

Luther Wins Award For Scholarship

"Athletes are proverbially 'dumb' and I wanted to prove that wrong," explains Husker baseball player Clayton Luther.

Luther won the C. W. Boucher award for the highest grade point average of a senior letterman. His average was 3.209.

"I had to work hard for that honor. I came from a small school and I had to study very hard. But I am very pleased to receive such an honor," he said.

Luther comes from Indiana, Nebr., a small town near McCook. He played mid-get baseball for five years at McCook as first-string catcher.

"Actually, I got my start in baseball from my father who coached me in Cub Scouts. He kept my interest up and kept me going in the sport," Luther explained.

He is now the first-string catcher for the Nebraska baseball team. He has been tabbed a fine defensive catcher for the Huskers. His batting average for the season is .273, and he leads the Huskers in put-outs with 84 to his credit.

Luther feels that Nebraska's team this year "has real good potential and can still win the Big 8 title." He said, "This team is by far the best hitting Nebraska has had since I've started playing here. This is a closely knit team and we all want to win the title."

Luther is enrolled at the Teachers College at the University and is majoring in biology. He plans to go to graduate school for one year and then begin teaching, and his future plans include obtaining a Master's Degree in Guidance.

"I am a counselor in the dorms and I like to work with kids. I don't want to go into administration in high schools because I think I would lose contact with the kids," he explained.

Luther said that someday he wants to try coaching, but he "will have to learn a lot more about it before giving it a try." Meanwhile, Luther is busy learning more about catching for the Huskers as he and his team-mates prepare for the next 12 conference games that will decide the Big Eight Championship.

University of Nebraska athletes continue to prove themselves in the classrooms as well as in sports competition. Several other Cornhuskers were cited for academic achievement at the 38th annual University of Nebraska Honors Convocation.

Les Hellbusch, sophomore trackman from Columbus, ter with a straight-A average in Arts and Sciences, made the honors list and membership in Phi Eta Sigma honorary.

Three freshman who made the honor list: Bill Daiss of Grant (football)—Agriculture College, Joe Armstrong of Beatrice (football)—Business Administration, Jim Simmons of Scottsbluff (track)—Teachers College.

While these current Cornhusker athletes strive for academic excellence, a former Scarlet and Cream star continues to sparkle in the classroom.

Excitement clings to him like a dame!

Neibauer Slated To Pitch Opener

Nebraska's baseball team will open a three game-series with Missouri April 29 with Gary Neibauer as starting pitcher for the Huskers.

Bob Sticksels and Bob Hergenrader will pitch the two games in Saturday's double-header.

Coach Tony Sharpe has announced that Chuck Rombach, sophomore from Grand Island, will be used in the right field position. Tony Sharpe, Jr. and Terry Scannell will be used in Friday's line-up, but the actual starting line-up will not be known until after an intrasquad game, later this week.

Nebraska's conference record dipped to 5-4 after the Huskers dropped two games to Oklahoma State last week-end. But Sharpe is still optimistic about the Huskers chances for the conference title.

"It looks as if it's a six team race with only Colorado and Kansas out of the race for the championship," said Sharpe.

"With four losses we won't be able to lose too many more, but I remember a few years ago we won our last ten games to cinch the title," he said.

Sharpe feels that the lack of outdoor practice and some injuries to key players hurt the Huskers last week-end in their series with the Cowboys. "I think we can pull the team together and still win the championship," he said.

"Looking at Missouri's record thus far, I suppose I'd have to say they have been somewhat of a disappointment. But Missouri has been known to start slow and finish strong, and I just hope that the Tigers don't decide to put their hitting and pitching together and take their wrath out on us," Sharpe said.

Nebraska will take an 18-man squad to Missouri. They will travel by chartered bus.

Intramurals

The intramural deck tennis tournament begins next Wednesday with nine tournament entries. Schedules are posted on the south bulletin board in the intramurals building.

Bowling Team Will Compete In Tournament

Roll-offs held Tuesday night determined the University of Nebraska bowling team which will compete in the Big Eight bowling tournament in Manhattan, Kansas today and Saturday.

The trip is sponsored by the Nebraska Union. Each team will bowl against each of the other seven teams twice to determine the winner.

Points will be awarded on the basis of one point for each team victory and one point each 100 pins scored.

The Nebraska team members are: Hal Erwin, Gary Snyder, Ralph DeLong, Steve Sandelin, and Tim Katika, (captain).

Where the Action Is

The telephone rang. Defensive end coach Jim Ross answered.

"Sorry, Colonel Gaddini is out on a field problem but will be back later. Can I take a message?"

Ross laughed. The "Colonel" is Rudy Gaddini, a graduate student who helped coach the last two years at Nebraska. He has been taking a lot of ribbing from the coaches since he accepted a backfield coaching job at General Beadle State College.

General Beadle State College is a small liberal arts school in Madison, S.D. It is fully accredited and offers both teachers education and bachelor of science programs. It is undergoing a major expansion movement and has a good athletic department.

The only problem? That name! Ever since Gaddini took the job at General Beadle he has had to withstand the jibes of his fellow coaches at NU.

Clete Fischer affectionately calls the school "General Beagle" while Bob Devaney wants to know if Ringo Starr goes to school there.

Someone wanted to know what General Beadle did to get the school named after him. Gaddini asked Steve Bindas, athletic director at the college and Bindas explained that Beadle prevented any party raids on campus.

One recruit asked Gaddini what school he represented. Gaddini replied "General Beadle State College." The recruit just said, "You're kidding!"

Gaddini's football career is indeed a colorful one. Gaddini was an All-City and All-State selection from Chicago's Fenwick High School. He played football for four years at Michigan State and was a member of the Spartan team that beat UCLA in the 1956 Rose Bowl, 17-14, by kicking a field goal in the last seven seconds of the game.

Gaddini coached five years at Fenwick as backfield coach under John Jardine, who now is the offensive line coach at UCLA. During that time Gaddini coached four All-Staters and one All-American.

Gaddini joined the Husker staff in 1964. In January of this year he received his Masters in education.

Gaddini has mixed feelings about the name General Beadle. "It is a catchy name ya' gotta admit," says Gaddini in a combination of Italian and Chicago accents. "But it does cause problems."

He is excited about the new job, name or no name. "I'd like to go as far as possible in the coaching profession," says Gaddini. "And I wouldn't mind being as successful as Bob (Devaney)," he adds with a smile.

Gaddini is a walking encyclopedia on General Beadle State College.

"Actually, the General was a very famous educator in South Dakota and helped set up the land grant colleges there," he explains.

Dr. Laurence S. Flaum, the president of the institution doubled the enrollment of the school in the past three years and expects to keep up the growing trends. The school has a current enrollment of about 1000.

Bindas is a former head of the Nebraska State Physical Education Association and was a golf pro at Hastings Country Club. "He is one of the 12 finest physical educators in the nation," says Gaddini.

Gaddini is optimistic about the football program at General Beadle. "It may just become the Slippery Rock of the Midwest," he offers.

Gaddini, his wife Julie, and their three children will leave Nebraska in June. "Nebraskans are great people. I think they are outstanding and very friendly people. I have truly enjoyed my association with them," he says.

"They won't even let me in a staff meeting with a pencil and a piece of paper for security reasons—they're afraid I'll steal Nebraska's plays," jokes the "Colonel."
