Kansas next weekend and with baseball still three weeks away this page is finished. With the weather fair and mild Ole Red decided to take the afternoon off and get an early start on the intramural golf tourney...

Look at his sad face, that weeping wood. Can you keep real golf hounds off the greens? Can you shut real golfers out of their own holmes? My sense of justice says this isn't the fairway.

OSU Picks Simmons

Nebraska's versatile senior scoring leader, Grant Simmons, headed Oklahoma State's 1966 all-opponent team. The 6-3 Cornhusker senior was a one vote pick over KU's All-American center Walt Wesley and Oklahoma's slick sophomore pivot Don Sidle.

The Cowboys were impressed by their Big-8 conference foes. Out of a total of 55 votes cast, 54 went to Big-8 players. Balance was evident as nobody came close to a unanimous ballot. Here is a breakdown on the top two teams:

Kansas Determined

Kansas, determined to go all the way in the NCAA basketball finals this weekend, opens their assault on the title Friday night in Lubbock, Texas against Southwest Conference representative SMU.

Wanting a shot at Kentucky with the belief that they can beat the Cats are the Western Kentucky Hilltoppers. Carrying a 24 and 2 record into the tourney the Hilltoppers feel they have been slighted by their in-state brother and want a chance to show they can handle Rupp's Runts.

Colorado Ace Finishes Fast

Gardner's Season Stats Best Ever In Big Eight

That late season rampage by Chuck Gardner not only let him sneak up and pass the field to win the Big Eight Conference's scoring title, but it also let him plant the claim of having the best overall performance since records in the four individual categories have been kept for Conference games.

The Colorado senior red-head not only edged Kansas' Walter Wesley and Missouri's Ron Coleman for the scoring top, but he also finished second in rebounding, second in field goal accuracy, and fourth in free throw percentage. This 1-2-2-4 finish is the best on record.

Everyone knew that Gardner was there in the scoring race. After all, he had been the main early challenger to Wesley this year and he had finished fifth in the point derby last year when he was labeled the surprise of the season. But at the recent semester break, he broke his foot. He didn't miss a game; however, he was off his form and out of the scoring race.

It was impossible for Gardner to catch either Wesley or Coleman. He was so far out of it after the injury he would have to outscore Wesley, the defending champion, by 23 points in the season's finale to win. What's more, Gardner's average was just shy of 19 going into the last game. He would be fifth again this year.

The rest has been appropriately recorded. His 42-39 back-to-back spree was the league's top for the year. His 42 marked a single game high and the 39 tied Wesley for the second-best honors. Gardner ended with 284, a 20.3 average. Wesley had 283, a 20.2 standard. Coleman, who will be back next year, had 281, a 20.1 clip.

His stampered showed 28 of 40 tries from the field, boosting his shooting accuracy mark to almost 54 per cent, second in the Conference. He also added 25 of 29 charity tosses, pushing his average to almost 76 per cent, fourth in the league. His rebounding pace held at 10.1, which let him finish second.

Gardner, however, wasn't the only all-around performer in the Conference. Kansas' Al Lopes also ranked in all four of the divisions. He was tenth in scoring, 13.9; eighth in rebounding, 7.1; eleventh in field goal accuracy, 47.7 per cent; and sixth in free throw accuracy, 75 per cent. Making a big jump the last two games of the season to long leader, Nebraska's Tom Baack, one of nine sophomores who listed in the final rankings, hit 80 per cent of his free throws, 36 of 45. The season-

NU Sets Records

For Nebraska, the 1965-66 basketball season was the "most." The Huskers set records for the most wins by a team since the 1919-1920 season when the Cornhuskers won 22 while dropping but 2 decisions.

The 20 win 5 loss record was the most wins by a Husker team since the 1919-1920 season when the Cornhuskers won 22 while dropping but 2 decisions.

The twelve conference wins by Nebraska were the most ever garnered by a Husker 'five' in the Big Eight. The over-all three year record of coach Joe Cipriano now stands at 37 wins and 38 losses and puts him in thirteenth place among Nebraska basketball coaches.

The Phi Kappa Psi B team won the University B team championship in Intramural basketball Wednesday by beating Abel XII 59-42. The Phi Psi's got off to a slow start but were out in front by nine at half time and then rolled to a decisive win. John Roux topped all scorers by dumping in 14 points for the Phi Psi's. Tom Millisap and Steve Shette both totaled 13 for the winners.
