

ASUN ELECTION RETURNS

OFFICIAL TABULATIONS

The following is a list of the votes received in the ASUN election Wednesday. This list was released by the ASUN Election Commission Thursday night.

In Graduate College, because only three candidates received the 25 vote minimum, three of the Graduate College's six seats will be redistributed to the other colleges. Additional seats in the other colleges will be announced next week.

Bob Samuelson's winning seat in the Graduate College will also be redistributed because he was elected to both second vice president and Senate.

The total vote on the amendment for the office of second vice president will be announced Monday.

Abbott, Snyder 'Plan To Work'

Two candidates for ASUN president who were defeated in Wednesday's ASUN election said Thursday that they planned to work as senators to accomplish some of the aims they put forth in their campaigns.

Steve Abbott and Dave Snyder polled the top number of votes in Graduate College and the College of Agriculture and Home Economics respectively and will be serving on Senate next year.

Abbott said that the campaign was "very interesting in that it brought out the issues" and that he was pleased to see two of his party's members, Liz Aitken and Ron Pfeifer, poll the top number of votes from Arts and Sciences.

"All three of the presidential candidates had the same goals," he said. "There was no opposition for opposition's sake and there was often much agreement like on the Faculty-Evaluation Book and the pass-fail system."

Snyder noted that it had been "a good campaign that got a lot more students interested in student government."

"It is my opinion, though, that this interest was not reflected in the voter turnout, because of the bad weather," he said. "As usual the issues and interest centered around the executive candidates."

On East Campus, there was more interest in the student government election than had been in the past, he added.

He cited completion of the Faculty-Evaluation Book, working with the Unicameral and the student bill of rights as personal fields of interest.

"The members of our party (CFDP) plan to augment parts of our platform by cooperating with the majority," Abbott continued. "We have some of the same ideas, and a difference in methods is healthy."

Projects for next year that Snyder stressed as being important were the European Flight, development of responsibility to the students, cooperation between ASUN and the Unicameral and campus expansion.

Library Offers Study Facilities

As the academic center of the University of Nebraska, Love Memorial Library offers a variety of facilities to the student.

Love Library contains more than three quarters of a million books. Since the completion of the library in 1942, 25,000 books a year have been added.

Aside from this, there are 7,500 subscriptions to newspapers and periodicals from all over the world.

Love Library, a four story structure in the middle of the campus, as visited each summer and fall by dozens of freshmen through the many tours offered.

First floor contains the auditorium, Central Reserve, and Science Reading rooms.

Check-out desk and information desk are on second floor, along with two rooms of catalogue cards. Reading rooms for education, humani-

Uncertainty Marks Campus Elections

Election time is an unpredictable time of the year.

Who would have thought, for instance that three incumbents (including one junior running for his third term) would be defeated Wednesday? Or that seven freshmen would win offices, in three cases polling more votes than incumbents?

Bill Hansmire, two-term senator from Engineering and Architecture and president of the Big Eight Student Government Association, was defeated in his bid for a third term by two votes.

Freshman Nesha Neumeister (ASUN President Kent Neumeister's sister) out-pollied winning incumbent Kelley Baker and defeated incumbent Tom Pickering in Arts and Sciences. Also in Arts and Sciences, freshman Mimi Rose won.

In Engineering College, Bob Tucker, freshman, out polled both winning incumbent Don Voss and losing incumbents Ron Psota and Hansmire. Voss was running for a third term the same as Hansmire.

No incumbents in Business Administration were running and two female freshmen, Cheryl Adams and Nancy Probasco won half the seats.

The three incumbents in Teachers College, Kris Bittner, Pam Wood and Karen Westenberg, won the top three places respectively. Only one man took a seat in Teachers, Gary Muller.

Jan Binger, incumbent from Agriculture and Home Economics, was defeated. The four winners from Ag according to apportionment before the race are all men. Dave Snyder, candidate for president, is the top winner from Ag.

Ron Pfeifer, sophomore, came in second for the second year in a row in Arts and Sciences. Last year Andy Taube was first and this year Liz Aitken is the top winner.

Dave Sensensy won the one seat in Professional as a write-in candidate.

There were other write-in candidates in almost all the colleges and executive positions. Bill Potts led the 20 write-in candidates for president with four votes. Other presidential write-in candidates were Kent Neumeister and Jim Jenkins, with three votes each.

Bob Samuelson led the 29 write-in candidates for first vice president and there was one write-in candidate for second vice president.

The number of write-in candidates in the other colleges were as follows: Graduate, 27; Arts and Sciences, 24; Engineering and Architecture, five; Teachers, nine; Agriculture and Home Economics, two, and Professional, four.

Financial forms reporting ASUN campaign expenditures showed that it really did not matter how much money candidates spent during campaign.

According to ASUN electoral director Carol Bischoff, the commission is currently reviewing the forms that have been turned in concerning campaign expenditures for Wednesday's ASUN election.

Six senatorial candidates, including two incumbents, reported that they had spent nothing on campaign expenditures. Of the six, five (including the incumbents) were not elected.

George Lonnquist, a candidate from Arts and Sciences, was the only senator elected without an expense.

He explained to the commission that the posters he used were left over from last year when he had made an unsuccessful Senate bid.

On the other end of the scale, one successful candidate for Senate spent $39.75 on his campaign out of a maximum limit of $40.

Other senatorial candidates reported expenditures ranging from 60 cents to $39.55.

Although the next two "big spenders" in the Senate campaign were incumbents who were elected the trend seemed to indicate that large expenditures did not insure election. One successful candidate spent as little as $2.75.

Miss Bischoff noted that every form would be carefully checked and validated by the commission.
