

City May Approve Job Corps Center

By Bruce Giles
Senior Staff Writer

The Lincoln City Council and Airport Authority are expected to approve a Job Corps Training Center at the Lincoln Air Force Base, according to J. O. Grantham, of Northern Natural Gas and the designated director of the center.

Grantham noted that the Tuesday decision by the advisory committee to the Lincoln Opportunity Team (LOT) to recommend approval of a center at the base "was the big decision." LOT reversed a March 7 decision which asked that all Job Corps planning be abandoned by interested agencies.

"Had they not recommended it, the proposal would have been dead," Grantham said.

He said the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) wants them to come to Washington next week to discuss "just how the operation will go."

As soon as these minor details are finished, Grantham said, we can move into contract negotiations.

"In order to do what we want to do, the contract must be signed by April 15," he said.

Mayor Petersen said that concessions made by Job Corps officials on physical facility requirements at the base made the decision reversal possible.

Job Corps facility experts told LOT they need 10 buildings ings outside the area designated for the center, but these would not conflict with aviation use.

Airport Authority members indicated that the entire Job Corps proposal would not conflict with possible aviation or industrial uses.

Grantham indicated that, given approval by the City Council and the Airport Authority, they would have "to get right down to brass tacks." He noted that with modifications made by the Job Corps, it will now take a lot more planning.

"We no longer have the complete choice of buildings we once had, and it may take some program modification," he said. "The OEO is not going to be involved in extensive renovation."

Grantham cited several factors bringing about the LOT decision to reverse its earlier stand.

He said that at the same time the committee took the action recommending that the Job Corps planning be discontinued, Northern Natural Gas Co. received its approval to operate a Job Corps Center at the base.

"This was the first tangible thing the city had seen," Grantham pointed out. It had been stated at one time that the OEO would prefer a large national industry such as General Electric to operate the center.

The LOT committee maintained that they wanted Northern Natural and the University to operate the center. "The acceptance of the program immediately freed other areas of the Job Corps to start work on the center at Lincoln," Grantham noted.

Grantham praised the committee for its action saying it was a "credit to the balance of leadership of Lincoln that they would take a second look at the proposal."

He said that Northern Natural was concerned about the economic situation of the Midlands where "out-migration" of labor and industry exists as one of the big problems.

"Our desire in this program is turn it around," Grantham said. "The Job Corps can help create a reserve of trained and trainable manpower." Grantham said center officials will be facing two monumental tasks — recruiting and training staff members and the preparation of facilities.

Max E. Hansen, associate professor of industrial arts and the designated deputy director of the center, said they would be looking at graduate students and other part-time workers when hiring staff members for the Job Corps Center. He noted that the center would require a staff for a "huge weekend recreational program and other weekend work."

Hansen said that he expects about five per cent of the corpsmen will receive their high school diploma and go on to the University, according to national figures. Individual corpsmen would also be involved in University courses and correspondence work.

"We are interested in teaching them a better way of life than they had, not just trivial skills training," Hansen emphasized.

Ravnan To Play In Piano Recital

A piano solo recital will be held at the Lutheran Student Chapel Sunday at 7:30 p.m.

Audun Ravnan, associate professor of piano at the University, will play music by Scarlatti, Schubert, Samuel Barber and two Norwegian composers, Bjarne Brustad and Geirr Tveitt.

Ravnan, who is also the director of music at the Lutheran Student Center, was a soloist with the Bergen Symphony Orchestra last summer in his native Norway, and recently appeared with the Racine (Wisconsin) Symphony Orchestra.

Rush Week Schedule OK'd In IFC Meeting

Meeting on an informal basis, Interfraternity Council broke into discussion groups after their business meeting Wednesday night at the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity house.

This was one of President Gary Larsen's suggestions early in the year.

Rush Week
IFC members passed the Rush Week schedule and cost for members going through Rush Week.

Rush Week will begin Sunday, with rushees moving in Saturday afternoon. Rushees would attend 11 rush dates on Sunday, filling two bid cards afterward.

The rushees would attend 25 rush dates on Monday and would file four bid cards. On Tuesday, the men would attend six rush dates and file three bid cards.

Rushees would attend one rush party on Wednesday morning and two in the afternoon. They would check out of Abel Hall from 3:30 to 4:30 and would pledge during the following hour.

F. C. Green, Theta Xi, questioned whether rushees would be given any time to think about their decision. John Kenagy, vice president of IFC, said that moving out of floors, the rushees should be through in about 15 or 20 minutes and they could then be moved to the lounges where they would have time to think about their decision.

He noted that the Rush Week schedule was "far from ideal, but these are the conditions that must be worked under."

After brief discussion, IFC approved a $25 Rush Week fee.

Colonization Procedures
Larsen urged IFC members to consider a proposed change in colonization procedures. Under the proposed change, the vote to approve colonization would be tabled for one week after the fraternity made its presentation to the IFC.

The IFC Executive Council would review the request and make a recommendation at the following IFC meeting. It would then be voted on by the entire IFC.

Jay Lefko, IFC treasurer, announced that he had distributed a pamphlet describing the duties of the house treasurer. He urged that these be attached to the Presidents handbook.

Tests of the IBM cards which may be used for Rush Week will be run in the near future, according to Jim Shreck, rush chairman.

He also said that his committee is making a study of six large high schools in Lincoln and Omaha to determine the number of men that go to the University, the number in the upper half of the class, and the number making a 2.0 average.

Shreck also said that he is sending letters to other schools inquiring about their pre-school rush.

New members of the IFC expansion committee were announced. The include: Ron Langehoff, Phi Delta Theta; Bob Dawson, Phi Kappa Psi; Rick Stolepart, Delta Sigma Phi; Jody Parker, Beta Theta Pi; and Jim Cook, Chi Phi.

Fellowships Awarded To Assistants

Twelve University graduate teaching assistants have been awarded National Science Foundation Summer Fellowships for this summer.

This represents an increase of 10 recipients of these fellowships at the University compared to a year ago, according to Dr. James C. Olson, associate dean of the Graduate College.

"The increase reflects greater interest in graduate education and continual improvement in the quality of our graduate students," Dr. Olson said.

The NSF Summer Fellowships provide tuition and $50 to $85 per week for each recipient, depending on the number of dependents. The program permits graduate assistants who take a partial class load during the regular school year to enroll for a full schedule during the summer session.

University recipients and their major fields include:

John S. Alin, mathematics; Jerry Curmut, chemistry; Lynn H. Erbe, mathematics; Randal Heckman, mathematics; Gerald Hodgson, chemistry.

Space Still Available On Flight

Thirtyfive reservations for the ASUN European flight this summer have been made so far, according to Ed Human of Van Bloom Travel and Transport.

The price for the flight is $395 instead of $420 as earlier reported.

Students interested in the trip must make their reservations at Van Bloom by April 1. At that date, a $100 down payment will be required. The remaining $295 must be paid 30 days before departure.

The trip includes a chartered train from Lincoln to Chicago, where the party will switch to a Trans World Airline jet for the trip to London. The flight will leave June 16 and return August 18.

According to Zumen, the down payment is required as part of the policy of the airlines, since the normal cost of such a trip is $800 per person.

College Of Medicine Buys Collection Of Rare Books

The University College of Medicine has acquired a rare book collection on gynecology and obstetrics from the Sixteenth to the Nineteenth Centuries.

The collection, which belonged to Dr. Max Hofmeier, was purchased from a New York dealer for twenty-five hundred dollars, with the approval of the Faculty Library committee. The Nebraska Medical Center was the first medical college to be offered the collection.

All books in the 53-title collection were published prior to 1850. The two oldest books, 16th century editions of Roesilin, were published in 1565.

The Hofmeier collection is printed primarily in German with some volumes in French and Latin.

Mrs. Bernice M. Hertzner, medical librarian, thought the offer was made to the University because "we already have collected in this field and dealers know the College of Medicine is interested."

The other collection owned by the University if that of Dr. and Mrs. Charles F. Moon which was given to the University in 1955. A former member of the departments of anatomy, obstetrics and gynecology, Dr. Moon is now professor emeritus of obstetrics and gynecology at the University College of Medicine. The Moon collection on mid-wifery is printed primarily in English.

Dr. Joseph Scott, Jr., instructor in obstetrics and gynecology and a member of the Faculty Library Committee, said, "A great value of

India Night Set This Saturday

Exhibits of Indian art objects, clothing and other products of India will open at 6:30 p.m. Saturday in the Nebraska Union as part of India Night.

India Night is an annual event sponsored by the India Association, an organization of Indian students, graduate students and faculty members. Dr. Jagdish Srivastava, Association president, said guest speaker for the event will be Dr. Amiya Chattravarty, professor of Oriental religions at Boston University. He will talk at 8 p.m. in the Nebraska Union.

this collection will be the availability of the works to scholars interested in the history of medicine."

Many volumes of the Hofmeier collection show his book plate and also the signature of Frederick Nicolaus Schrader (1793-1860), librarian of the Hamburg Medical Society and author of an amendment to Choulant's handbook of early medical literature. The collection includes 16 texts considered classics in their field.

YWCA Advisors Name President

The new president of the University YWCA advisory board is Mrs. Ford Forsyth of Lincoln.

She will succeed Mrs. Boyd Rooney of Lincoln.

Other new officers on the advisory board are: Mrs. Alfred Heckel, vice president; Mrs. Richard Tempore, secretary; and Mrs. Malcolm Cleland, financial advisor.

Pat Theimer, assistant professor of graduate school of social work, and Kathryn Dean, associate professor of voice, were re-elected for a second three-year term on the board.
