

YWCA Holds Annual Meeting, Elects Miss Block President

The new president of the University YWCA is Andrea Block. Miss Block was elected to the post at the annual YWCA meeting Saturday.

Other officers elected were Dede Darland, vice president in charge of membership; Jean Jaspersen, vice president in charge of the junior cabinet and Gayle Mitzner, secretary. Mary Ann Deems is the newly elected treasurer and Norma Dietrichs was elected district representative.

Lincoln's "Panel of American Women", headed by Mrs. John Gourlay, presented a panel discussion at the meeting.

The panel, patterned after similar groups in 19 other cities, regularly presents programs concerning prejudice against minority groups.

Three minority groups, Catholic, Jewish and Negro, are represented on the panel and a fourth woman, appears as a member of the white Protestant majority.

"I have had the unfortunate experience of attempting to select and rent or select and purchase a house of my choice in Lincoln," Mrs. Ed Greenwade, the Negro panelist said.

Mrs. Greenwade, whose husband is serving in Viet Nam, said when she finished college and went job hunting she "faced the identical problems of my non-educated counterparts" simply because she was a Negro.

"Our race is the main factor in anything we try to do," she told the group. "As a Negro traveling around the ing the Jewish minority, said that fomalized prejudice in Lincoln against Jews is limited to restricted memberships in some private clubs and country clubs. She emphasized that what anti-Semitism does exist is based on stereotyping of the race.

Another panelist expressed the same view of stereotyping. Mrs. Richard Johnston, representing the Catholic minority, said, "People too often do tend to stereotype racial groups," she said relating her experiences with her adopted daughter who is Chinese.

The panel, Mrs. Gourlay explained, is not a "professional group, we represent only ourselves and we're typical Americans."

country I've been faced with many embarrassing circumstances." Mrs. Greenwade said, referring to color bars at restaurants, drugstores and service stations.

"Even though great strides are being made there is still a great need for individual communication" to break down racial prejudices, Mrs. Greenwade concluded.

ignore the off-campus student."

"A lot of Lincoln students feel they already know the campus and don't feel the need to become involved and find out about it," Bogott observed. The basic problem for those who do want to become involved is communication with the campus, he said.

"Getting Involved" "It is definitely a problem for off-campus independents to get involved in University activities," said Rich Thompson, ASUN senator and an off-campus student.

"I don't know if it's so hard to get involved," Thompson said, "but you don't really find out about things." Thompson said he feels this problem is "harder for an off-campus independent than for anyone else."

Thompson said his election to the Student Senate was difficult because he did not have a large group in a living unit backing him, but he added, "I wouldn't say it was insurmountable."

Linda Miles, Towne Club president, stressed communication as the off-campus independent's biggest problem. Miss Miles noted there are few ways for them to obtain information about campus activities.

Individual off-campus independents, Miss Miles said, have difficulty attempting to be elected to offices on campus because "there is usually no one group supporting them."

Angel Flight Tea Set For Sunday

A tea for prospective Angel Flight members will be held at 2 p.m. Sunday in the Nebraska Union.

Application blanks for membership have been distributed in all women's living units. They must be returned to Bev Armstrong at the Delta Delta Delta house by Thursday.

Lincoln independents may pick up application blanks from the envelope in front of Room 345 in the Union. In order to be eligible for membership, freshmen must have a 2.5 average and upperclassmen a 2.2 average. Any freshman, sophomore or junior woman who meets these requirements and is a full-time student eligible. Women may sign up for interview times at the tea Sunday.

Tuition, Aid Total More Than '53-'55

Public universities received a much larger share of their income from tuition and federal government in 1963-64 than what they received in 1953-54 according to a recent report.

The report, published by the office of Institutional Research in Washington, D.C., says that the students' share increased from 8.7 per cent to 11.2 per cent and the federal government's share doubled.

"During a ten year period, the nation's total budget for higher education has more than tripled and some significant changes have taken place in the relative source of college and university income," the report states.

Current income for higher education from all sources in 1953-54 was $2.966 billion and ten years later it had risen 233 per cent to $9.570 billion.

"Yet despite this vast increase in dollar volume, the portion of public college and university budgets financed by state governments declined from 44.18 percent to 38.8 per cent," the report notes.

Private grants and gifts increased threefold in ten years, but represented a smaller proportion of total income in 1963-64 than ten years earlier.

Public colleges and universities received $38.6 million in private gifts in 1953-54 (2.3 per cent of their total income) and $116.3 million in 1963-64 (2.2 per cent of their income).

The report stresses that the two major new sources of college and university income between 1953-54 and 1963-64 was the federal government and student tuition and fee charges. It points out that "tuition and fee charges to students increased greatly" and that federal income has increased "at least five times."

In 1963-64 the federal government provided $1.03 billion to public institutions and accounted for 19.1 per cent of the public institutions' income. In 1953-54 the federal government provided $199.6 million and accounted for 12.09 per cent of the school's income.

State Signs Checks For University

By Randy Irey
Junior Staff Writer

A department of the State of Nebraska writes all the checks to cover the costs incurred by the University.

It is handled in this manner because the statutes of Nebraska state that all warrants (or checks) must have both the treasurer's signature and that of the director of the Department of Administrative Services.

Jim Kraft, principal accountant for the department, stated that it is difficult to say what most of the University's expenses are, other than employees' pay.

"With a volume of nearly 6,000 a month, it is very hard to say what the majority of the expenses are for. Most of them could probably come under the heading of everyday expenditures," he said.

The University also has a revolving fund of $100,000 for emergency purposes, such as items requiring immediate payment or C.O.D. Kraft described the fund as being rather like a large petty cash fund.

Payment of a bill incurred by the University follows a path that appears to take on the proportions of a maze.

According to Kraft, the procedure is as follows: When an agency of the state, such as the University, purchases something, the agency must show that this purchase is valid (meaning that it is included in the agency's budget.)

Proof is provided by a voucher that the agency sends to the vendor from whom it purchased the product. This form states exactly what was purchased. The voucher is signed by the vendor and returned to the agency.

Upon receiving the voucher, the agency sends it to the Department of Administrative Services in the capitol. Here the voucher is reviewed to see if it constitutes a valid purchase.

The warrant is filled out and returned to the department for signing. After being signed by the director, it is sent to the treasurer for his signature.

From there the warrant is mailed to the vendor. Over 53,000 warrants follow this procedure every month.

This may seem confusing and bureaucratic, but there is a ray of hope on the horizon. "As of April 1, the department should have in operation a computer which will write all the warrants," stated Kraft. "It will greatly shorten the time it takes to get out the payroll."

The by-products of the computer will be especially valuable explained Kraft. "By this, I mean the reports that we must make showing state expenditures, receipts, etc., will be much more accurate. Also, it will relieve the individual agencies of a great deal of their bookkeeping."
