

Tickets For Seeger Are Still Available

About $3,500 worth of tickets for the Friday benefit appearance of folk singer Pete Seeger are still available, according to John Schrekinger, ticket manager.

Seeger, known as the father of America's folksinging revival, will be appearing at the Nebraska Wesleyan Fine Arts Building, 50th and Baldwin, at 8:30 p.m.

Tickets, priced at $2.50, $3, and $3.50 will be available in the Nebraska Union as late as Friday noon, Schrekinger said. Tickets will also be sold at the door.

The composer-singer is being sponsored by the University Friends of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee (SNCC), Student Religious Liberals, the Lincoln NAACP and the Wesleyan Methodist Student Movement.

Seeger is noted as the leader of the folk song revival and recently completed a folk singing world tour. He has composed "Turn, Turn, Turn," "Blowin' in the Wind," and "The First Time Ever I Saw Your Face," and has written instructional music books for guitar and banjo.

At the Friends of SNCC meeting Tuesday, JoEllen Williams was elected president for the coming year. Other new officers are Tish Voichahoske, vice president, Marsha Thornton, secretary and John Dietz, treasurer.

Senate Installs Officers

New executive and Senate members will be installed in office at Wednesday's Student Senate meeting.

In addition, ASUN President Kent Neumeister will present a farewell address to both the current Student Senate and the Senate-elect.

The John Lydick award for outstanding senator will also be presented at this meeting.

President-elect Terry Schaaf speculated that aside from announcement of the new executive appointments other business would not be brought up.

He explained that ratification of his appointments as well as ratification of members of the Publications Board and Student Tribunal would be made at next week's meeting.

Both administrations of ASUN will adjourn to Pioneer Park for a picnic and "old vs. new" football game.

McPherson Is Honored

Mu Epsilon Nu, men's honorary in education, recently presented awards and chartered its second chapter in the Big Eight.

David McPherson of Syracuse was presented the Henzik Award by the group. The award is presented annually to an outstanding Nebraska high school teacher.

A $384 scholarship was also presented to Dennis Beckmann, a University High School student. This scholarship is given on the basis of excellence in both academic and extra-curricular activities.

A plaque was presented to Dr. Donald O. Clifton, associate professor of education, naming him the first member of the National Board of Governors of MU Epsilon Nu.

The honorary also held a banquet at the University of Kansas in Lawrence, where it chartered a second chapter in the Big Eight.

RAM Elections

Cont. from pg. 1, col. 7. Neumeister maintained he had campaigned for Shur during the lunch and dinner hours of the election day but had "thought nothing wrong with it."

"I went in the lunch room and told people I knew that it would probably be a close election," he said.

He added he did not know any subtotals and had simply assumed the election would be close because of the talk he had overheard.

Suhr's motion to call a new election was accompanied by a statement of agreement signed by the officers-elect and was passed unanimously.

AN INDIAN WEDDING ... was simulated Sunday night at the India Association Spring Cultural Festival.

Indian Mock Wedding Is Featured At Festival

By Toni Victor Junior Staff Reporter

Marriage, Indian style, has not changed from over three thousand years, said Dr. Ramesh Chandan, master of ceremonies at the India Association Spring Cultural Festival Sunday night.

A mock wedding ceremony was performed on stage at the festival exactly as it is performed in India today and has been performed throughout the country's history.

The bride and groom, surrounded by happy relatives and friends, tied themselves together and circled the sacred fire seven times as the priest, or pandit, watched.

Chandan, a research assistant in dairy science at the University, noted that the bride usually cries as she receives the priest's blessing and formally says good bye to her family.

The ceremony highlighted an evening of Indian folk songs and traditional dances, performed by members of the India Association in colorful native garb.

The Vande Mataram opened the show in the East Campus Union as the song opens every production in India, said Chandan.

A series of dances performed by two members of the association depicted a young girl attempting to catch a fish, a woman picking flowers for her hair, and an angry cobra attacking a girl wandering in the garden.

Intricate hand movements characterized all the dancing. Only women danced and the only singing soloists were men. Live music for some of the songs was supplied by a traditional drum instrument.

A humorous skit entitled "The Drunkard's Mistake" concerned the antics of an American in India. The inebriated tourist stays with his Indian friend and proceeds to make a fool of himself as he talks about "the mad taxi driver who drove down the wrong side of the street" and dons a false beard and his wife's clothes.

The festival is an annual affair which strives to acquaint Americans with the customs and way of life of India. The India Association is open to all interested persons and is dedicated to "greater understanding and friendship between the world's two largest democracies—the United States and India."

Faculty Book ... Evaluation Set For Dead Week

Had the Committee on Student Affairs been notified of the change in procedure for the Faculty-Evaluation Book, "they would have been impressed," according to G. Robert Ross, vice chancellor and dean of student affairs.

The Committee, however, "felt pretty disappointed" that the ASUN committee had not notified them of a change in questionnaires and the letters sent to faculty members requesting permission to distribute the forms in the classrooms during Dead Week.

Letters have been sent to faculty members from the ASUN faculty-course evaluation committee requesting permission to distribute the questionnaires and asking the faculty to write a course evaluation.

Ross explained that after a poor response on the first questionnaire postponed the publication of the book, the three conditions were never met.

"Liability of the committee can be solved by insurance," he said. "If the Committee met as a whole that could be covered shortly."

The other two conditions could be met by having the ASUN committee draft a statement of purpose and state that they agree to the third provision, he said.

During Dead Week, the Assn. Committee will distribute questionnaires in classes where they have received the instructors' permission.

Earlier this semester, questionnaires for the book were distributed through all the living units. Of 35,000 questionnaires, only 3,000 were returned and the committee decided that a responsible book could not be published with such a small representation.

In addition to asking permission to distribute the questionnaires in the classrooms, the letters request the instructor to write "a brief summary of the actual subject matter and goals" of the course, including the type and number of hour exams and quizzes, number of themes and list of required texts.

Ladd Lonquist, chairman of the ASUN committee, noted that the book would be organized to include the instructor's evaluation of the course and then the students' evaluation of the instructor.

He added that the only questionnaires in the classrooms, the letters request the instructor to write "a brief summary of the actual subject matter and goals" of the course, including the type and number of hour exams and quizzes, number of themes and list of required texts.

Dr. Deems Honored

The University of Nebraska chapter of Alpha Tau Alpha and the Home Economics Education Association (HEEA) recently honored Dr. Howard W. Deems, longtime NU educator.

Deems was presented a plaque "in appreciation of outstanding service to students preparing for careers in vocational education," by Kay Kassing of Beatrice, HEEA president, on behalf of the two student organizations.

Alpha Tau Alpha, headed by Larry Viterna of Verdigris, is a vocational education honorary.

A naive of Pleasant Dale, Deems is a 1925 graduate of NU. He joined the University staff in 1949 after serving for several years with the State Department of Education.

He served as chairman of the NU Department of Vocational Education from 1951 until 1963, when a reorganization resulted in the formation of the Department of Vocational Homemaking Education and the Department of Agricultural Education.

Deems was chairman of the latter department until July, 1965 when he retired from administrative duties. He has continued on the staff as a teacher and researcher.

Receiving honorary memberships in Alpha Tau Alpha were B. E. Gingery, State Director of Agricultural Education; and Dr. John K. Coster, acting chairman of the NU Department of Agricultural Education.
