University Coed Named Queen At CD Meeting

A sophomore in Teachers College at the University and a member of Sigma Kappa sorority was recently crowned Miss Nebraska Civil Defense.

Sandra McGuire, 19, was crowned at the mid-year meeting of the Nebraska Civil Defense Directors Association at Kimball.

She competed against 14 other entrants representing other localities throughout the state.

Her prize-winning 500 word essay with the title "I Speak for Civil Defense in Our World Today" emphasized the Civil Defense's role in natural disasters such as tornadoes.

Indians To Hold Festival

A typical marriage ceremony will be performed at the Spring Cultural Festival of the India Association, which will be held Sunday, 7:30 p.m., in the East Campus Union ballroom.

The India Association is an organization dedicated to "greater understanding and friendship between the world's two largest democracies, the United States and India."

Membership in the India Association is open to all interested individuals. Inquiries should be directed to the organization's president, Prof. Jagdish Srivastava, or the publicity director, Dr. Chivukula Rao.

The purpose of the annual festival is to acquaint Americans with the customs and way of life of India.

In addition to the marriage, the program will include solo and group dances, songs, and a fashion parade. University staff members and students plus members of the local community are taking part in the program.

There is no admission for the program.

Visiting Teacher To Review Work Of Art Students

A University of Iowa professor of art, Byron Burford, is visiting the University department of art this week to review art work by graduate students and conduct a professional seminar.

Burford has presented 49 one-man shows through the Midwest and West and his work is represented in the University's collections at the Sheldon Art Gallery.

Thirty paintings which Burford completed during the past year are now on exhibition at the Babcock Galleries in New York City.

The recipient of Guggenheim and Julius Rosenwald fellowships, Burford is considered an expert on restoration of paintings and is a contemporary figurative painter.

His seminar for faculty and graduate students will be held Friday afternoon in the Woods Building.

THE COLORFUL PAST . . . of the Nebraska Czechs is partially preserved in the Historical Society. Dr. Vladimir Kucera, director of the Comenius Club, examines an example of the native dress.

Comenius Club Works To Preserve Heritage

The oldest foreign language club on campus, according to its director, is the Comenius Czech Club, founded in 1903 and still very much alive today after a 1962 re-establishment.

The club is named for Jan Amos Komensky, a world-famous Czech educator. The founding of the club at the University inspired the establishment of similar groups in towns throughout the Midwest, according to Dr. Vladimir Kucera, museum assistant and Czech Club director.

After a World War II lull in activity, the club now claims some seventy members and holds monthly meetings for students with Czechoslovakian backgrounds.

The programs of the club consist of folk songs, dances and films from Czechoslovakia.

The first annual Czech Spectacular was held in 1963. About 500 people attended the event in the Nebraska Union. State officials mixed with other guests of the club for a night of singing, dancing and a traditional Czech dinner.

Kucera said, "The purpose of the Czech Club is to revive feeling for the rich Czech heritage and folklore."

Speaking of the thousands of Czech pioneers who settled in the Midwest around 90 years ago, Kucera added, "Only here will we preserve the free, democratic Czech heritage until Czechoslovakia is once again free."

NU Film Forum Set For Thursday

"The Fiances" and "That Man From Rio" will be discussed at a Nebraska Union film forum Thursday at 7 p.m. in the Nebraska Union. Robert Narveson, assistant professor of English, will moderate the discussion.

Nebraska Science Academy To Hold 76th Annual Meeting

The 76th annual meeting of the Nebraska Academy of Sciences will be held at the University Friday and Saturday.

Sections of most sciences and mathematics will be held at various times throughout both days at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education.

Dr. G. Robert Coatney, chief of the Laboratory of Parasite Chemotherapy for the U.S. Department of Health Education and Welfare, will speak at 8 p.m. Friday in the Nebraska Center auditorium on "Monkeys, Malaria, Mosquitoes and Man."

Coatney, a native Nebraskan, has played a leading role in a world program for malaria control. In 1962 he started a scientific program of research and development which could lead to the prevention of malaria by immunization.

He holds honorary degrees from Bowling Green University and the University.

A special Academy symposium on parasitology, honoring Dr. Harold W. Manter, professor of zoology at the University, will be held at 2 p.m. Thursday in the Scottsbluff Room of the Center.

Professor A. B. Wilcox of Amherst College and vice president of the Mathematical Association of America, will speak on algebraic problems and the teaching of undergraduates at 11 a.m. Saturday.

Section meetings will be held in anthropology, biology, medicine, chemistry, physics, the earth sciences, engineering and the history and philosophy of science in the various departments.

For the first time in its history, the Nebraska Junior Academy of Science meeting will feature a special reading of papers at 9 a.m. Saturday at University High School.

Dr. James Rutledge, superintendent of science and professor of secondary education at the University, explained that the reading of outstanding papers by high school and junior high school students from Lincoln and the surrounding area will replace the science fair.

Two Delegates To National YWCA

Two representatives from the University will be in Minneapolis, Minn., April 29 to May 1 for the National Young Women's Christian Association Conference.

Andrea Block, president of the University YWCA, and Mrs. C. Twig Gordon, director of the University YWCA, will be among the 1,000 members attending the conference.

The theme of the conference will be "The YWCA Moves Ahead."

ROTC Program Applications Due

Applications for the advanced Army ROTC program must be completed before Friday, according to Army ROTC spokesman.

Students who qualify for the two-year advanced program should contact Sergeant Major Michael George in the Army ROTC office in the Military and Naval Science Building.
