Computer To Pair Couples

The first step in preparation for a computer to pair couples at the Foundation Week dance April 22 will begin with the filling out of questionnaires Friday.

Builder's SEED committee, which is sponsoring the computerized dance, will sell only 500 tickets to both sexes for $1 each. Tickets will be available with the questionnaires Friday through April 8 in the Nebraska Union.

Gary Gunderson, SEED chairman, said that no one will know who his date is until the night of the dance.

He explained that the dance will be divided into three 45 minute segments, with every one exchanging partners according to the computer's plans.

"The idea is not so much to look for your ideal date, but to have fun with someone whose personality is similar to yours," Gunderson said.

Sororities Put Girls In Dorms

A recommendation for selection of sorority girls to live in dormitories next semester was passed by Panhellenic Monday.

Proposed by the Alumnae Advisory Board of Panhellenic, the recommendation states that in houses where there is not enough room for all girls, "any girls who prefer to live in the dormitories be given first choice, and then the division between sophomores and juniors be made equally with girls drawing lots for places." This would exclude officers of the house.

The recommendation was passed with some opposition from sororities that have already decided on a different policy for selecting dorm dwellers. However, Emma Winterer, president of Panhellenic, suggested that as far as possible, all houses have a uniform policy.

Proposed revisions of the Panhellenic constitution were read by Jennifer Marshal, a member of the constitution committee. The changes will be voted on in two weeks.

The changes include a re-organization of committees, and a new method of rotation for officers other than the presidency. The rotation proposed follows a pattern according to the founding dates of sororities on campus.

the Coliseum from 9 to 12 p.m. Andrews said the Boys Next Door, a combo which has traveled widely with the Beach Boys and who is very popular on the East Coast, will play for the Ball.

The tickets for the Ball, which is open to the public, are 50 cents per person.

Zariski Lecture Features Theory Of Singletaries

A recipient of the Medal of Science award lectured at the University Tuesday. Dr. Oscar Zariski of Harvard University spoke on the "Theory of Singletaries."

The main theme of Zariski's talk was the idea of "saturation," or an instance where one element completely dominates another.

A native of Russia, Zariski received his Doctorate at the University of Bonn, Germany. He is a member of the American Academy of Sciences, France, and the University of Moscow. His specialty is analytical geometry.

Zariski received the Medal of Science Award from President Johnson last February at a ceremony in Washington. He is one of three mathematicians to receive the honor.

His lecture was arranged by the department of mathematics and the Research Council.

Forum To Alleviate Isolation, Confusion

Controversial views of student government and administrative control over students are two topics to be highlighted at the student seminar Thursday.

The student forum will be held in Rooms 230, 231 and 232 of the Nebraska Union at 7:30 Thursday evening. It had previously been scheduled to be held in the Pan American room.

Sponsored by the ASUN associates, the seminar will be led by a panel of four persons, representing faculty, administration and students.

Members of the panel are Dr. David Trask, associate professor of history; G. Robert Ross, vice chancellor and dean of student affairs; Carl Davidson, representing Students for a Democratic So-

'Reason Behind AWS Regulations Changing'

"The reasoning behind AWS rules and regulations seems to be changing," according to Pam Hedgecock, president.

"In the past, AWS rules were justified for protection of the girls," she said. "Now the reasoning seems to be more along the line of the convenience of the girl, plus the factors of administrative safety and efficiency."

The AWS Board members Tuesday discussed the demerit system, as to its basis and suggested alternations. Members of the AWS House of Representative and AWS Workers Council are currently discussing the demerit system among the girls in their living units to determine opinions toward the present demerit system.

The girls discussed whether demerits should be erased at the end of the semester, or whether the number of demerits given before a campus should be increased.

The number of out-of-towns allotted to girls was also discussed. One member felt that girls desire more than the present six per year.

Diane McConnell said that at one time over-night restrictions were made to keep girls on campus for campus events, but said some girls questioned if this was still valid basis for the ruling.

Another Board member, Nancy Coufal, noted that as many week-ends to home as are requested by a girl are given, thus the "keeping girls close to campus for campus events" reasoning should not hold.

The idea of the seminar is to promote discussion on student rights and responsibilities, according to Jim Arundel, chairman.

Primarily intended for freshmen and sophomores, the seminar was planned to alleviate the "isolation and confusion" concerning campus affairs.

Each of the four speakers will present specific points of view in ten-minute speeches. They will be followed by questions and debate from the audience or other panel members.

In other action, the Board discussed a rule in the AWS handbook which states that no women are allowed in men's apartments or boarding rooms without a chaperone over 25 years old.

Board members indicated that AWS members will vote on deleting the provision so that girls may visit apartments and boarding rooms without a chaperone.

Later on, the group will also discuss the ruling that girls may not be in a fraternity house without the fraternity housemother present.
