Danish Official Lauds U.S. Defensive Role

DENMARK . . . Prime Minister Jens Otto Krag met with University student, Hendrickson from Denmark, before the prime minister spoke at the Honors Convocation.

Krag Tells Of Need For Unity

By Nancy Hendrickson
Junior Staff Writer

The United States has lived up to its responsibilities towards Europe in the course of history, asserted the Prime Minister of Denmark, Jens Otto Krag, at the University Honors Convocation Tuesday morning.

Addressing approximately 2600 students, faculty and parents in the Coliseum, Krag said that twice the United States has been called upon to step to the rescue and to aid the material reconstruction of Europe.

"The defense of the free world, aid to European reconstruction, aid to political reconstruction of Europe, aid to the undeveloped countries—all these words cover world responsibilities which the United States has tried to honor to a degree and in a cooperative spirit, which I can hardly imagine any other nation offering," he said.

The friends and allies of America should not uncritically accept everything the United States proposes or does, Krag continued.

Element Of Trust

"There is a basic element of trust between nations as between individuals which we can only disregard at our own peril. In our time this basic element of trust might be described as an acceptance of the concept of integration of defense and in economic relations."

Referring to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization he said that the system of integrated defense of the North Atlantic Area in peacetime is being assailed by one member country.

NATO will overcome this crisis and it will work out such arrangements to secure

Builders $500 Award Goes To Dr. Bonneau

The 1965-66 Builders Student Professor Award was presented to Dr. Loren Bonneau at the Honors Convocation Tuesday morning.

Dr. William L. Colville and Richard S. Harnsberger received distinguished teaching awards from the Nebraska Foundation.

The Students' Professor Award was given to Bonneau by Cindy Pauley who represented Builders. Bonneau is the second recipient of the $500 award.

Bonneau is an associate professor of history and principal of education and junior division counselor for Teachers College.

He is a co-sponsor of the Student Education Association, faculty advisor for Teachers College Advisory Board and research coordinator and associate director of the Nebraska Community Education Project.

Bonneau is a member of the National Education Association, Phi Delta Kappa, Philosophy of Education Society, Nebraska State Education Association and the Capital City Education Society.

The Nebraska Foundation awards, a medallion and gift of $1,000, were presented to Colville and Harnsberger by Harry Haynie, chairman of the Nebraska Foundation Board.

Colville received the teaching award in the physical and technological sciences.

An associate professor of agronomy, Colville is faculty adviser for the Agronomy Club, chairman of the student convocation committee and the educational television committee for the College of Agriculture and Home Economics. He received the Gamma Sigma Delta Teaching Award last year.

Harnsberger received the teaching award in the humanities and social sciences.

A professor of law, Harnsberger began a course in legal ethics and is now writing a water law code.

Regents Appoint New Chairmen; Cople Named To Follow Hall

The new director of the School of Journalism is R. Neale Cople, professor of journalism, who will succeed resigning director, Dr. William Hall.

Cople, a nine year veteran of the staff, was named to the post at a Board of Regents meeting Tuesday afternoon. The Regents also named two new department chairmen.

Dr. Donald Haworth of Oklahoma State University was named chairman of the department of mechanical engineering and Dr. Richard Tyler, professor of Romance language department.

Haworth will succeed Niles Barnhard who asked to return to teaching duties and Tyler succeeds Dr. Roberto Esquenzi-Mayo who resigned to accept a similar post at the University of Cincinnati.

Cople played a key role in the development of the School of Journalism's depth reporting program which has received national recognition. Prior to joining the University staff, he served with the Milwaukee Journal and the Lincoln Evening Journal a total of 11 years.

Shapiro, Harrison 'At War'

There is a war going on, in the English departments of some universities.

One of the battles took place on Monday, March 21, 1966, when Karl Shapiro, a professor of English at the University, and a poet and critic spoke to the Scholars and Fellows, a type of honors society at Tulane University. Dr. Shapiro's topic was "To Have Been a Poet."

On the following Wednesday, Dr. Stanley Harrison, a professor of English at Tulane, struck out at Shapiro.

Dr. Harrison attacked Shapiro for (as Dr. Harrison stated it) "raising one feeble cry against a cult of egotism and depravity in literature" against a movement "in a particular direction which I (Harrison) find intolerable."

Dr. Harrison gave his English class a parody lecture on the style of the poet Shapiro. It was entitled "A Non-Lecturer's Wednesday Morning Response to An Anti-Speaker's Adolescent Negotiations Delivered the Previous Monday Evening."

It was subtitled, "This is the Lecture Which Karl Shapiro Intended to Give, But Did Not Give With the Shapiroisms Or Truths and A Half lic affairs won him an award from the American Political Science Association in 1959. He is presently chairman of the School of Journalism's professional standards committee and chairman of the Faculty Senate subcommittee on student publications.

Cople has served as faculty adviser to the Summer Nebraskan and to the Cornhusker. He is a 1947 graduate of the University and to the Cornhusker. He is a 1947 graduate of the University and holds an M.S. degree with distinction from Northwestern University.

Haworth has been acting director of the mechanical engineering department at Oklahoma State. He was a member of the staff at Purdue University staff from 1952-1962.

Tyler joined the University faculty last fall as professor of Romance languages. He spent nine years with the University of Texas's Romance language department.

In other action involving faculty, the Board of Regents named four teachers Foundation professors bringing the total of distinguished professorships at the school to 14.

The new recipients are Dr. J. M. Daly, foundation professor of botany, biochemistry and nutrition; Dr. Wallace Peterson, foundation professor of economics; Dr. Paul Schach, Charles Mach professor of Germanic languages and Emanuel Wishnow, foundation professor of music.

1966-'67 Budget Approved

The Board of Regents Tuesday approved a $27 million University budget for the year beginning July 1, 1966. The figure represents an increase of $2,078,000 over the current year.

The new budget anticipates a supplemental appropriation of $596,612 from the 1967 Legislature that will be required to serve an estimated 17,200 students next fall without a tuition hike or cutbacks in current programs.

About 70% of the increase will go for instructional programs including libraries, while 10% will go for increased social security and retirement cost for employees. The remaining 20% of the increase is earmarked for current research and service programs, physical plant operations and maintenance and administration.

17,200 Estimated

The current fall enrollment estimate of 17,200 is higher by 1,500 than the base figure the University used when it drafted its biennial budget plans in the fall of 1964.

Part of the increased funds designated for the agricultural extension services, $38,000, will be refunded in a federal program.

"The only area of uncertainty," in the year's budget plans is the "supplemental Morrill-Nelson Fund," according to Vice Chancellor Joseph Soshnik. Part of the federal funds allotted to Nebraska under the Morrill-Nelson Act of 1890 are threatened with a federal budget cutback. If cut, the funds remaining would be only $50,000.

Sorghum Yield

The Regents Tuesday also accepted a $533,000, five-year research grant to support work aimed at increasing the potential yields of sorghum. The grant came from the Rockefeller Foundation.

Chancellor Clifford Hardin said there has been "very little work done" in the area of research with sorghum yields in various climates and noted that the product is a major food crop in many of the hungry areas of the world.

Involvement in the research program will be spread over several departments including departments in the College of Agriculture and in the city campus botany department. Hardin said, "There is going to be great interest" in the program from research experts in all areas of food production."

Senate To Consider New Questionnaire

By Jan Itkin
Senior Staff Writer

A revised questionnaire for the Faculty Evaluation Book will be presented for approval at Wednesday's Student Senate meeting.

Both the questionnaire and the manner of distributing them have been revised, according to Ladd Lonnquist, chairman of the ASUN Faculty Evaluation committee, and the concept of the book has been broadened to include a course evaluation.

Earlier this semester, questionnaires for the book were distributed through all the living units. Of 5,000 questionnaires only 3,000 were returned and the committee decided that a "responsible book could not be published with such a small representation."

Lonnquist explained that according to the revised method of distribution, questionnaires would be handed out in the classrooms during Dead Week

In other action, the Regents approved a proposed contract with the Nebraska Blue Cross Hospital Service Association that will make the University hospital in Omaha a participant in the Blue Cross program.

The contract provides that the University hospital can be reimbursed for the care given a patient enrolled in the Blue Cross program according to the terms of the Blue Cross contract held by the patient.

If the contract is fully approved by the Board of Blue Cross, it will go into effect May 15.

with the instructors' permission.

"We sent out about 900 letters to the faculty last week and have received about 120 replies so far," he said. "The response has been real favorable—so far only four instructors have said we could not enter their classes."

In addition to asking permission to distribute questionnaires in the classrooms, the letters request the instructor to write "a brief summary of the actual subject matter and goals" of the course, including the type and number of hour exams and quizzes, number of themes and list of required texts.

Lonnquist noted that the book would be organized to include the instructor's evaluation of the course and then the student's evaluation of the instructor.

He added that with the exception of the engineering department.

Nominations To Open For 'Outstanding Nebraskan'

Nominations for the thirty-second "Outstanding Nebraskan" awards will be accepted beginning Wednesday. The two "Outstanding Nebraskans" will be named in the Daily Nebraskan May 13.

Nominating letters should be submitted to the Daily Nebraskan office and will be accepted until noon May 9.

The "Outstanding" award, which originated in 1950, is given to a student and a faculty member at the end of each semester. Winners for the first semester of this year were Prof. G. R. Swihart and Jim DeMars.

Chancellor C. R. Gustavson and football star Tom Novak were the first recipients of the award in 1950. The award was originally called the "Best Husker" award, but was changed to "Outstanding Nebraskan."

The ideals of the award were stated at the time of its inception for "Meritorious service in promoting the welfare of the University and the University community."

"Outstanding" faculty members have often been non-teachers. In addition to Chancellor Gustavson, Dallas Williams, head of the University Theater; Dr. George Rosenlof, dean of admissions; Rev.

Rex Knowles, pastor of Presby House; Frank Hallgren, assistant dean of men (and presently Director of the University Placement Office) and Bob Handy, director of the Nebraska Union have been winners of the award.

Athletes Represented

Athletes are represented on the winners list. In addition to Novak, Jim Hoge, a football letterman, won the award in 1962.

A member of the Nebraska legislature, Sen. Marvin Stromer, won the "Outstanding" title in 1956. Mrs. Diane Knotek Butcherus, the 1955 winner, later became Miss Nebraska and represented the state in the Miss America pageant.

Faculty Members

Other "Outstanding" faculty members and their positions are: Ferris Norris, chairman of the electrical engineering department; Dr. O. K. Bouwsma, professor of philosophy; Dr. Carl Georgi, chairman of the bacteriology department; Emanuel Wishnow, chairman of the music department.

Donald Olsen, assistant professor of speech; W. V. Lambert, dean of the College of Agriculture; Dr. Robert Knoll, professor of English; Dr. Robert Hough, professor of English; Dr. Donald Clifton, professor in Teachers College; Mary Jean Mulvaney, Physical Education Department; Dr. Charles H. Patterson, philosophy professor; Dr. Bertrand Schulz, geology professor and director of the State Museum; Dr. Lane Lancaster, professor of Law; and R. Neale Cople, now director of the School of Journalism.
