

Lutheran Center Has Festival Of The Arts

Contemporary art and music is the theme of the "Festival of the Arts" program now being conducted at the Lutheran Student Center, 535 N. 16th.

A picture gallery, play and choral recital are featured during the Lutheran Students' annual two-week art festival.

Pictures by internationally and nationally known artists and local artists from the University and the Lincoln Artist Guild will be displayed until April 3.

The main art exhibit is a collection of silk screen prints by Sister Mary Corita, a Catholic nun and teacher at Immaculate Heart College, Los Angeles, Cal. The prints portray common things in the everyday world in bright, modern colors.

Also included in the exhibit are paintings by Robert Hodgell, art professor at Florida Presbyterian College. His paintings are grotesque and he uses a shock quality to get his message across, said Kay Duhacek, art festival chairman.

A literature display is made up of contemporary books of theology and modern social action. The art and literature displays are open 8 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. and 8 a.m. to 12:00 p.m. on Friday and Saturday.

"Everyman," an old medieval morality play, will be presented Sunday evening at 6:30 p.m. Miss Diane Roode is the director of the drama.

April 3 the Lutheran choir will sing the "Requiem" by Gabriel Faule in Latin at 7:30 p.m.

Fraternity Holds District Conclave

Representatives of Pi Kappa Phi met for the fraternity's district ten conclave Saturday at the University.

Chapters from Nebraska, Iowa State and Drake University sent representatives to the meeting held in the Nebraska Union.

Dr. Clay Gerken, director of counseling service, and Dr. Floyd Hoover, registrar, spoke to the district representatives Saturday morning.

A banquet and dance was held at the Nebraska Center following the discussions of fraternity problems.

Legislators Favor Open Meetings

It is up to the University whether the April 8 meeting between the Board of Regents and the Legislative budget study committee can be open to the press.

Sen. Richard Marvel of Hastings, chairman of the Legislative committee, has said that as far as he is concerned the meeting can be open, but "we will leave it entirely up to the University."

The meeting is supposed to concern the University's need of approximately $500,000 to accommodate increased enrollment next September.

Marvel and the committee vice chairman, Sen. George Gerdes of Alliance, have said they think the University could temporarily divert non-instructional funds into the instructional program to solve the immediate problem without increasing student tuition.

A special tuition hike from $36 to $40 per student next year has been discussed as one possibility by University administrators.

In the past, interim meetings involving the budget committee and University leadership held at the Nebraska Center have been closed to the press.

The April 8 meeting is scheduled for 7:30 at the Nebraska Center.

THE DAILY NEBRASKAN

PAGES OF THE PAST . . . reveal a commentary on student life in the "good old days."

University 'Zealously Moral' Says First Official Yearbook

Styles and standards for almost any human endeavor change with time — University yearbooks are no exception.

Since it began having yearbooks in 1892, the University has seen a huge variety of reporting pass between the covers.

The first official University yearbook rolled off the press in 1892. Known as the "Sombbrero," it was published by the junior class. For many years, the senior class published their own separate book.

The 1892 Sombbrero described the University as "zealously moral and Christian, no vacations, and low expenses." In the true land-grant spirit, it also declared that the University was a place where "anyone may learn anything."

The Sombbrero spoke kindly of its chief executive "Chancellor Canfield is the first executive in the history of the University who has been able to devote full time to his duties."

In early yearbook days, each class formally adopted a yell and colors. The class of '92 was immortalized by the yell?

Boomerah, boomerah, boomerah, boo

Ninety, ninety, ninety-two

The world, the world, we are in it.

The class chanted this when they were attired in their colors, light blue and drab.

In 1907, the Sombbrero gave way to a new title, the "Cornhusker." The Greek section for that year was particularly interesting, since it gave detailed reports of the damage done in each fraternity's "rough-houses." The Phi Kappa Psi fraternity was honored because they had been able to maintain their quarters with out damages for three years.

Fraternities in those days took pride in the fact that few of their members married during their undergraduate days. "Phi Gamma Delta is pleased to announce that not a single member was married during the school year," said one yearbook.

The 1912 edition of the Cornhusker was banned because of the obscenities it contained. These stemmed largely from the fact that the yearbook staff was very interested in the private romantic activities of the students.

During those years, the notorious "Delinquency Committee" struck fear into the hearts of the students. "Even the most hardened senior turns ashen when the Delinquency Committee is mentioned," reported the 1913 Cornhusker.

Under the chairmanship of Carl C. Engberg, the committee inflicted punishments on students for almost any offense. "Many a man is a farm hand now, or helping father at the bank, because he failed to head a note from Carl," lamented the Cornhusker.

Student apathy was a problem even then. "Since the first we came to Nebraska, we have had no college spirit which can compare to that in eastern schools." This statement comes from the 1914 Cornhusker.

Yearbooks have changed vastly over the years. According to 1966 Cornhusker editor, Barbara Beckman, "a yearbook today is published largely to maintain a good rating. It's become much more commercialized."

"The old books wrote just for the students," she said. "They editorialized and criticized as they pleased. There was a comment beside each student's picture. Today's books are published for several reasons, not just for the student body."

Athena Interviews Set For Sunday

Interviews will be held Sunday for Princess Athena, to be named at the Greek Week Ball April 1.

Each sorority house has selected one girl to represent the house. About 8 or 9 finalists will be selected from the applicants, according to Greg Andrews, Interfraternity Council affairs chairman.

Finalists will be voted on at the Greek Week Ball. Princess Athena will be awarded a large trophy.

Andrews said the qualifications for Princess Athena are personality, poise, and beauty. This will be the first year that a Princess Athena has been named.

The naming of a Princess Athena, a girl most representative of the Greek System, is intended to become an annual part of Greek Week, Andrews said.

Jane Walla, Kappa Delta; 9:00, Carrie Kulla, Kappa Kappa Gamma; 9:10, Judi Evans, Phi Mu; 9:20, Stephanie Floyd, Pi Beta Phi; 9:30, Gisele Weisman, Sigma Delta Tau; 9:40, Janice May, Sigma Kappa, and 9:50, Cinnie Swanson, Zeta Tau Alpha.

Students Fill Flight Plan To Europe

The European Flight plan is going to be completely filled up, according to Sen. Dave Snyder, member of the ASUN European Flight committee.

Snyder reported that as of Wednesday 45 people had signed up for the flight leaving Chicago for London on June 16 and returning August 18. The plan can accommodate 50 people.

He added that the deadline for signing up and making the first down payment of $100 was April 1. The remaining $295 must be paid by 30 days before departure.

Tuesday evening at 8:30 p.m. in the small auditorium of the Nebraska Union, he added, an orientation meeting will be held at which a representative from Van Bloom Trips and Tours will be present to answer any questions.

Winter's Son Safe In Manhattan

Kansas State coach Tex Winter talked two weeks ago with athletic officials at USC about the Trojans' head basketball coaching vacancy.

That sparked a round of rumors that the K-State cage coach was headed back to his alma mater. Speculators begets speculation, and in short order Tex's youngest son, Brian, 11, had projected himself and the situation.

"Who wants to live in California?" he wanted to know. "All they do there is surf, surf, surf! I can hear it now, a friend calls and asks 'Brian, do you want to go surfing?', and all I've got is a skateboard!"

Latest word: Tex has been busy recruiting future Wildcat players in Illinois and Kansas City. Brian's skateboard is in Manhattan to stay.

Songs

Songs are sometimes more real than what people might think—especially songs about love and marriage, according to the Rev. Duane Hutchinson.

"The words 'I want a girl, just like the girl that married dear old dad' have a greater meaning than just a song," he said.

Rev. Hutchinson, who is the moderator of the Art of Loving class currently being held at the Wesley Foundation House every Wednesday, said that it is true "we often choose a fiancée that is remarkably similar to the parent of the same sex."

"If our choice for a marriage partner is a direct opposite of our parents, it may indicate an antagonism between ourselves and our parents," he explained.

1. Is it true you're planning to get engaged?
I'm on the brink of giving Jane my Beethoven sweatshirt.
2. How are you going to guarantee security to your family when you're married?
I have a rich aunt, you know.
3. What about money for your children's education?
My Uncle Henry is very fond of me. He owns a steel mill.
4. Who'd pay off your mortgage if you should die?
You never can tell. Every time I help an old man across the street I give him my name and address in case he doesn't have anyone to leave his money to.
5. I know something that can help you meet almost all your financial needs. And be independent, too.
Nothing can do all that.
6. Living Insurance from Equitable can. It can even give you a lifetime income when you retire.
I wonder if Uncle Henry has it?
