

IDCC: 'Re-evaluate Masters Program'

The Interdorm Coordinating Committee (IDCC) Tuesday unanimously passed a motion to request that ASUN re-evaluate the handling of the Masters Week Program because the dorms had been "unfairly represented."

Joan Spivey, IDCC secretary, introduced the motion which calls for the drafting of a letter to ASUN on the matter. "All the dorms were unfairly represented in the Masters Program," Miss Spivey charged. "There was far better representation in the (Greek) house."

There was general agreement with Miss Spivey's statement by the other 10 IDCC members in attendance. Larry Anderson, representative from Sellenck Quadrangle, stated, "We never knew officially who our Masters would be; we weren't officially contacted." John Decker, Cather Hall representative, commented that he felt the Masters' visit to Cather was handled well.

Miss Spivey said, however, that the Masters appeared at Cather "only after action was taken by the dorms." Miss Spivey did not specify exactly what this action was.

IDCC also approved an amended version of Article V of the proposed IDCC constitution dealing with representation, and tabled a discussion of Article VII, dealing with meetings and procedure.

Under Article V, the Council will be provided a minimum number of 19 voting members and a maximum of 22. One voting member and one alternate will be elected for each 250 dorm residents with a maximum of 400 for one voting member and one alternate.

The article also provided for yearly adjustments in representation according to adjustments in population of the dorms.

Opposition to the 250 minimum number came from Burr West representative Keith Olson. With 250 as a minimum, Olson said, "one dorm on City Campus could outvote all of East Campus. With a 250 minimum, East Campus isn't going to be represented, and it should reject the constitution."

Jim Ludwig, Cather representative, responded that it would be "impossible to have a system that would give each campus an equal vote. One dorm—one vote wouldn't even work. I hope the system wouldn't be so partisan that you'd have that situation, anyway."

Other IDCC members expressed similar views. The Council is "designed to serve all the residents of both campuses," Tom Holman, Abel Hall president noted. "We're sitting down in the interest of all the residence halls, Larry Anderson, Sellenck representative, said.

Love Memorial Hall representative, Marilyn Fuhrman, added, "East Campus is just going to have to go along."

Love Memorial Hall representative, Marilyn Fuhrman, added, "East Campus is just going to have to go along."

NU Masters Eye Dorms

The dormitories proportionately had more of the Masters' attention than any other group of living units, according to Jim DeMars, Masters chairman.

He noted that four Masters went to both Pound and Cather Halls, and that the Masters said "they were especially pleased with their receptions at these two dorms."

There was one Master for every 125 students at Cather and Pound while only one for every 150 students in the Greek living units, he explained.

DeMars said that the Masters also complimented the independent living units on East Campus as "being some of the most responsive and interesting groups" they met.

At Abel Hall, he said, almost no students showed up to meet the Masters, and at Sellenck "the response was just a little greater." He noted that the Masters did compliment the small group at Sellenck for "asking good questions and showing interest."

Audubon Films End Thursday

The last in the series of Audubon Wildlife Films, "Delta of the Orinoco," will be shown at the University Love Library auditorium at 4 and 8 p.m. Thursday.

The film, produced and narrated by Robert C. Hermes, depicts the wildlife of the Orinoco delta in Venezuela, a vast area of swamps and jungles.

Hermes, who turned naturalist and photographer at the age of 12, spent three summers in the country photographing such birds as the nesting hoatzins, the great aruco and the morpho butterflies of the region.

His pictures and writings have appeared in many publications throughout the world, of which the best known is his series on acrobatic frogs.

Covering as much as 65,000 miles in a single season, Hermes has become one of the nation's most sought after natural history lecturers. His still pictures have twice won first prizes in the International Graflex competition.

Carpenter Drafts Bill On Omaha U

A bill to make Omaha University a part of the University of Nebraska is in the process of being drafted by State Sen. Terry Carpenter.

"I'm going to do all I can about that if possible," Carpenter said.

He said if the people of Omaha don't want to do that, the Omaha University board of regents should be elected on a county-wide basis in relation to the senatorial districts now existent.

"The people of Omaha should have some representation in its operation," the Scottsbluff lawmaker said.

Art Gallery To Display Sculpture For E-Week

A design class in the School of Architecture at the University is preparing three large, temporary sculptures for display near the Sheldon Memorial Art Gallery during the E-Week open house from 2 to 10 p.m. Thursday.

Dale Gibbs, professor of architecture and the students' professor, explained that the purpose of the project is to test the effect of sculpture near the Gallery.

The University is considering the construction of a sculpture garden near the Gallery in the future.

Student project team captain and their sculptures:

- Ken Miller, David Smith replica of welded steel.
- Stanley Lund and Elie Nadelman neo-classic figure.
- Steve Yaussi a Henry Moore pierced reclining figure.

Senate Meeting

Further investigation be made of the role of the advisory boards as sounding boards of student opinion.

A tentative agenda of meetings and topics for the year be drawn up and distributed to appropriate persons in the fall.

Open meetings of the boards be announced in the colleges.

An effort be made to acquaint the students with their advisory boards.

Bus Service

A night intra-campus bus service will be reinstated in the fall, according to Sen. Dave Snyder, parking chairman.

He added that a recommendation would be made to open Area F (the lot near the library) for student parking after 8 p.m. He explained that this year the lot had been closed to students at all times and was strictly for faculty use.

YD's, YR's Plan Projects

Both the Young Democrats and the Young Republican organizations are sponsoring political action projects Thursday.

The YD's will hold an open meeting at 4 p.m. in the Nebraska Union for those interested in attending the state YD convention in Norfolk May 6-7. YD president Tom Booth stated that anyone attending the convention as a delegate from the University will have voting power.

Another topic of the afternoon meeting will be the summer political action program, "Campaign Readiness." The project is to be conducted throughout the state with the aim of building up grass roots support for Democrats running for state office.

The Young Republicans will be conducting a voter information project Thursday night beginning at 7 p.m. Interested students may meet at the south door of the Union and will then proceed to downtown Lincoln where the students will be handing out Republican Party campaign material.
