More Work . . . Less Pay Nebraskan Wants You

Happy as usual the Daily Nebraskan reporters finish their assignments for the day—one more day of writing experience, getting to know the school better and meeting more people.
Applications for next year's reporters and copy editors are due Friday.
Firms can be picked up in the Daily Nebraskan office in the basement of the Nebraska Union. Interested individuals can also contact Wayne Kreisler, Jan Itkin or Lois Quinett.
Positions available include night news editor, senior and junior staff writers, copy editors and business assistants. All are paid positions.
The only qualification an applicant needs for any of these positions is to be a full time student with a 2.0 minimum grade average.
Applicants will be notified about the interviewing times for the positions.

Run-Off Election For Abel

By Nancy Henrickson
Junior Staff Writer

A run-off election for three executive officers in the Abel Residence Association will be held Thursday.

The ARA constitution provides that in order to be elected a candidate for office must receive a majority plus one votes of the people voting.

In the ARA election April 27, the offices of president, treasurer and scholastic director were not filled since no one received a majority vote because of numerous write-in candidates.

The top two candidates for each of the three offices will be on the ballot for the run-off. A special meeting of the ARA Tuesday evening ruled that it is unconstitutional to have write-in candidates on the run-off ballot.

Candidates for the ARA president are Roy Mehmken and Wayne Morton. James Jenkins and Dan Sanley are running for treasurer. Mickey Brazeal is unopposed for scholastic director.

Officers elected in the April 27 election were: Don Jansen, vice president; Dave Shonka, secretary; James Arundel, social director; Glenn Nees, activities director; Steve Jordan, publicity director.

Theatre To Produce Plays In Repertory

The University Theatre will again produce four plays in repertory next year, according to Dr. William Morgan, director of the University Theatre.

The four plays selected for production are: "As You Like It" by William Shakespeare, "Waiting For Godot" by Samuel Beckett, "The Hostage" by Brendan Behan and "Private Lives" by Noel Coward.

"As You Like It" and "Waiting For Godot" will be presented next semester. Morgan said that "Waiting For Godot" is the first production of the absurd drama to be successfully played in the U.S.

"The Hostage," said Morgan, is a play about the Irish Revolution filled with wit and interspersed with Irish ballads.

"We believe that next year's plays offer more of an opportunity for comedy," Morgan said. "We have Renaissance comedy in "As You Like It," the traditional comedy of manners in the "Private Lives", and pathos and tragedy in the comedies, "Waiting for Godot" and "The Hostage."

Morgan also announced that two one-act operas will be presented next year. One is Gianni Schicchi by Puccini. The other has not been chosen, according to Morgan.

Campus Cultures To Be Presented

The Nebraska International Association will present "Cultures on Campus" Sunday evening at 7:30 p.m., in the Union Ballroom.

Foreign students attending the University will present skits featuring singing, dancing and narrations about their native country. Approximately a dozen countries will be represented in the two-hour program.

The Nebraska International Association is an organization composed primarily of foreign students, although American citizens are welcome. Co-chairman of the Association are Tom Greer, United States; and Kamal Babikar, Sudan. Chairman for the "Cultures on Campus" program is Trinidad Balagtas of the Philippines.

The public is invited and there will be no charge for the program.

Lincoln Radio Stations Endorse FM Proposal

A proposed student FM station for the University campus has received endorsements from three Lincoln radio stations.

KFMQ-FM, KWHG-FM and KLIN-AM told FM co-chairmen Dick Sherman and Bob Wilson that they will support the station which will be a non-profit enterprise programmed solely for the campus.

KWHG and KLIN have sent letters endorsing the plans to G. Robert Ross, vice-chancellor and dean of student affairs. KFMQ, according to Wilson, also promised the students "strong cooperation" with the plans and offered the use of one of their sub-channels transmitting stations for the proposed University station.

A fourth Lincoln radio station, KFOR-AM, responded that they will "think over the proposal," Wilson said. Roger Larson, general manager of the station and president of the Nebraska Association of Broadcasters, said he will also present a copy of the station's articles of incorporation, by-laws and statement of purposes to the next meeting of the Association's Board of Directors, Wilson reported.

Wilson said the Board will meet around the first of next month and, hopefully, will take some action regarding an endorsement.

Wilson said the FM committee will hold an open informational meeting to discuss the station Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the Nebraska Union.
