Ohio State position because of the "challenge to build and strengthen" the School of Journalism there.

"The good luck wishes for the future extended by Nebraska publishers more than counter the blistering comments of faculty dissidents at Ohio State," Hall said.

The dissenting faculty members at Ohio State made varying comments concerning Hall's appointments and recent statements made by him.

Edward Mullins, Ohio State faculty member, said that Hall's remarks had destroyed any chance for him to win faculty support at Ohio State.

Acting Director Barton said Hall's statements were an attempt to drive teachers out of the school and were a "disservice to the students and to the cause of responsible journalism."

Head Of Draft Board Urges All Registrants To Take Test

The head of the Nebraska Selective Service, General Guy N. Henninger, urges all registrants who desire a further deferment to take the Selective Service College Qualification Examination.

In a news release from the Selective Service office, Gen. Henninger commented, "judging from the numerous questions being asked by registrants and their parents, there seems to be a substantial lack of understanding of the significance of the test."

Applications for the test must be postmarked no later than Saturday, April 23. The applications and bulletins for the test may be secured at the information window in the administration building.

The tests will be given May 14, May 21, and June 3. The University has been designated as a testing center.

The State Directors expect high school students to pass the test without difficulty. A grade of seventy or more is evidence favoring a registrant's continued deferment.

Four elements of criteria will be weighed by the local board in making their decision of classification of a student: (1) Is the student full time; (2) Is his work satisfactory; (3) the results of the College Qualification Test of seventy or more (4) His class standing in college.

Guidelines concerning class standing are: (a) Upper one-half of the full-time male students at the end of the first college year; (b) Upper two-thirds of the full-time male students in his class at the end of the second college year; or, (c) The upper three-fourths of the full-time male students in his class at the end of the third college year.

General Henninger also pointed out that students wishing to pursue a degree in graduate or professional school must have ranked in the upper one-fourth of the full-time male students in his class, or attained a score of eighty or more on the Selective Service Test.

Two Lincoln students, sophomore Richard Sherman and freshman Vernon Jewett, participated in the DSR-TKA national debate and forensic tournament. They won 5-1 in the preliminary rounds of debate and were eliminated in the octa finals by the winner of the tournament, the University of Southern California.

Miss Cathie Shattuck and Randy Prier participated in the Student Congress of DSR-TKA. Prier was elected chairman of the press committee in the Student Congress.

IFC To Reconsider ZBT Request

A motion to reconsider the colonization of Zeta Beta Tau is scheduled to be made at the Wednesday meeting of the Interfraternity Council.

Gary Larsen, IFC President, said the reconsideration motion would be made due to new information relating to ZBT's request.

Reconsideration of the motion would open the way so another vote could be taken after discussion of the situation.

Larsen said the Executive Committee is urging all houses to vote in favor of the reconsideration motion.

A motion is also scheduled to be made regarding the selection of Rush Book Editor. The motion would schedule the selection of Rush Book Editor. The motion would schedule the selection of the editor prior to the summer vacation rather than after vacation as has been done in the past.

Amendments to the Constitution will also be introduced.

Helmets Gone, Parking Fines Up

Two recent city actions, one repealing the crash helmet ordinance and the other raising parking fines $1, are likely to affect University students.

The City Council, on a 6-1 vote, passed an ordinance repealing the law requiring any drivers or passengers on a motor driven cycle to wear a crash helmet on any city street if traveling in excess of 25 m.p.h.

University students were among those appearing at an earlier public hearing on the issue. Those appearing against the old ordinance noted that it did not properly define a crash helmet and that it was an invasion of private rights.

The old ordinance would also have affected three-wheel scooters. A representative of Cushman Motors said that the crash helmet would require his company to raise the height of the cab and thus decrease the safety of the vehicle by raising the center of gravity.

In voting against the repeal ordinance, Councilman John Mason said he thought helmets should be worn by passengers and drivers of two-wheel motor driven cycles.

Councilman John Comstock, who asked for a public hearing after the original ordinance was passed, said the crash helmet ordinance went beyond the city's jurisdiction.

Ralph Nelson, city attorney, in a letter to Emmett Junge, public safety director, said the fees for parking violations will be raised $1.

The City Council has indicated they may seek ways to block the increase.

The increase, brought on by state law, is for the Nebraska Judges Retirement fund, which provides pensions for all state judges.

Nelson said that in conversations he has heard at the Statehouse, there may be an attempt to repeal or modify the law.

The increase applies to all court cases in Municipal Court, according to Nelson. The charge applies whether a person is found guilty or innocent.

The new fines are $6 for obstructing traffic and disregarding a traffic sign; $4 for improper parking and improper turns; $3 for overtime parking and defective vehicles, and $2 for pedestrian violations (jaywalking).

Lincoln and Omaha municipal court clerks have been collecting the additional $1 in court fees.

Parking meter violations will now be $2.

Bruce Hagemister, Robert Denny, Robert Krall and Lorin Schmidt will speak at the 7:30 p.m. meeting which will be held in the Nebraska Union.

Hagemister of Hemingford is a candidate for governor. Denny, a Fairbury lawyer; Krall, a Lincoln journalist; and Schmidt, a David City farmer, are all candidates for Congress from the First Congressional District.

ROOMMATES REVISITED

This morning's mail brought a letter from a student at a prominent Western university (Princeton). "Dear Sir," he writes. "In a recent column you said it was possible to get along with your roommate if you try hard enough. Well, I'd like to see anyone get along with my roommate Mervis Trunz (for that is his name) practices the ocarina all night long, keeps an alligator, wears knee-cymbals, and collects airplane tires. I have tried everything I can with Mervis Trunz, but nothing works. I am desperate. (signed) Desperate."

Have you, dear Desperate, really tried everything? Have you, for example, tried a measure so simple, so obvious, that it is easy to overlook? I mean, of course, have you offered to share your Personna® Super Stainless Steel Blades with Mervis Trunz?

To have a friend, dear Desperate, you must be a friend. And what could be more friendly than sharing the bounty of Personna Super Stainless Steel Blades? Who, upon enjoying the luxury of Personna, the nickless, scrapeless, tugless, hackless, scratchless, matchless comfort of Personna, the ease and breeze, the power and glory, the truth and beauty of Personna—who, I say, after such jollies could harden his heart against his neighbor? Nobody, that's who—not even Mervis Trunz—especially not today with the new Personna Super Blade bringing us new highs in speed, comfort, and durability. And here is still a further bonus: Personna is available both in Double Edge style and Injector style.

No, dear Desperate, your problem with Mervis Trunz is far from insoluble. In fact, as roommate problems go, it is pretty small potatoes. Compare it, for example, to the classic case of Basil Metabolism and E. Pluribus Ewbank.

Basil and E. Pluribus, roommates at a prominent Eastern university (Oregon) were at an impassable impasse. Basil could study only late at night, and E. Pluribus could not stay awake past nine p.m. If Basil kept the lights on, the room was too bright for E. Pluribus to sleep. If E. Pluribus turned the lights off, the room was too dark for Basil to study. What to do?

Well sir, these two intelligent American kids found an answer. They got a miner's cap for Basil! Thus, he had enough light to study by, and still the room was dark enough for E. Pluribus to sleep.

It must be admitted, however, that this ingenious solution had some unexpected sequelae. Basil got so enchanted with his miner's cap that he switched his major from 18th Century poetry to mining and metallurgy. Shortly after graduation he had what appeared to be a great stroke of luck: while out prospecting, he discovered what is without question the world's largest feldspar mine. This might have made Basil very rich except that nobody, alas, has yet discovered a use for feldspar. Today Basil, a broken man, squeezes out a meagre living as a stalagmite in Ausable Chasm.

Nor has E. Pluribus fared conspicuously better. Once Basil got the miner's cap, E. Pluribus was able to catch up on his long-lost sleep. He woke after nine days, refreshed and vigorous—more vigorous, alas, than he realized. It was the afternoon of the Dean's tea. E. Pluribus stood in line with his classmates, waiting to shake the Dean's hand. At last his turn came, and E. Pluribus, full of strength and health, gave the Dean a firm handshake—so firm, indeed, that all five of the Dean's knuckles were permanently fused.

The Dean sued for a million dollars and, of course, won. Today E. Pluribus, a broken man, is paying off his debt by walking the Dean's cat every afternoon for ten cents an hour.

We, the makers of Personna Blades and the sponsors of this column, will not attempt to expel our roommates. But we will tell you about a great shaving-mate to Personna—Burma Shave®! It soaks rings around any other shaving cream in regular and menthol.

We set out to ruin some ball bearings and failed successfully

The Bell System has many small, automatic telephone offices around the country. The equipment in them could operate unattended for ten years or so, but for a problem.

The many electric motors in those offices needed lubrication at least once a year. Heat from the motors dried up the bearing oils, thus entailing costly annual maintenance.

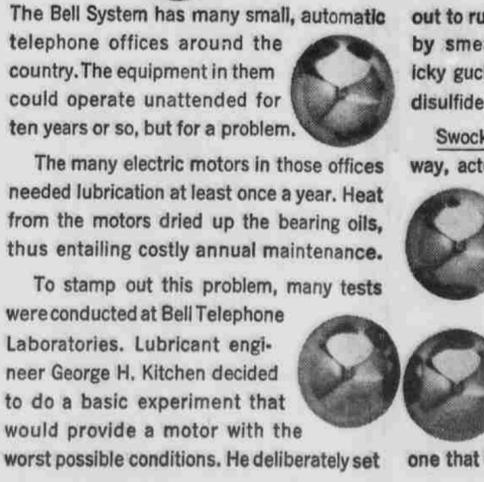

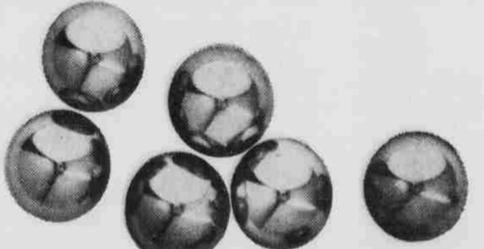

To stamp out this problem, many tests were conducted at Bell Telephone Laboratories. Lubricant engineer George H. Kitchen decided to do a basic experiment that would provide a motor with the worst possible conditions. He deliberately set out to ruin some ball bearings by smearing them with an icky guck called molybdenum disulfide (MoS₂).

Swock! This solid lubricant, used a certain way, actually increased the life expectancy of the ball bearings by a factor of ten! Now the motors can run for at least a decade without lubrication.

We've learned from our "failures." Our aim: investigate everything.

The only experiment that can really be said to "fail" is the one that is never tried.

Please don't zlupf Sprite.

It makes plenty of noise all by itself.

Sprite, you recall, is the soft drink that's so tart and tingling, we just couldn't keep it quiet.

Flip its lid and it really flips. Bubbling, fizzing, gurgling, hissing and carrying on all over the place.

An almost excessively lively drink. Hence, to zlupf is to err.

What is zlupping?

Zlupping is to drinking what smacking one's lips is to eating.

It's the staccato buzz you make when draining the last few deliciously tangy drops of Sprite from the bottle with a straw.

Zzzzzllupf!

It's completely uncalled for. Frowned upon in polite society. And not appreciated on campus either.

But, if zlupping Sprite is absolutely essential to your enjoyment; if a good healthy zlupf is your idea of heaven, well... all right.

But have a heart. With a drink as noisy as Sprite, a little zlupf goes a long, long way.

SPRITE. SO TART AND TINGLING. WE JUST COULDN'T KEEP IT QUIET.
