primary and not develop into a supreme governing body, it will be successful," said Bill Paxton of Abel.

Practical "I think it is extremely practical with the growing size of the dorms. It will gain in function and prestige as time goes along," said Mel Schlachter, a student assistant in Abel.

Cather resident, Dick Chaffie, said, "I'm in favor of a council to hash over problems but I don't think they should set one policy for everybody. We don't have a lot in common with either Selleck or Abel and each has different policies and problems. The individual will be one of the mass."

Abel Won't Support Interdorm Dance ... Communication Blamed

By Nancy Henrickson
Junior Staff Writer

Abel Hall will not support an interdorm dance planned for May 6, Tom Holeman announced at the Interdorm Coordinating Committee (ICC) meeting Wednesday night.

Holeman, Abel's president and representative on the committee, said the Abel Residence Association turned down a request from the interdorm social committee to pay $150 for the dance.

Lack Of Communication

The contract was signed before Selleck and Abel had approved it, he said. The disagreement was caused by a lack of communication between the interdorm social committee and the Interdorm committee, Holeman stated.

"We rejected the possibility of supporting the interdorm dance because of the amount of money involved and the way it was handled," Holeman continued.

Tony Redman, Cather Hall representative, moved that, "The Interdorm Council advise or recommend the executive council of Abel Hall to reconsider its present negative decision concerning the interdorm dance May 6." The motion was passed.

"This has shown the need of agreements and procedures," Marv Almy, ICC president said.

Maid Service

The question of maid service provided in the dorms was raised by M. Edward Bryan, director of housing.

"It's fairly certain we will have to deal with a cost increase within the next few years," Bryan said. "Is it legitimate that we spend the money you give us for maid service?"

Maids spend one-third to one-half of their time in student rooms and the service extends from the cost of operation.

The maids in the dorms are paid $185 a month plus two meals a day, and uniforms are supplied. This wage rate is fairly uniform for custodial work in University buildings, Bryan said.

Student Responsibility

"We want to discuss whether students could assume some of the responsibility of cleaning their rooms or whether it should be assumed by management," he said.

The number of maids in the building would not be decreased, but they would be shifted to areas, such as lounges, where they would be more beneficial to the group as a whole. In a few years, the number of maids in buildings may be reduced when some are transferred into the new dorms.

If students did assume part of the responsibility, it might affect the amount of increase in room and board payments, Bryan said. A dust mop and dust pan would be provided for each room.

He noted that on a facilities questionnaire distributed to Abel, Cather and Pound residents, a majority wanted to keep maid service in the rooms.

MODERN DAY ... Huck Finns prepare for trip down the Mississippi.

Raft Trip Down Mississippi To Publicize '67 Centennial

A raft trip down the Mississippi River signified independence for Huckleberry Finn.

A similar trip by four University students this summer will mean "fun" and publicity for Nebraska's Centennial in March 1967.

Supported by Gov. Frank Morrison and the Nebraska Centennial Commission, the trip will be made in a home-made, red and white, motorized raft.

The crew members — Tom Lundgren, Mike Voris, Jeff Farkas and Tom Mason — will start the adventure July 2 at Omaha on the Missouri River and plan to reach the mouth of the Mississippi by the end of the month.

Lundgren, a sophomore from Scottsbluff, said that he came up with the idea for the trip to advertise the state several months ago while eating in Abel's cafeteria.

"I get ideas like this all the time and this is just one that worked," he said.

He explained that after talking the idea over with different students on campus, he made a model of the raft he wanted to use and went to see Gov. Morrison.

As Lundgren explained it, the governor "went for the idea immediately" and since then plans for the raft trip down the Mississippi have expanded into a statewide project.

The trip now includes formal ceremonies at many of the towns along the way where admirals in the Nebraska Navy will be named and 500 Nebraska citizenships given, personal interviews with the governors of Missouri and Louisiana and extensive publicity for the Nebraska Centennial.

The trip has also been promised support, he said, from many commercial businesses and other individuals who will pay for such expenses as lumber, food, transportation to Omaha and transportation home from New Orleans at the end of the trip.

Lundgren noted that the raft will be called "Big Red ... something or another" and that it will display signs advertising the centennial and a Nebraska flag.

The crew members plan to sleep in the cabin at night and cook their food there. They will travel the 1,630 miles down the two rivers only during the day at about twelve miles an hour.

All four students pointed out that they are familiar with boats and sailing and that they expect no trouble

Greek Averages Improve Over Previous Semester

By Bruce Giles
Senior Staff Writer

A much larger percentage of fraternity pledges and a slightly larger percentage of sorority pledges made their 2.0 initiation average as compared to the 5.0 required under the old grading system last year.

A study by the Daily Nebraskan of fraternity and sorority pledge classes and the number who made their average last year and the 2.0 this year showed that 16.69% more fraternity pledges made their averages under the new system.

The difference was not as dramatic for sorority pledges as the number making their averages increased only 6.95%.

The study showed that 61.87% of the fraternity pledges made their averages for the first semester of the 1964-65 school year and 78.56% made their averages this past semester.

For the first semester of the 1964-65 school year, 80.0% of the sorority pledges made their averages, while 86.95% made their averages this semester.

House Averages

Individual fraternities and sororities differed in opinion on whether their whole house averages would change. Some thought the averages would go up, others thought they would go down and still others thought they would remain about the same.

Several fraternities and sororities indicated that their house required a higher average for a pledge to be initiated than that set by Interfraternity Council or Panhellenic.

"We told the pledges they would have to earn a 2.2 to be initiated," said Mary Ann Deems, vice president of Alpha Phi. "But if they made between a 2.0 and a 2.2, they could be initiated with a petition of 75% of the actives."

Bill Kling, secretary of Theta Chi, said his fraternity required a 5.5 initiation average under the old grading system and a 2.2 under the new system.

Diane Wisniewski, president of Zeta Tau Alpha, commented that it was "evidently" easier for pledges to make their averages under the new initiation average "because her house had a higher number of pledges making their averages than ever before."

Top Grades

Commenting on the whole house average, Bill Blakenish, scholarship chairman of Kappa Sigma said, "The ones
