

College Financial Assistance Available Through 'Self-Help'

College students are now able to secure financial assistance for their college education and vocational training through "self help" federal programs, according to First District Congressman Clair Callan.

"It is important to this nation that all young Americans secure the best possible education to face the challenges of a rapidly changing world. There is no longer any reason for any qualified student not to continue his education if he has the desire," Callan said in a release from his Washington office.

Callan listed the following programs:

—The Higher Education Act of 1965 which permits a student to borrow from a bank up to $1,600 per year. The repayment is guaranteed by the federal government and the student pays three per cent interest and the government pays three per cent for students from families with less than $15,000 adjusted income. For those above $15,000, the student pays six per cent simple interest. Repayment does not begin until after graduation.

—The Economic Opportunity Act of 1964 which makes available grants of $200 to $800 per year to students who are financially unable to meet college expenses.

The Act also makes funds available for part-time work while students are in school.

—The National Defense Student Loan Program permits undergraduates to borrow up to $1,000 per year. Up to 50 per cent of these loans are forgiven at a rate of 10 per cent if a student becomes a teacher.

The rate is 15 per cent a year in areas of high concentrations of low income families.

—The National Vocational Student Loan Insurance Act of 1965 allows students to borrow up to $1,000 each year for two years with repayment guaranteed.

Interest is paid by the federal government while the student is in school with repayment to begin from nine months to one year after studies are completed.

—The Nurses Training Act provides for the establishment of loan funds in qualified nursing schools and allows full-time student nurses to borrow up to $1,000 a year.

A forgiveness clause allows cancellation of up to 40 per cent of the total loan at the rate of 10 per cent a year if the nurse is employed at a public or non-profit institution or agency.

Deleted For If There Is One Thing We Have Too Much Of Today It Is Truth," or, "Thank You Nebraska, You're Welcome To Him."

In the parody, Shapiro is referred to as Nebraska Fats. Dr. Harrison says, "You're an anachronism, Nebraska (Shapiro), which is another way of saying that you're nothing but camp, nothing but goo, high camp — you and Batman . . . And since you're camp, you're successful — and that's what makes you so dangerous."

"The Losers are the only real winners — only the losers win and so you stand outside the window with Orphan Annie and Sandy, and Hubert Humphrey, and Dondi, and Floyd Patterson, and Hugh Hefner."

"You all make believe that you're the salt of the earth, and you walk the land each one believing that you are the reincarnation of your leader — the greatest loser of them all — Jesus Christ."

"The way you are right now, Karl, you turn me off," concluded Dr. Harrison.

Dr. Harrison criticized Shapiro's attempt at idolizing the human ego as the expression of the true self. This, he explained, departs from Emerson and others who approved the exposing of the ego because within this ego was a divinity found in all men.

However, according to Dr. Harrison, writers like Shapiro and Henry Miller write whatever they want, bringing the subconscious out. In this manner the ego is no longer divine when "it leaves man rooting around like a pig in the gutter."

Shapiro's reaction to this combination of a parody and criticism was "I expect that everywhere I go there is an old guard faction that stirs up the natives. They are the admirers of T. S. Eliot and tradition."

"These conservatives are usually in the majority. They usually admire writers who conform with old standards. If they teach, they must teach by standards that have always been set."

"I believe in a new kind of fiction. In it the author must be subjective. He becomes a part of the book, rather than creating characters. This goes back to Walt Whitman in poetry and to Henry Miller in fiction."

Shapiro explained that a whole generation of English teachers grew up under the criticisms of T. S. Eliot. According to Eliot, the poet must get rid of himself completely in his writings.

"This idea becomes a way of life to these teachers and my type of teaching angers them," explained Shapiro.

"It's actually an act of self-defense on their part."

"I believe that standards and traditions come from the past. In my group, you have no standards until you make them. Conservatives say this is making the world go to pot. My answer is 'So what, we'll start a new one.'"

"I believe in starting every day anew. I never go back or look over my shoulder."

What really bothers Shapiro is that "they say these ideas are for kids. They think that at some age, people should give them up. In me they think they've got a Trojan horse."

Shapiro states that this war between factions in English is a division of armed camps. "The conservatives won't compromise," he said.

Peace Advocates To Hold Meeting

The first public meeting of Nebraskans for Peace in Viet Nam will be held Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at Bennett Martin Public Library.

The group was organized by four University-connected people, including Carl Davidson, former president of Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) and the Rev. Bruce McSpadden, associate pastor of the Wesley Foundation.

Sunday's organizational meeting will include a seminar, "How To Stop A War" with Davidson, Dr. Victor Lane, assistant professor of foreign languages at Nebraska Wesleyan, and Dr. David Trask, associate professor of history at the University.

The statement of purpose for Nebraskans for Peace in Viet Nam states that the group "urgently seeks a peaceful solution to the tragic conflict in Viet Nam."

The statement says that the group will "bring about changes in United States policy in Viet Nam through direct contact with persons in positions of authority."

and second runner-up was Miss Patti Van Horne.

Miss Shook, a freshman from Omaha, is in the College of Home Economics. She is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority and was second runner-up in Miss Derby Day.

For the talent competition in the contest she did a modern jazz dance. She will represent the University in the Miss Nebraska contest June 13-18.

Miss Fetty is a freshman in the College of Arts and Sciences from Nebraska City. She is a member of Zeta Tau Alpha sorority and was first runner-up for Miss Nebraska City. She performed an acrobatic dance.

Miss Van Horne, a freshman from San Rafael, Calif., is majoring in music therapy in the College of Arts and Sciences. A member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority, she sang the song "Misty" in the talent program.

A series of Constitutional amendments, bringing the Constitution up to date, will be voted on at the meeting.

Among the amendments is one creating a loyalty oath, another regarding the creation of special committees and another creating impeachment powers.

Contracts for the Rush Book and house composites are also scheduled to be discussed.

Lonnquist explained that the questionnaire is based on the one used at Queens College "which has received national acclaim for its thoroughness."

He added that the only problem he foresees is that of the mass distribution and collection of questionnaires under the new system.

Lonnquist noted, the new questionnaire is easier to fill out than the old one and contains "more thorough questions."

The questions include queries on the type of course, course content, text, outside readings, papers, examinations, instructors' classroom and out-of-class techniques and the student's individual attitude.

future functioning of the Atlantic Alliance as a main factor of world stability.

"The move towards European integration is one of the great European debts towards the United States."

Need For Unity

Strengthened European cooperation aiming at European unity remains a fundamental need if Europe is to be able to play a constructive role in a genuine world-wide cooperation embracing the whole Western world as well as the Communist countries.

Only by European unity, Krag said, can the countries of Europe hope to establish the conditions for a satisfactory economic growth and political machinery which will allow Europe as a whole to play that part in the development of the world which the historic achievements of the European countries entitles it.

"Only thereby can Europe become the equal partner with which the United States can share its enormous burdens partnership is indispensable if we wish to succeed in building a better world to the benefit of mankind."

Viet Nam Conflict

In a press conference following the convocation, Krag said that Western European and Scandinavian countries are very concerned about the Viet Nam conflict.

"The sooner a negotiated peace can be reached, the better," Krag said. Denmark would not support the Viet Nam war with armies or weapons, but they have contributed nurses and hospitals.

In a conference scheduled for Wednesday morning with President Johnson, Krag said they would probably discuss NATO, the European market situation and preferential shipping systems.

Having visited SAC headquarters on Monday, he said, "I am convinced of the overwhelming strength of the defense power of the United States."
