Display Features Work, Research

A display to acquaint students and parents with work and research being done in the different departments of the University will be on exhibit Friday through Monday in the Nebraska Union ballroom.

Approximately 40 departments will be participating in the "Get-to-Know-Your-University" display sponsored by the Union public relations committee.

The display will be open from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Friday and from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday through Monday to coincide with Parent's Day.

INDIAN ARTIFACTS . . . were examined Saturday night by those attending the University India Association's annual India Night.

Union Display Features Artifacts From India

Artifacts from India were on display in the Nebraska Union Saturday night as part of the University India Association's annual India Night.

The articles in the exposition were donated by friends of the association in Lincoln. The association sponsors India Night in order to acquaint University students with Indian life. The association is composed of faculty members and students from India.

Objects of art and samples of Indian materials dominated the display tables as more than sixty people viewed the object during the two hours the display was open to the public.

Dolls in the traditional dress of Indian village women were exhibited. Rose-wood trays inlaid with ivory, brass bases and copper trays were also on display.

One of the items that attracted the most attention was a hollow seed pod that was filled with fifty hand-carved ivory animals. A magnifying glass was used to see the animals.

Coed Earns 'Y' Regional Office

A University YWCA member has been elected Human Relations chairman for the regional YWCA Council.

Ann Duncan was chosen at a YWCA regional meeting in Junction City, Kan., last weekend.

Dean Snyder: Panhellenic 'Needs Break in Tradition'

The Panhellenic Council has failed to be as "active and concerned" about issues and problems as it could be, according to Miss Helen Snyder, associate dean of student affairs.

Miss Snyder spoke at a Panhellenic orientation meeting Monday. She said that while Panhellenic does "run smoothly" and is well organized, the Council fails to keep abreast of significant developments on campus.

Miss Snyder cited "changing patterns in campus activities," "challenges to the Greek system" and changes in the scholarship system as areas neglected by the Council.

The Dean urged Panhellenic members to "move ahead to make the sorority experience a significant one," by taking part and working.

"You represent over a 1,000 women on this campus," Miss Snyder said. "Make this a really big Panhellenic year."

Miss Snyder feels that Panhellenic needs to break away from tradition and to "not keep doing things the same old way."

Miss Madeline Girard, Panhellenic director, also spoke at the orientation meeting, which was designed to acquaint the new Panhellenic Council with Panhellenic goals and purposes.

"I feel very definitely," Miss Girard said, "that we are lagging in knowing what is going on in national Panhellenic." She told the council members that connections between the local and the national Panhellenic are important to both groups and members need to know what is going on.

"You should be selling the Greek system. We do have a great Panhellenic here and why not be enthusiastic about it?"

Miss Girard stressed the opportunities for achievement open to Panhellenic and said, "There isn't another school in the country that does as much for sororities as the University; the administration is 100 per cent behind us."

"Let's not sit back at meetings and listen to announcements and not have anything to say," she concluded.

Erma Winterer, Panhellenic president, stated that most of the Panhellenic Council members have expressed the same ideas that Miss Snyder and Miss Girard stressed at the meeting.

"The ideal Panhellenic," she said, "would be more active than Panhellenic has been in the past."

Summer Job Hunt Begins

Although summer vacation is still about two and one half months away, the search for summer employment has already begun in earnest.

According to Frank Hallgren, director of the University Placement Office, summer jobs arranged through the Placement Office are handled in the same way as permanent jobs for graduating seniors.

"We deal with summer career-oriented employment," he said. "Our office isn't interested in the 'casual jobs.'"

The Placement Office arranges interviews between students and prospective employers throughout the school year.

"Many companies have specific summer programs," said Hallgren, "and others are interested in jobs for students in their particular field, which may lead to full-time employment after graduation."

Students who are interested in non-career summer employment may find information about job possibilities on the Placement Office's bulletin board, located on the third floor of the Nebraska Union. Job posters are also located in various buildings on campus.

"A student trying to find a summer job should already have begun his search by now," said Hallgren.

College Cowboys Compete

Bull riding, barrel racing and a wild cow race will provide excitement at a pre-centennial Nebraska intercollegiate championship rodeo to be held at the State Fairground Coliseum on April 22-23.

The event, sponsored by the University Rodeo Association, will be the group's eighth rodeo and is the second largest indoor rodeo in the state.

Three performances include a 7:30 p.m. show Friday, a matinee at 1:30 p.m. Saturday and a 7:30 show Saturday night. The rodeo queen, chosen from university coeds, will be presented at the matinee.

Rodeo participants from various colleges in Kansas and Nebraska are expected. Representatives from Peru State, Kearney State, Midland College, Nebraska Vocational Technical School, Nebraska Wesleyan, McCook Junior College, Hastings College, St. Mary's College, Doane College, Union College and the University competed last year.

Contestants must be enrolled in a bonafide college and carrying at least 12 hours. They must be in good standing with the school, with a C average required in most cases.

Competitive events will include bull riding, bareback riding, saddle bronc riding, calf roping, bull dogging, barrel racing, ribbon dogging, and goat typing.

NU Scientist To Read Paper

A University scientist, Dr. Turgut Sarpkaya, has been asked to make a special report and read a paper on his research at the fourth annual meeting of the American Institute of Aeronautics and Aerospace in June.

Dr. Sarpkaya, Thomas Fawick professor of engineering mechanics, has devoted a portion of his research time for the past five years to problems of vibration and metal breakdown on control surfaces of aircraft and space vehicles.

Dr. Sarpkaya, an authority on phenomena leading to such problems, will read a paper entitled "Hydrodynamic Forces on Rotating Control Surfaces."

The meeting in Los Angeles will bring together several hundred of the leading space scientists in the United States.
